Nearly two-thirds of Austria's bread grain is imported at low exchange rates under the Marshall plan. Being thus heavily subsidized, the internal price for grain has been kept low. But Usia concerns, being extraterritorial, offer the peasants a higher price — though still well below the world price—and then export the grain to Trieste or Czechoslovakia where they sell it at the world rate.

As the transport through Austria is free, this leaves a handsome profit for the Russians. At the same time it acts as a spanner in the works of the Austrian economy by tending to produce a shortage of bread grain. This will either force the Austrian government to import grain at high prices from abroad or resort to forceful means to make the peasants deliver their grain at official prices.

EYE TOPICS

HERMANN VON HELMHOLTZ Master of Optics

Many times, doubtless, you have noticed the strange light that often flashes from a cat's eye. That light is really a reflection, not from the outer parts of the eye, but from the back of the inside of the eye — the retina. Down through the ages this curious reflection, especially noticeable in the eyes of animals, had been a subject of wonder.

To the Egyptians, who worshipped cats, this light was another sign of the mystic powers of these small felines. It remained for Hermann von Helmholtz, who was born in Germany in 1821, to explain the real nature of the light and to put that discovery to practical use.

Von Helmholtz reasoned that if this light came from the back of the animal's eye, there should be some means of observing directly the interior of the human eye. And with his genius for optical science, he was able to solve the problem. That was in 1850 when von Helmholtz was only 29. His invention is called the ophthalmoscope.

In its simplest form it is a small concave mirror with a peephole in the centre. The mirror reflects light into the interior of the eye which is to be examined, and by looking through the peephole the observer can see what is back of the pupil. Before Helmholtz, it had been impossible to tell whether the inner coat and tissues of the eye were healthy or not; nobody had ever seen the interior of the living organ or vision. The ophthalmoscope made possible tremendous advance in the diagnosis and treatment of disorders of the eye.

County Gets $3,800 In Truck Crash

Peterborough county has been awarded $3,800 damages and costs against Gordon Shearer of Buckhorn, in a Supreme Court award Wednesday by Justice R. I. Ferguson at the current non-jury sittings.

The damage action was a result of the two-truck collision on the Stony Lake road Nov. 10, 1949, in which William Ireland, 23, Buckhorn, was killed and both vehicles wrecked. The accident was at Hamblin's Corners, four miles nort of Warsaw

Ireland, driving a three-ton truck that was the property of Gordon Shearer, collided with the county's six-ton gravel dump truck, driven by Ed Payne, of Lock St.

The impact was so great that the engine of the county truck smashed into the cab of the other, crumpling it like paper. Both vehicles were fused together and it was more than two hours before the fatally-injured man could be removed.

Justice Ferguson found in favor of the county. He based his award on the trade-in value of the all-purpose county dump truck that had been specially designed for snow removal.

In 1949 the truck was nine years old and, without accessories such as the snow plowing apparatus, would have brought $4,500 on a trade-in for a new $15,000 model. That was the figure offered by Thomas Kerr, Markham township, a dealer in that type of heavy truck.

After the wreck the vehicle was worth only an estimated $700 and the difference, $3,800, was the amount awarded by Justice Ferguson.

When the accident occurred Ireland was bringing a load of nepheline ore from the mines to Lakefield. Although he had worked previously as a trucker, he was completing his first day on that particular job.

County Solicitor F. D. Kerr, KC, and Walter Howell represented the county in the damage action and Alex Elliott, KC, appeared for the defendant.

Nickel Price Increased, Effective Now

TORONTO, Dec. 14 — (CP).— International Nickel Co. of Canada, Ltd., Wednesday announced increases in the price of nickel in all markets, effective immediately.

The new base price for electrolytic nickel is 51¾ cents (Canadian) per pound, fob Port Colborne, Ont., refinery.

The Canadian price has been 51.40 cents a pound from last May 31 to October 10, when it was dropped to 49.10 cents following freezing of the Canadian dollar from controls.

Nickel oxide sinter and other forms of nickel, including rolling mill products, now are being quoted at correspondingly increased prices.

Coresponding increases have been put into effect by International Nickel, Inc., and Mond Nickel Co., Ltd., the company's subsidiaries in the United States and the United Kingdom, keeping the prices in the Canadian, United States and other world marnets at the same basic level. The equivalent base price in United States currency to American consumers is 50½ cents a pound, after adjustment for exchange rates and United States import duty.

The price increase came simultaneously with announcement that the company had concluded wage negotiations with the Sudbury Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers' Union, and the Port Colborne Local of the International Union of Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers, increasing all wage rates in its Canadian plants by 6½ cents to 8 cents an hour.

The announcement said that these and other cost increases have necessitated an immediate increase in prices.

Churches Fight Segregation In South Africa

JOHANNESBURG, Dec. 13 — (Reuters) — Most of South Africa's churches are taking an increasingly-strong stand against the Nationalist government's policy of apartheid—segregation of whites and Africans.

One of the most forthright groups in the Methodist Church, which claims 1,000,000 members, or more than one-tenth of the population including natives and Europeans.

The Methodists at their annual convention decried the government's restrictive practices as a threat to the liberty of all sections of the population, gradually leading to a totalitarian state.

The conference proposed equal opportunity for all races irrespective of color.

The annual assembly of South African Congregationalists condemned the government's policy which pays lip service to the even more strongly.

South Africa is "a country ideals of democracy," said Professor Horton Davies of Rhodes University, "a country in which 80 per cent of the people are not represented in parliament."

Have Poor Life

That same 80 per cent, prohibited from entering skilled trades, are forced to live "in shanties that a European would not allow pedigreed pigs to inhabit," he said.

The Presbyterians, too, disapprove of apartheid. Their general assembly deplored any attempt to "disfranchise any section of the community" and was opposed to the denial of the right of any individual to the fullest life.

The Anglican Church favors voluntary race separation but believes compulsory segregation will only produce hostility in the non-European.

Bishop Wilfred Parker of Pretoria said recently that white South Africans "are entirely responsible for the growing non-cooperation of the natives, because we force them into hostility..."

Price Of Eggs Continues Drop

By The Canadian Press.

A sharp drop in the price of eggs in the United States was reflected Wednesday in large-size price decreases in Eastern Canada, but Western Canada registered little change.

Retail stores in New York marked down egg prices 11 to 16 cents a dozen, a follow-up on wholesale price declines Tuesday of 12 to 15 cents.

The effect in Eastern Canada was almost immediate. In Montreal today the wholesale price of top-grade eggs dropped eight to nine cents a dozen and dealers said by the end of the week retail prices will be substantially lower. At the beginning of the week top-quality eggs sold at 80 cents retail.

In Saint John, NB, Grade-A egggs dropped from 80 cents to 75; in Halifax there also was a five-cent drop, and in Toronto retail prices dropped from 74 to 69 cents for top grades.

The break in the New York prices came after they had reached unusually high leyels—in some cases more than $1 a dozen at retail. The reductions were attributed to consumer resistance, arrival of fresh Canadian eggs, and the approach of the end on December 31 of government price support for eggs.

WHAT WILL YOU PAY FOR AUTOMOBILE INSURANCE NEXT YEAR?

1. If you are in the select driver class—(where your car is used chiefly for pleasure and no one under 25 years of age in your household drives it.)

A REDUCTION in rates. Why? Because insurance rates are set by insurance loss statistics, prepared in accordance with provincial government laws. Experience has shown that the select driver class, because of lower loss statistics, is entitled to lower insurance rates.

FOR EXAMPLE

	1950	1951	SAVING
For fire, theft, public liability and property damage, passenger hazard and $50 deductible collision insurance for a 1950 Ford, Chevrolet or Plymouth in Peterborough.	$67.50	$64.50	$3.00

The saving in most other parts of Ontario will be similar EXCEPT in Windsor, Sarnia, Welland and Port Colborne where accident records show that insurance rates must be raised.

2. If your car is used chiefly for pleasure and someone under 25 years of age in your household drives it.

An INCREASE in rates. Why? Autos driven, even partially, by youthful drivers had over 30 per cent higher insurance losses than autos in the select class. This group must naturally pay higher insurance rates. Those in the group that has the heavier losses should pay for the necessarily higher rates.

FOR EXAMPLE

	1950	1951	INCREASE
For fire, theft, public liability and property damage, passenger hazard and $50 deductible collision insurance for a 1950 Ford, Chevrolet or Plymouth in Peterborough.	$76.50	$84.50	$8.00

3. If your car is used chiefly for business.

An INCREASE in rates. Why? Autos used for business were involved in over 75 per cent more accidents than those in the select group. So, naturally, this group must pay high insurance rates as long as that accident record continues.

FOR EXAMPLE

	1950	1951	INCREASE
For fire, theft, public liability and property damage, passenger hazard and $50 deductible collision insurance for a 1950 Ford, Chevrolet or Plymouth in Peterborough.	$96.50	$104.50	$8.00

FOR FURTHER INFORMATION SEE YOUR INSURANCE AGENT.

Because of the increased costs of replacing wrecked automobiles, the increased costs of automobile repairs and the increased costs of medical and hospital care, insurance rates, like most other prices, are tending upwards. But the most important factor affecting insurance rates is your driving — good or bad — so . . .

Hold 2 Recounts Possible Third In Townships

The recount to decide who will be the fourth Harvey township councillor will be held Monday at 2:15 in the county building, Judge S. L. Smoke presiding.

Kenneth Junkin and Kenneth Hunt both polled 170 votes in the Harvey elections. Whoever is defeated will be out of the council as three others polled higher votes: Tom Gordon 194, Charles Johnston 179, and James Irwin 178.

If the two are still tied after the recount Mrs. Bruce Hall of Buckhorn, township clerk and returning officers, will have to cast the deciding vote.

South Cavan Recount

Another recount is scheduled for South Cavan where two trustees—Donald Lang and Russell Bonner—each got 189 votes. There were three candidates for two offices. A newcomer, Marshall Fallis, headed the polls with 246 votes.

The recount will be before Judge Miller of Cobourg, county judge for Durham-Northumberland. P. I. Bentley is the returning officer.

Burleigh-Anstruther Reeveship

No word has been received yet of an application for recount in the two-way battle for the reeveship of Burleigh-Anstruther. In the elections Monday Reeve Norman Wilson, also warden of Peterborough county, was returned by a narrow margin of one vote over Norman Bolton. Reeve Wilson received 169 votes and Mr. Bolton 168.

It was the closest battle in Burleigh-Anstruther's municipal history, and the turnout at the polls was the largest.

Scene Presented From King Lear

PCVS' Junior Dramatic Club made its 1950-51 debut before students of the junior assembly Tuesday and the senior assembly Wednesday. They presented William Shakespeare's tragedy, King Lear, act I, scene I. They were directed by Miss Fern A. Rahmel.

Miss Rahmal told the student body Wednesday that the club members were rather ambitious in the choice of the play, because they chose one of the world's greatest tragedies, a play that many people consider the greatest of plays. She said the play was chosen for two reasons: First that it is one of the plays being studied in the school; secondly that it is one of the few plays of Shakespeare's where there is more than one good part for a woman.

The director told the students that King Lear is a play about a great man who comes to ruin through his faults. In the scene presented King Lear makes the mistake in judgment which brought about his downfall.

Those who took part were: Donald McMahon, King Lear; Diane Pearse, Mary Lou Mackie, Jane Jarvis, daughters of King Lear; Bert Ross, Brian Bell and Douglas Ham, courtiers; John Hunter and Robert Ross, Dukes of Cornwall and Albany; Eric Jackson, and Lee Barnes, King of France and Duke of Burgundy; page, David Parry and Thomas Krogh, trumpeter.

Try To Cut Barrier

TORONTO, Dec. 14 (CP)—An attempt is being made to reduce the artificial barrier between elementary and secondary school education, Dr. J. G. Althouse, director of education for Ontario, said Wednesday. Addressing the Optimists Club, he said committees of teachers in 300 Ontario communities are meeting to work out a scheme which will minimize the gap in transferring from grade 8 to grade 9.

We are building a completely new cement plant in New Brunswick, which is scheduled to come into operation in June 1951. This plant will produce 800,000 barrels annually.

Furthermore, another new addition is underway at Exshaw, Alberta, where we are building an extension to our plant which will increase our western output by 1,000,000 barrels per year. This construction is also scheduled for completion in 1951.

This new expansion programme, coupled with previous additions, will have increased our cement production by 60% since 1946. It is confidently expected that this increased output will result in an adequate supply of cement for all construction purposes.

A MAID AND 10,000 MEN—Members of Canada's Special Force, in Fort Lewis, Wash., adjust ties and straighten jackets when a certain tall, slim, auburn-haired female comes into view. The girl is Capt. (Diet.) "Pat" Wright, RCAMC, of Port Hope. Pat, although carrying out her normal duties as an Army dietician, is on the right track when she says "Well-fed men are happy men". When asked how she felt with so many eligible men around, her comment was, "I've been too busy to give the matter a second thought". Above, checking the daily menu, she is shown with Pte. S. M. King, (cook), of Creston, BC, left, and S/Sgt. T. Morgan, RCASC, of Toronto.

Insurance Rates On Cars Up In Many Cases

Most Peterborough drivers will pay more in 1951 for their vehicle insurance, according to rates issued by the Canadian Underwriters' Association.

Collision insurance, except for one class, will cost more; fire and theft rates are down, and premiums on public liability and property damage are up, again excepting one class.

Rates for commercial vehicles are changed most. Collision rates are up and down; public liability and property damage rates are up for one class. Fire and theft rates are down.

The new rates are based on accident, fire and theft statistics, and reflect the present standard of driving, said one Peterborough underwriter.

The basic premium for cars which are not driven by persons under 25 years has not been changed. In this group, fire and theft rates are down, as are rates for collision insurance in the $50 deductible class.

The decrease in fire and theft rates ranges from 50 cents to $1.50 and in collision rates from $1 to $4.

In the $100 deductible class, rates are up $1 to $4 and in the $250 deductible class, rates are up $1 to $2. These figures are dependent on the make and model of the car.

In the pleasure car class where persons under 25 may be driving, rates for public liability and property damage have gone up $4. Following are the increases in collision rates: $50 deductible—up $3 to $7, $100 deductible—up $4 to $12, $250 deductible—up $2 to $6. All figures depend on the make and model of the car.

Fire and theft rates in this class are down 50 cents to $1.50.

In the Class B—cars used for pleasure and business—rates for public liability and property damage are up $3. Fire and theft insurance rates are down 50 cents to $1.50.

Collision rates are all up for this class: $50 deductible—up $3 to $9, $100 deductible—up $5 to $15, $250 deductible—up $3 to $8. All increases depend on the make and model of the car.

Commercial vehicles rates for public liability and property damage are up in only one class—truckers hauling livestock for others, and here the rate has gone up $18, from $73 to $91. Fire and theft rates are down 50 cents to $4.50.

No change was made in collision insurance rates in the $50 deductible class. In the $100 deductible class, some rates are down $1 to $5 and some are up by the same amounts. In the $250 deductible class, some rates are the same, some are up $1 to $3 and some are down $1 to $3.

PARKING METERS FOR THE MARKET Square will soon be installed. Fourteen men are engaged at present drilling and excavating the necessary holes in the concrete; work started to-day. Student Nurse Is Injured On Roadway To Hospital

A student nurse, Beverley Gamble, 19, had her right leg fractured, suffered head injuries, shock and cuts on her arms, legs and face when hit by a car shortly after 7 p.m., Wednesday night almost in the front yard of the Civic Hospital. Civic Hospital officials reported this morning her condition was improving and she was resting comfortably.

Driver of the car which struck the second-year student was John Richard Corkery, 465 Gilmour St.

Miss Gamble, in a hurry after missing the bus as she was leaving the hospital, was walking east on Charlotte St. on the south side opposite Dobbin Ave. She was wearing dark clothing police reported.

The Corkery car was also travelling east on Charlotte St.

Marks on the car led police to believe the girl was struck on the leg by the right portion of the front bumper, thrown up between the right headlight and the center of the grill onto the right side of the hood, from which she slid to the ground over the rear of the right front fender.

There is no sidewalk at that part of the street. The center of the road which was bare, was wet and slippery, police said.

Eleven-year-old Jack Levington was a witness to the accident.

Miss Gamble is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Gamble, Brock St.

Constables Douglas Farthing and Stewart Fife investigated the accident.

Otonabee Street To Disappear

Otonabee St. is going to disappear from Peterborough highway nomenclature, meaning that it is going to be changed to Lansdowne St. east.

City Engineer Chalmers and Assessment Commissioner J. E. Davis are being asked by the council to prepare a list of duplicated street names. Ald. A. B. Burrows reported to the finance committee that Lansdowne St. west of George appears in places with the designation "avenue" after it.

Lansdowne St. east will be that stretch easterly from the Lock Bridge to the city boundary near the Mark Burnham home on No. 7 Highway.

Occasionally it has been mentioned that Clonsilla Ave., which is the extension of Charlotte St. beyond its present west end, causes some confusion, and there was some casual proposal that Charlotte St. should be retained as the name to the western border of the city. However, this idea was not pressed.

The name Clonsilla was conceived by some North Monaghan authority prior to annexation of that western block of the township.

Port Hope Girl First Woman Joins UN Force

FORT LEWIS, Wash., Dec. 14—The meals for Canadian troops training here with the Special Force brigade have been rated as first class. Chances are now they'll be even better, for the woman's touch has been added.

Capt. (Dietician) "Pat" Wright of Port Hope, the first and only member of the opposite sex attached to the 25th Canadian Infantry Brigade, gives her expert feminine OK to every plateful of food served up in the Canadian messhalls.

She is a dietician with the Royal Canadian Army Medical Corps and is now attached to the catering section of the Royal Canadian Army Service Corps. Sent to Fort Lewis from Ottawa, she is acting as catering adviser for the brigade until a permanent officer is appointed.

The tall, slim and auburn-haired dietician keeps constant check on the vitamin content, palatability and cooking of all food dished out to the troops.

Study U. S. Ration Scale

Since her arrival Captain Wright has made a close study of the U. S. Army ration scale which differs somewhat from that prevailing in most Canadian Army camps.

The U.S. Army system of messing has posed some problems for Canadian cooks. The Canadian system generally calls for a kitchen large enough to cook for units numbering up to 500 men. The American kitchens, on the other hand, are built to prepare meals for much smaller numbers.

In all, some 50 messes now are in operation for Canadians at Fort Lewis. Such an arrangement has led to considerable juggling of staffs by Capt. Wright and her assistants.

As far as rations go, Capt. Wright feels they are adequate and of excellent quality. To comply with the RCASC system, a few modifications have been necessary. Certainly no one goes hungry at this base where appetites are enormous.

Capt. Wright was born in Nelson, B. C., and moved with her family to Port Hope in 1931. A graduate of Acadia University, Wolfville, N. S., "Pat" took post graduate work overseas with the 7th Canadian General Hospital and served in the United Kingdom during the Second World War. Since the war ended she has been employed with the Army at Toronto Military Hospital, Chorley Park.

This is her first experience in a camp with so many men around, but she says she has been too busy to give the matter a second thought. As for the men . . . . well-fed troops are happy troops.

Stolen Car Found Two Hours Later

A car reported stolen at 12:14 a.m. today was recovered by police at 2:30 a.m. when a Capitol Taxi driver spotted it parked at Sherbrooke and Bethune Sts.

Albert Reid, 697 McKellar St., told police he left the car in front of 262 Wolfe St. at 11:45 p.m. When he returned after midnight he found that it had been stolen. He left the ignition keys in the switch, he said.

Constable Andre Dalton had notified provincial police and neighboring town police to be on the lookout for the car, but it was found only a few blocks from where it had disappeared.

Lindsay Druggist Ed Gregory Dies

Ed. Gregory, Lindsay druggist, died Tuesday at the age of 82. He was president of the Lindsay Curling Club in 1914, an honorary life member of the Ontario Curling Association, and for years an enthusiastic skip back in the days of the late J. D. Flavelle, Judge L. V. O'Connor and others who made the Lindsay club famous.

Mr. Gregory played here against men like W. G. Morrow, J. W. McDermid, Ray Best, Alex Kay, and many others at that period of keen rivalry between Peterborogh and Lindsay curlers. He was one of the original members of Drug Trading Company, Toronto. His father came to Durham county more than a century ago, and in 1850 left Millbrook for Lindsay. The family came from Frome in Somersetshire, England. Mr. Gregory is survived by his wife, Mary Agnes Neill.

Parking Meters Going Up But Market Still To Be Held

Parking meters began sprouting this morning on the sidewalk fringe of the old marketplace, evidence in the concrete of the eventual end of an old business order that is expected to shift its centre of vending gravity to the west side of George St., opposite the Rink St. wharf.

This action by employees of the board of works was just another step in the preparation instituted by the council to get daily revenue from that central square at the corner of Water and Charlotte Streets, instead of its commercial use one morning in the week, Saturday.

Linked with this is the intention of the council to provide a market on George St. South. No immediate exclusion of vendors is contemplated as shown by the advertisements in the Examiner today announcing Christmas and New Year's marketing on the old site.

Presumably the transfer will not reach an ultimate stage until accommodation is provided for the outdoor market at the new location. The market hall branch will not be affected by the setting up of parking meters.

Federal Lot For Parking

Central parking has been free on the market square, but metering provides for an entirely new service. In the meantime, the council is making a parking request, as suggested by Mayor Swanston, to the federal Department of Public Works, for removal of the old buildings that have been vacated on the Charlotte St. site of the projected postal-customs building.

Consideration of market facilities has received the attention from time to time of the council as a continuing body. Discouraging to the city authorities was the comparative indifference of vendors when Mr. James Dutton was an alderman with a tentative plan for improving the market.

A dinner meeting arranged by the council with market vendors as invited guests brought such trifling and inarticulate response that an impression was left with the city authorities of rural unconcern. That episode probably marked the parting of the ways. The council has continued to maintain and operate the market at an annual loss to the ratepayers of the city who have made large investments of their tax money for various services which they share with the entire district.

Few Farmers Use Market

Comparatively few farmers make use of the outdoor market, and those who have been actual producers have remained silent about selling by hucksters for many years. That practice was more or less silently resented by the public of the city who gave any thought to their large investment in a property that was used by some vendors who were thereby in competition with local taxpaying merchants of the same range of produce.

Yuzwa Granted Bail Of $5,000

After nearly 13 months in the Victoria County jail, William Yuzwa, 33-year-old Hamilton salesman, convicted of manslaughter in the knife-slaying of Jack Loucks, expects to be a free man—temporarily at least.

Bail has been set at $5,000 after his counsel, B. J. Spencer Pitt, of Toronto, applied for an appeal against the conviction.

The money should be posted within a day or so and Yuzwa will be able to go home for the first time since he was taken into custody on the outskirts of Peterborough November 18, 1949.

Yuzwa was tried on a charge of murdering Jack Loucks, slain in a street brawl shortly after midnight on the main street of Lindsay. At the first trial the jury could not come to a decision, and at the second he was found not guilty of murder but guilty of manslaughter.

Mr. Pitt is appealing the conviction, not the sentence. If Yuzwa was guilty of manslaughter, then the sentence is fair enough, but he contends there was not sufficient evidence to warrant a conviction.

Truck Driver Injured In 3-Car Crash

A driver of a light truck suffered a possible fractured skull when his car was involved in a three-car smash at Hunter and Rogers St. about five p.m. Wednesday.

The injured man is William O'Neill, 37, 182 Armour Rd. He suffered concussion and X-rays will be taken in St. Joseph's Hospital today to find out whether his skull was fractured.

O'Neill's light truck was in collision first with a car driven by Donald Jamieson, 301 Mark St. Jamieson was driving east on Hunter St. He said he saw the O'Neill vehicle travelling south on Rogers St., coming out into the intersection.

Jamieson put on his brakes but slid into the truck knocking it around to the south side of Hunter St. at Rogers St. Driver of this car was Graydon Hadwin, 11 Hilliard St.

The O'Neill truck then apparently went out of control and bounced over the curb and stopped finally on the lawn of the house on the south-west corner of the intersection.

In one of the crashes, O'Neill's head either went through the windshield or the windshield was knocked out and came back and hit him. The truck which been made over from a 1928 car, was badly smashed. The roof was lifted from the frame and the body was twisted out of line.

Douglas Bishop, Chamberlain St., had been a passenger in the O'Neill vehicle, but O'Neill had just let him out of the truck as he did every evening on their way home from work.

Constables W. A. Scott and Douglas Farthing investigated.

Korean Communists Slay Innocent Irish Priest

DUBLIN (CP)—Details of cold-blooded slaying of civilians and wanton destruction of property by Communist forces in the Korean war, are related in a report received here by Roman Catholic missionary officials.

The report, from the Very Rev. Brian Geraghty, Superior of the Maynooth Catholic Mission in Kores, tells of the execution of a Catholic priest on a street in Chunchon, the arrest of eight others and widespread damage to mission property.

The dead priest is Father Peter Collier, of Clogherhead, Ireland, who had been in charge of a newly-created parish in Chunchon city.

Here is the story as told by Father Geraghty:

When the Red army overran Chunchon, Father Collier decided to remain in his parish. He was making his rounds, accompanied by a native, Gabriel Kim, when Communist soldiers spotted them. They were arrested and taken to the commander of the occupying forces.

Not Satisfied

After being searched and deprived of his personal belongings, including his Rosary, Father Collier was subjected to a severe grilling. Suspected of being an American, he was ordered to give a truthful account of the nature of his work in Korea.

The priest replied that he was an Irishman, solely occupied in the spread of the Roman Catholic faith. But the Communist officer was not satisfied.

Marched To River

He ordered the two prisoners to be tied together, hands behind their backs. They were taken toward the river. The priest was questioned again and promised that his life would be spared if he told the truth about the military and political work he had done.

When the priest repeated his previous reply, the two were ordered to turn their backs. A few minutes later the were felled by a burst from a sub-machine gun. Father Collier was killed, but Kim, shot through the shoulder and throat, feigned death. The soldiers covered the bodies with a rice sack and left them on the street.

Later, under cover of darkness, Kim escaped and made his way to officials connected with the mission.

Father Geraghty said the fate of the eight other priests was still unknown. He believed, however, they were forced to march north with other prisoners.

"If the full story of this Korean war is ever written," the report concluded, "it will include many accounts of men escaping from the very jaws of death. It was common to line those about to die along a trench or drain and shoot them into it. But some saved their lives by falling into the pit as the shots were fired and waiting there among the dead."

A MAMMOTH "CHRISTMAS CARD", nine feet high, greets Royal Bank customers and tenants of the building in Montreal, when they arrive at the bank. The display stands at the head of the stairs leading to the main banking floor and faces the St. James street entrance. The central portion of the card shows a village square and ice pond, complete with skaters, a Christmas tree and lighted windows in three dimensions, all reminiscent of the old fashioned "peep boxes" so popular with children years ago. At each end of the display is the traditional Christmas 'pot' of the Salvation Army with an invitation to "keep it boiling." Two of the bank girls are shown in the picture.

By FORBES RHUDE
Canadian Press Business Editor

The theme that Canada needs more people, and that a speeded-up immigration plan is needed, is being forcefully expressed by speakers at current business and industrial gatherings.

Robert Rae, president of the Dominion Bank, dwelt on the theme at some length Wednesday in his address to the bank's annual meeting, and gave the following outline of the population picture:

During the 10 years of Canada's most rapid growth between census count (from 1901 to 1911) the net rate of increase in the number of persons successfully settled in Canadawas about 90,000 a year; or about 1/70 of the total population during each of those 10 years.

Canada's present population is estimated at 14,00,000. Thus, if we were receiving immigrants on the same scale as in 1901-11, we would be increasing our settled immigrant population now by a net total of 20,000 persons a year.

Quite A Difference

But in order to obtain such a net increase (after allowance for deaths of immigrants in earlier years and for the subsequent departure of some others) we should in all probability need now to receive something like 250,000 a year.

What numbers have we been receiving?

In 1948, 125,000 immigrants entered Canada; in 1949 the number was 95,000; during the 12 months up to July, 1950, it was 75,000.

Our annual average during these years was thus less than 100,000—and, at present, the stream is diminishing.

Two principal objections have been raised in Canada against the proposal that we should follow a bold course similar to Australia's. These are that large numbers of immigrants might deprive Canadians of jobs, and would intensify the shortage of housing.

Perhaps five years ago these might have been good grounds for caution. Not so today, when our most urgent problems are due to the shortage of manpower.

From the standpoint of the Canadian people, there are not enough of us to do the work that needs to be done, for the common benefit of all Canadians, and for their safeguarding.

We lack sufficient skills of all kinds. There will be more jobs for Canadians everywhere when, in the key spots of industry, the key skills are made more plentiful. In other words, the coming of the right immigrants will multiply, not narrow, the range of jobs in this country.

Strike Averted

TORONTO, Dec. 14 (CP) — A last-minute wage agreement Wednesday averted a strike by 350 members of the Boot and Shoe Workers' Union (AFL) against nine Toronto shoe manufacturing firms. Under the agreement, signed two hours before a strike deadline, eight firms ganted immediate wage inceases ranging from 75 cents to $2 weekly plus 25 cents a week for each one-point rise in the cost-of-living index. The ninth company granted a general 10-cent hourly wage boost.

Doctor Develops Plastic Gullet

BALTIMORE, Md., Dec. 14 — (AP)— A man who five weeks ago was slowly starving because of a diseased gullet now is eating normally—thanks to a piece of plastic.

Surgeons at Sinai Hospital cut out the tube-like organ connecting the mouth and the stomach and replaced it with a flexible plastic.

The hospital, in a formal announcement released Tuesday night through the Associated Jewish Charities, said it was the first succesful operation of its type on a human.

The operation was performed by Dr. Edgar E. Berman of a patient suffering from cancer of the gullet (esophagus). It was the result of three years of research by Dr. Berman and his associates.

The hospital stressed that more operations of its kind must be done before its usefulness may be evaluated properly.

Takes 90 Minutes

The surgery takes about 90 minutes, compared to the as much as four hours required for the conventional operation in which the esophagus is cut out and the stomach is brought into the chest so that food passes into it directly from the mouth.

Dr. Berman believes the prime use of the plastic gullet at present would be in patients suffering from cancer.

The announcement made it clear that doctors offer no hope of a cancer cure through the new plastic tube, "only a possible palliative or relieving effect."

It said other surgeons have commented that if the plastic gullet should work successfully, it would be especially beneficial to children who swallow lye or acids and suffer irreparable damage to the esophagus.

Dies After 100th

SIMCOE, Dec. 14 (CP)—Less than four months after marking his 100th birthday, John William Osborne, Norfolk's oldest citizen, died Wednesday at his home on No. 3 highway east, after a brief illness.

A "FAIR DEAL" for Canadian railways was asked by W. A. Mather, president of the Canadian Pacific Railway, in addressing the Canadian Railway Club in Montreal. "All the railways ask," he said, "are an understanding of the magnitude of the service to the nation in the past and now, and a fair field for every form of transportation. Given these there is nothing in the future to stand in the way of our providing Canada with the best railway facilities to be found anywhere." Warning the railroaders that the future held a number of challenges for them, the CPR president noted one challenge was "to continue improving our services while keeping our costs down to an economic level."

Routine Matter

STRANRAER, Scotland (CP)—When William Buchanan was fined $3 for not carrying a log book on his truck, a court official said: "Same offence." Buchanan's lawyer replied: "Same Excuse." The court summed up: "Same fine."

Big Orders

NEW DELHI (CP).—India has placed orders for 217 locomotives and for passenger cars and freight cars with British and continental firms to complete the first phase of the Indian railway reconstruction program. The largest individual order went to Glasgow.

Car Show

STOCKHOLM (CP).—The first international car show ever staged in Sweden will be held here next April 21 to May 3. With the slogan "The Automobile Serves the Community," the exhibition will be opened by Prince Bertil, third son of King Gustaf Adolf.

HIGH WATER IN CALIFORNIA — Waters of the rampaging San Joaquin River flow over the tracks of the Southern Pacific Railroad near Tracy, Calif. The state's floods were expected to become "critical" in the rich agricultural area of the lower San Joaquin.

City Sights

LONDON (CP).—A 200-pound pig delayed traffic in Hammersmith's busy Broadway. The pig fell off a truck and created confusion until stopped by a policeman who grabbed its tail.

More Prisoners

MAIDSTONE, Kent, England, (CP)—The latest acquisition in the hospital section of Maidstone jail should be some consolation for philosophical prisoners. It's an aquarium.

Father and Daughter Die Within 12 Hours In Ottawa

HAVELOCK, Dec. 14—(ENS)—Andrew Kniewasser, Sr., 95, well known retired Ottawa Civil Servant and his daughter Mrs. Gerald E. Grossman, 59, wife of a prominent Ottawa building contractor and former residents of Havelock, died on Friday last within 12 hours of each other.

Joint funeral services were held on Monday afternoon with the Rev. A. M. J. Gray and the Rev. Dr. Charles Donald officiating. Mr. Kniewasser was buried in Maple Grove cemetery at Havelock on Tuesday, under the auspices of Havelock Lodge A.F. and A.M. No. 435, the service here being conducted by the Rev. F. R. Vanderburgh. The pallbearers were: William Hitchins, Robert Anderson, E. W. Seeney, Wesley Johnston, Charles H. Roberts and Harry Watson. Mrs. Grossman was laid to rest at Pinecrest cemetery, Ottawa, on Monday.

A native of Cleveland, Ohio,

ANDREW KNIEWASSER

Mr. Kniewasser was one of the pioneer residents of this district, coming here from Elora Ontario before the village was incorporated. The Havelock School was built in 1890 and Mr. Kniewasser was its first principal. In his church activities he served as Sunday School superintendent, Bible Class teacher, and local preacher in the Methodist church (now the Havelock United Church). He was a charter member of the local Masonic Lodge and was presented with a 50 year jewel a few years ago. About 42 years ago he took up residence in Ottawa where he was in the employ of the Civil Service until his retirement in 1930. He was an active member of St. Paul's Eastern Church, Ottawa, where he served as an elder. His wife, the former Mary Ann Gunby of Nelson, Ontario, predeceased him more than 20 years ago. He was the oldest member of the Ottawa Humane Society.

Surviving in addition to his son, Dr. A. V. Kniewasser a prominent Ottawa physician are four grandchildren.

Mr. Kniewasser suffered a broken hip on Thursday as the result of a fall on the floor of his bedroom, and his death occurred 12 hours after that of his daughter.

Born In Havelock

Mrs. Grossman was born in Havelock and received her education in Havelock Public School and later graduated from Norwood High School. During her residence in Ottawa Mrs. Grossman took a keen and active interest in every phase of community life and was instrumental in the formation and success of many cultural organizations. Until the time of her illness a few months ago, she followed her energetic pattern of living and was a familiar figure at the Ottawa Bowling Club, and the Elmdale Lawn Bowling club.

Following her graduation, Mrs. Grossman spent several years as a teacher in Ontario schools before accepting a position with the Department of Finance.

Many of her former pupils referred to Mrs. Grossman as one of the finest elocutionists and diction teachers in the province.

Friend and adviser to the youth of Ottawa, Mrs. Grossman was actively connected with the Y.M.C.A. and the Y.W.C.A. and served on both boards. She was also a member of the Dramalodic club, the Ottawa Study club, the Ottawa Music Study club, the Book Lovers club and several other religious, social and sporting fraternities. She was an untiring worker in all the organizations of Southminster United Church.

Besides her husband and brother Dr. Kniewasser, Mrs. Grossman is survived by a son George of Ottawa.

Mr. Kniewasser and Mrs. Grossman with other members of the family were regular visitors to Havelock each summer and always took time to call on all their old acquaintances.

Hungry As Bears are the youngsters when they come racing in from school! . . . and no wonder! Research shows that a normal, healthy child burns up almost twice as much energy per pound of weight as a hard-working man! That's the reason so many modern mothers enrich their children's diet with that extra-energy food drink — HORLICKS! Horlicks is a concentrated food made from full cream milk, plus nutrients of wheat and malted barley. It's modified by enzymes to increase digestibility — and it practically doubles the energy value of milk! What's more, Horlicks is delicious . . . m-mmm!—it's tops with the kindergarten-to-college set! So why not make a regular family habit of it? Get Horlicks from your druggist tomorrow!

"Another Cup Of Coffee?"—The answer is always "Yes, please!" when the coffee you serve is BLUE RIBBON COFFEE! Everyone likes this superb blend—and no wonder! The cost per cup is so low —why not enjoy the finest? And no matter what kind of coffee-maker you use, Blue Ribbon will always make the same delicious, full-bodied cup of coffee. That's because you have three distinct grinds to choose from . . . regular for your percolator, drip for your dripolator, or silex for your glass coffee-maker. In addition, there's the all-purpose grind in the economical paper bag. And you'll find that Blue Ribbon Coffee is always fresh. For there are three Blue Ribbon roasting plants across Canada—one of which is close to you.

Christmas Trees — Teddy Bears — Neckties . . . and lots of food! Don't you wish there were a Santa Claus to help you with your Christmas budget? But here's a money-saving hint that will help! . . . make your December meals both delicious and economical—with BOVRIL! M-mmm! That good beefy rich flavour! Gives you the savoury flavour of good roast beef without roast beef prices! And you can add Bovril flavour to meals in so many ways—in soups, stews and gravies—and like this:

Brush the pastry or biscuit toppings of your meat pies with a teaspoon of Bovril, diluted with 2 teaspoons of hot water, before putting them in the oven.

Economical and delicious, by Eileen Rodger, the Bovril Dietician.

There's A Man thinking of you these busy Christmas shopping days. And he's ready to help you save time and money on meal preparation. That's the Heinz "Chef"! No Matter How you wash your clothes — in a tub or a washing machine . . . you're bound to have your hands in water a great deal of the time. That's why it's so important to use a soap that's kind to your hands — as well as effective in cleaning your clothes. That's DUZ! Every day, I hear that more and more women who've been experimenting with some of those no-rinse chemicals are changing to Duz — for white white washes without red hands! You see, Duz combines great quantities of rich, real soap with two active detergents — gives you clean, sweet-smelling washes and the most marvelous care for your hands! I know you'll love Duz — so I'd suggest you get a Giant Economy Size package next time you're shopping. Try it next washday and see for yourself how Duz does Everything!

Tests Theory

WINDSOR, Dec. 14 (CP)—An unidentified Windsor man, who believes in pedestrians' rights, has successfully tested his theory. When a car stopped at a red light, blocking a cross walk for pedestrians, several persons walked around the car. But Windsor's unnamed hero opened the car's rear door, walked through and left by the other door. A constable on traffic duty stood by smiling.

Find Dynamite Caps

HAMILTON, Dec. 14 (CP) — Police warned parents Wednesday that 60 dynamite caps were found by a group of school children. Walter Hagan, inspector of detectives, said it was not known how many caps might have been picked up by other children. He warned that the slightest friction might cause a cap to explode with sufficient force to kill or maim a child.

City's Industrial Employees Plan Parties For Children

Santa Claus will be a shadow of his presently chubby self a week Saturday after he has distributed toys, candies and oranges to the Peterborough factories' annual Christmas parties for children.

Old Saint Nick will see thousands of Peterborough children in his visits to the collegiate auditorium, the YMCA auditorium, Queen Mary school auditorium, the Capitol theatre and the Legion Hall where the industrial parties will be held. Besides his visit most of the children will see movies, cartoons and magicians.

The busy week will begin Friday night at the collegiate auditorium where the DeLaval company employees' Social and Athletic Association will hold its annual Christmas tree. Children up to 18 years will talk to and receive gifts from Santa in addition to the candies and oranges. Three movies will be shown for further entertainment for the 275 children.

Big Day For CGE

Santa will no doubt breath easier after the Christmas trees on Saturday. The largest of these is the annual CGE party which draws thousands of children to the PCVS auditorium from 9.30 a.m. until 4.30 p.m. This year's expected record attendance has been divided into four groups.

Invitations to all employee parents with children up to and including 14 years of age have been distributed. The parents have been requested not to attend with their children until the time called for on the tickets due to the limited capacity of the auditorium.

The Peterborough Canoe Company's social and athletic club will be hosts to the children Saturday morning at the YMCA auditorium. There Santa Claus will pay a short visit after the children have taken part in a singsong and have seen movies. There will be the season's greetings from the company through W. A. Richardson and draws for turkeys.

Five In Afternoon

Five Christmas parties will be staged in the afternoon. The fellowship association of the Quaker Oats Company will entertain the children in the Queen Mary school auditorium at 2.30. Meanwhile, at 1.30, in St. John's school auditorium, the children of the employees of the Brinton-Peterborough Carpet Company will gather. They will have a singsong, see movies and be served refreshments as well as Santa's visit.

At the Legion Hall 150 children will be at a party sponsored by the Social and Athletic Club of the Peterborough Lock Company. Draws will be made for turkeys and prizes will be awarded to winners of the turkey roll at the Duffus Bowling Alleys last Saturday.

In the Armouries, 60 children will be entertained in the Sergeants' Mess and nearly 100 in the Officers' Mess. Santa Claus will visit both groups to give out gifts. Other entertainment will be provided such as movies.

With songs, movies and a magician, the children of the Outboard Marine Social and Athletic Association members will celebrate Monday in the PCVS auditorium. Besides draws for prizes there will be gifts for all.

A week Saturday, December 23, will see two factories holding children's parties, the Canada Packers and the Dominion Woollens companies. Over 300 children will attend the Woollens Christmas tree at the Queen Mary school auditorium in the evening. Guests of the company will be children from the shelter and the Orphanage.

Nearly 350 children and 300 adults are expected at the Canada Packers party in the morning at the Capitol theatre.

Trap Bank Robber

VANCOUVER, Dec. 14 (CP)—A fleeing bank robber, dropping bills as he ran, was tackled by two passers-by Wednesday and was behind bars 20 minutes after his brazen try for $3,200. Allen Aldous, 36-year-old millworker, was charged with robbery with violence an hour after the suburban Marpole branch of the Dominion Bank of Canada was held up.

Suggest Feed Dealers Increase Wages

TORONTO, Dec. 14 — (CP).—A suggestion that members consider raising their employees' wages was made Wednesday by C. P. Bechtel of Kitchener in his presidential address to the annual meeting of the Ontario Retail Feed Dealers Association.

"Our largest single problem during the last period of control was manpower," said Mr. Bechtel. "Not only loss of service-age men but loss of key men because we were caught in a low-wage level industry and could not hope to hold them."

He said price controls are again a probability and urged margins be based on the difference between invoice cost and selling price rather than the spread between market and selling price.

Members should take an active part in soil conservation programs as a method of guaranteeing future business.

Oyster Cocktail OR Fruit Cup (see below) OR Cranberry Juice
Roast Turkey
Gravy (see notes on Giblets under stuffing)
Whipped Potatoes
Shredded Green Beans with Sliced Mushrooms
Cranberry Sauce
Ripe Olives and Celery Hearts OR Avacado, Grapefruit and Tomato Salad with French Dressing Light Plum Pudding
Rosettes or Hard Sauce
Salted Pecans Coffee

Directions

Cocktail Sauce for Oysters if you serve this first course: 2-3 cup catsup, 3 tablespoons chili sauce, 2 tablespoons bottled horseradish, 3 tablespoons lemon juice.

If you choose the Fruit Cup use seedless white grapes halved, halved grapefruit sections without membrane, and a few pineapple cubes. Sweeten it with only a little maraschino cherry juice.

If you use the Cranberry Juice to syrup made from boiling cranberries in water and sugar add unsweetened grapefruit juice.

If you make this Chestnut Stuffing it calls for the giblets so naturally there are none to go in the gravy. One pound chestnuts chopped (2 cups when boiled and chopped), giblets cooked and chopped from turkey, one-half pound sausage meat, ¼ cup finely minced onion, 4 tablespoons butter, 8 cups soft breadcrumbs, 1 cup hot water, 2 teaspoons powdered sage, 1 tablespoon salt, ¼ teaspoon pepper.

Bake the chestnuts to make skin brittle, then peel and boil 30 minutes. Chop fine and add to remaining ingredients after you have sauteed the onions, sausage meat and butter together for not more than 5 minutes. Pack loosely into bird which has been lightly salted inside.

Whipped Potatoes are extra light mashed potatoes and this is accomplished by adding too much hot milk or cream to them and stirring constantly over low heat until they evaporate off enough of the liquid to keep their shape. A delicious effect.

To finely Cut Green Beans add lightly sauted mushrooms—to 1 lb. beans use ¼ lb. mushrooms. A nice Christmas touch that raises them two or three notches above ordinary buttered green beans. A few slivers of canned pimiento make a pretty garnish.

NOTE: If you object to serving potatoes at the same meal as stuffing, change to Casserole of Buttered Carrots and Parsnips. This is very good. Put half and half one-inch chunks of carrots and parsnips in casserole with cover, add about ¼ cup butter and generous sprinkle of salt and pepper for each one pound of vegetables. Add 2 tablespoons hot water. Cover and bake until tender.

I'm selfish about the salad—for we have it because I like it so; avocadoes are too costly for this family to eat often.

Avocado, grapefruit and tomato salad is merely a flower-shaped arrangement of sections of avocado, grapefruit and tomato cut to look like petals as much as possible and arranged on endive or lettuce leaves. Pass French Dressing. If you are a French Dressing addict, marinate the salad ingredients in it for 1 hour before arranging on salad plates.

Rosettes of Hard Sauce

Two-thirds cup butter or margarine, 2 cups sifted icing sugar, 1 teaspoon vanilla OR grated orange rind or other flavoring, shake of salt. Cream the butter with a spoon or electric beater turned on low until it is light, then gradually add the sugar while beating. Add the salt and flavoring and beat. (If to be served for ordinary occasions pile it on a small serving dish, score to make the top attractive, with a fork, and sprinkle with nutmeg, then chill.) But to make rosettes put it in your icing tube, and working over the plate on which it is to be served, make little rosettes about 1 inch in diameter. Little pieces of maraschino cherry may be placed on tip of each rosette or a silver dragee. Chill. These keep well and may be made three or four days before Christmas.

DOROTHY DIX

Woman Complains that Mate Neglects Her for Business

DEAR MISS DIX: I have been married a year and a half to a young man who has no vice except his devotion to business. He is in business with his father, owning a part interest himself. He goes to work at 5 a.m. and doesn't come in except for lunch and until 7 or 8 p.m. His work is in the hot sun and is plenty hard. However, he is healthy and strong, only 22 years old. I spend my days entirely by myself or talking to elderly people. I get lonesome and look forward to every minute with my husband, but when he gets home he is dead tired and all he wants to do is to crawl into bed. He is so wrapped up in his business that his whole life is centered in it. I know that everything he does he is doing for me, but I don't think money is the only thing in the world. Is it fair for a man to be so much of a husband that he can't be a good companion? MRS. G. F. D.

Dorothy Dix

ANSWER: Everything goes by comparison. The tens of thousands of women who are married to lazy and shiftless men who spend their time lolling around the house, or with other loafers around bars, would think that a woman who had a husband who was as industrious and ambitious as yours was a favorite daughter of Lady Luck.

Want More Than Machine

Still, there is something to be said for your side of the case. A woman doesn't want a husband who has become nothing but a machine. She doesn't want one who give his every thought to his business. She doesn't want one who exhausts himself so completely with his work that his home is merely a place for him to recuperate for his next day's labor. She wants her husband's society. She wants to know that she is more important to him than anything else in the world. She wants him to entertain and amuse her. And perhaps the man who fails to feed his wife spiritually fails in his duty to her just as much as if he failed to provide her with food.

Of course, the ideal husband is the one who steers the middle course and who divides his time between his work and companionship with his wife, who brings home the bacon with one hand and plays the ukulele with the other, so to speak. But, unfortunately, the demands of business and of domestic life frequently clash.

DEAR DOROTHY DIX: I am a boy of 14. My parents think that I am not doing my work at school because I was once suspended and because I act silly at home. They say that is how I do at school and when I try to tell them differently they won't give me a chance to explain. This gets on my nerves. At school I do try to do my best and to get good grades, but my parents keep discouraging me so much that sometimes I think about running away from home. Please give me your advice. A FRIEND IN NEED.

ANSWER: My first bit of advice is to urge you not to run away from home. That wouldn't solve your problem. It would only make a bad matter worse. It would only make a tramp of you and cut you off from an education and all the advantages there are in having a family and a home for a background.

And, believe me, son, that hard as your parents are on you, they are not so hard as the world would be. Their fault-finding, nagging and lack of understanding is fulsome flattery and tender consideration compared with what you would get from your boss if you started out to make your own living. Just take it on the chin and remember that the reason your parents are so critical of everything you do is because they love you so much and are anxious for you to make something of yourself.

But I wish that I could say something that would make fathers and mothers understand that praise is far more efficacious than blame in dealing with children.

Many a boy is a failure in life because his parents were always telling him that he was no good. Many a boy becomes a hoodlum and gangster because his parents were always saying how bad he was and he felt he had to live up to his reputation of being tough. It is a terrible thing for parents to discourage their children. Oftener than they know they put out the fire of ambition on the altar of the boy's soul.

DEAR MISS DIX: I was adopted when I was a baby by a man and woman who have been real parents to me and whom I love with all my heart. I am engaged to a boy. Do you think I should tell him? Will it make any difference to him? He is devoted to my parents. L.W.

ANSWER: Certainly you should tell him. Not that it will make any difference to him, but he will feel it is a confidence he deserves.

'Natural Look' Latest For Bust Lines

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK — (AP) — The American bosom is coming down.

"It's these low necklines," explained Mrs. Ida Rosenthal, "you can't have such high busts—you need more space."

Mrs. Rosenthal is an authority on the subject. With her husband, she is founder of a brassiere company, which she says is the world's largest.

For the last 10 years, women have been moulded into high, pointed and exaggerated bustlines. This reached its peak with sweater girls and female celebrities boasting about the size of their foundation garments. "Now we're getting back to the natural bust look," say Mrs. Rosenthal. "It's still a little high and so probably it will go a little lower. That's fashion for you."

Mrs. Rosenthal undertook to explain exactly what a "natural bust look" means.

"Take a girl of 16," she said. "There you will find the perfect bust—firm, cute and no need for support. But by the time she's 20, she's started to sag—and after that . . ."

Mrs. Rosenthal says that the "well-brassiered woman" is one who has the silhouette of an unbrassiered girl of 16, no matter what her real age.

Providing American women with spurious but apparently attractive youthful facades is primarily an engineering problem, Mrs. Rosenthal said, adding her husband designs the garments for their firm.

"It's a matter of knowing stresses and strains, and throwing the weight onto the shoulders," she said. "Or provding supports to carry the weight in the strapless brassieres. Both my husband and I are a little embarrassed when we think of our first ones, in the '20s—just a flat band shirred to make the cups."

The industry is at work to improve brassieres and to make them adaptable to circumstances. Current models are adjustable, for example, so that a woman may wear her bosoms higher when she's in heavy clothes and needs the emphasis.

For sweaters or sheerer dresses she advises the more natural look. "I'd say the way to find the correct elevation is about 10 inches from the shoulder line. Less for short women, more for tall ones."

To be specific, these are the current figures: for short girls (5 feet, four or less) 9½ inches from shoulder to mid-bosom; medium (5 feet, six) 10½ inches; tall (5 feet, nine and over) 11¼ inches."

There's really no excuse for a woman not to look as good as a young girl," said Mrs. Rosenthal, "that's what most women want to look like. And their husbands want them to look like that, too."

MR. AND MRS. GORDON T. DIPLOCK, of Toronto, who were married Saturday evening in St. Paul's Presbyterian Church. The bride is Merle, youngest daughter of Mrs. James Dauncey, and the late Mr. Dauncey. The groom is son of Mr. and Mrs. David T. Diplock, all of Peterborough. —(Garfield Studio Photo)

'Messiah' Music Notably Done By Four Choirs

By T. J. ALLEN

Four United Church choirs — George St., Trinity, Mark St. and St. Andrews—combined to give a firm and well-balanced account of Part I of Handels 'Messiah' Wednesday evening in the George St. church. There were some 125 choristers filling the choir-loft and the two ends of the gallery. Harry Northrop of St. Andrew's conducted, Charles Allen was at the console of his home organ, and Donald Kennedy of Trinity was at the piano.

All Part I (which contains most of the choruses and solos associated with Christmas) was given in sequence except 'He Shall Purify' and 'His Yoke Is Easy' which were omitted. The 'Hallelujah' chorus from Part II was added to conclude the performance.

All soloists were local people. William Peltz, singing tenor, gave a sincere rendering, but his voice and technique are not wholly adequate to the severe demands Handel makes. Adam Hawley has an impressive bass voice and notably sustained the difficult long passages. The city is fortunate in having at hand a bass of his capacity.

The two contraltos were Mrs. C. Carson and Mrs. H. A. Mitchell. Mrs. Carson, a new contralto to Peterborough, revealed fine quality of voice and technical skill. Mrs. Mitchell has a sympathetic richly-modulated voice. Miss Iris Whalon and Mrs. James Goldie was outstanding. She revealed a breadth of range, a mastery of technique and a rapport with the music which made it a delight to listen to her. She occasionally took liberties—flourishes—with the Handel score which this listener cannot commend.

Fine Body Of Tone

The choral work was impressive, particularly 'And the Glory'. The body of tone was fine, the blend of voices good, the diction understandable. The sections of the choir were generally sure of their entries and their more difficult runs. The trouble with any presentation of 'Messiah' or any of its parts is that it inevitably invites comparison. The last time this listener heard the oratorio in its entirety was under the baton of Sir Thomas Beecham, who had a specially-trained choir and a full orchestra. Wednesday night the performance was restricted by the accompanying instruments and by the nature of the choir.

To do justice to the orchestral acompaniment by way of piano and organ is so difficult as to be imposible. Mr. Allen and Mr. Kennedy did a commendable job in the circumstances, but it could not satisfy heart and ear. They had best scope in the 'Pastoral Symphony' which was interpreted very finely, though I felt that the tempo was set somewhat slow.

Complacency Noted

Now for the choir. It was composed of church choirs, and church choirs are generally, musically speaking, easily satisfied. They have to be because of the necessity of giving two or three anthems every Sunday. When they hit a familiar chorus which they have 'got up' long ago, such as 'Hallelujah', they do it with gusto but without enough fresh study. They feel that they know it. Some choristers seemed so determined to display familiarity with 'And The Lord' that they did not bother to look at either the score or the conductor.

Few were as complacent as these troupers, but the flaccidity of many of the attacks showed inattentiveness towards the conductor, which was unfair to him. It is of course difficult to mould into one unit so various and widespread a group (the sopranos were in the gallery) after only three or four rehearsals ensemble. Incidentally, I was disturbed by the variable tempi and dynamics which were used in some of the choruses, for instance, in 'Hallelujah'.

It was grand for Peterborough to have the opportunity of hearing at this season the five choruses and various solos from 'Messiah' so well done. From this perhaps great annual things may spring.

Whitehall Notebook

200 Words Without Stop Britons Toss In Sponge

By ALAN HARVEY

LONDON, Dec. 14.—(CP). — Two hundred words without a full stop! Britain's law-makers are used to unruly syntax, but they boggled at that one.

It happened at a parliamentary committee meeting. The members were checking article 1 (a) in the meat products and canned meat (control and maximum prices) order, which has something to do with a new British sausage.

The article occupies 16 printed lines and goes on for 201 words without a stop. The committee didn't try to understand it. It just sent a curt note to the food ministry asking for "elucidation." The ministry sent back a six-line explanation, saying that the order merely raises both the price and the meat content of the new sausage.

Humbly, the ministry promised to be more careful—and more lavish with punctuation—the next time, or, in its own words, "wherever in any future instrument a lengthy article such as the present article 1 (a) has to be drafted."

Short and Sweet

Whitehall has been taking quite a whacking recently. Lord Justice Birkett, in a speech to school girls, said he doesn't think much of civil servants who clutter their sentences with big words.

"I can't tell you the misery it causes me," he said, "when I hear somebody say, 'Evacuated to alternative accommodation.' Nobody thinks of saying 'Sent to other homes'."

Dr. B. Ifor Evans, educationist, told a conference that the use of language in Government circles and commerce is a menace which needs reform. He quoted one of some 3,000 rules and orders issued in 1948:

"The intention is that the assistance of the specialist should be available for the family doctor in the patient's home when the patient's condition makes it essential for consultation or treatment to take place there. The alternative of attendance at the hospital as an out-patient or admission as an in-patient should be the normal rule, and should be adopted unless medical considerations make it impossible."

Quite a Difference

And so on for two further sentences. What would be lost, Dr. Evans asked, if all this were reduced to one sentence: "When the family doctor decides that patients are too ill to go to hospital as out-patients or in-patients, it is hoped he can be assisted by a specialist's visit to the patient's home".

But sometimes, it appears, complicated construction just can't be helped. Food Minister Maurice Webb asked at a recent press conference about next year's "simplified" ration book, gave this answer:

"It will be simpler, but it would be so complicated telling you how it would be simpler that I cannot tell you—without a blackboard and a ration book".

Technical Details Of Rail Cars Outlined At Wreck Investigation

EDMONTON, Dec. 14 —(CP)— The last of 31 witnesses was scheduled to give testimony today, fourth day o fthe Board of Transport commissioners' inquiry into the Canoe River train wreck last Nov. 21 which claimed 21 lives.

The witness, Maj. F.P.O. Leask, officer commanding the troop train which collided head-on with a passenger train, flew from Fort Lewis, Wash., to take the stand.

Testimony Wednesday by officials of the Canadian National Railways was that all care involved in the disaster were marshalled as steel cars in accordance with regulations laid down by the Transport Commissioners.

Evidence in the first two days of the inquiry showed that the two trains were operating on "overlapping" orders because a railway telegraph operator omitted the words "at Cedarside" from the order he received by telephone from a despatcher and passed to the Trooper's conductor. The trains were to have passed at the Cedarside, B.C., siding on the C.N.R. main line through the Rocky Mountains.

Follow Regulations

W. A. McDonald, general superintendent of the sleeping and dining car department, Winnipeg, said marshalling of the cars involved "did not conflict" with the Board's regulations. Any of the cars was safe to operate anywhere in the train.

E. H. Jenkins, assistant general superintendent of car equipment, Winnipeg, said six of the cars in the troop train were all-steel, the remainder having steel underframes and steel plating. The passenger train cars were of all-steel construction.

Earlier, Gnr. Gordon Thompson, of Johannesburg, South Africa, testified that the first sleeper on the troop train was of wooden construction. Mr. Jenkins said this particular car had a steel underframe and steel plating.

He said damage was heaviest to the troop train because it was running "stretched out" coming up a grade while the passenger was running downhill and its cars would be "bunched solid" behind the engine. There was only one baggage car between the first sleeper and the troopers' locomotive, while there were three between the passengers' first day coach and its engine.

MOHAMMED ALI, High Commissioner for Pakistan to Canada, who addressed the Canadian Exporters' Association at a luncheon recently in the Ritz-Carlton Hotel in Montreal. He spoke on "Pakistan—a new market place for the world."

Youth Gets Dip In Canal Water

Skating and swimming just don't mix, as Philip Holland, 767 George St. North, will vouch. Wednesday afternoon while skating on the canal south of the Park Hill Road bridge, he went through the thin ice up to his waist in water. He is the second one to plunge through in this stretch in the past week.

Donald Brown, 816 Water St., who was playing hockey with Holland on one of the canal rinks in a small bay, said, "The two of us were there and suddenly, zip, away went Phil." Holland was then into the water and holding the firm ice. Out of the water in nothing flat Holland was rushed home by his friend.

Portsmouth Village Fights Annexation By Kingston

KINGSTON, Dec. 14 (CP) — Hearings of the Ontario Municipal Board on Kingston's application to annex Portsmouth village and portions of Kingston township, an area of some 10,000 acres with a population of 8,000, will be adjourned until Jan. 8 after today's session. R. C. Rowland and C. D. Wight, both of Toronto, are the board members.

Vital municipal problems ranging from a general waterfront clean up to sanitation health, policing, school accommodation and financing were dealt with at yesterday's sessions.

At adjournment Hugh Gibson, city solicitor, had still not completed his case to show why an extension of Kingston's boundaries by annexation was justified at this time.

The board today is taking evidence from officials and experts of the Township of Kingston which has expressed opposition to annexation. Portsmouth has approved the annexation move.

Mr. Gibson called as his first witness yesterday, William Storrie of the firm of Gore and Storrie, Toronto, consulting engineer to the city of Kingston.

Discussing sewerage and water purification, Mr. Storrie reiterated that "a system of unified control was absolutely essential" for the operation of these services in the greater Kingston area.

A comparison of the financial picture as it exists between the city and Kingston township was presented by L. G. MacPherson, C.A., city auditor whose figures were to the end of 1950.

Debenture Debt Low

The debenture debt of Kingston was $2,852,000 against $866,000 for the township, a total of $3,718,000.

The Kingston debt was reduced to $2,201,000 by a sinking fund of $650,000, the auditor stated.

In a breakdown of the figures, Mr. MacPherson said in Kingston $1,076,000 was for school purposes and $621,000 for local improvements. In the township $534,000 was for schools and $331 for improvements.

A. C. Ritter, Kingston's superintendent of education, said a survey of the secondary school situation had been carried out and grave concern had been expressed over the pupil accommodation facilities for the future. Five rooms had recently been added to Kingston Collegiate, where there were now 1,270 students—967 from Kingston and 303 from the outside area.

Mr. Ritter said the public school enrolment in Kingston was 2,988. In the outside area, including school districts one, two and Portsmouth, there were 1,331 pupils.

The situation would come to a head in 1958 when it would be necessary to find additional school space or perhaps exclude the outside students, who by then would number 536.

Suitable locations for building new schools in Kingston were limited, the witness said but "something had to be decided soon."

Mrs. Delbert Brisbin was in charge of the program. Mrs. Nill read "The Spirit of Christmas," Mrs. George Mouncey conducted an oral Christmas contest; Christmas carols were sung; Mrs. R. C. White read a poem.

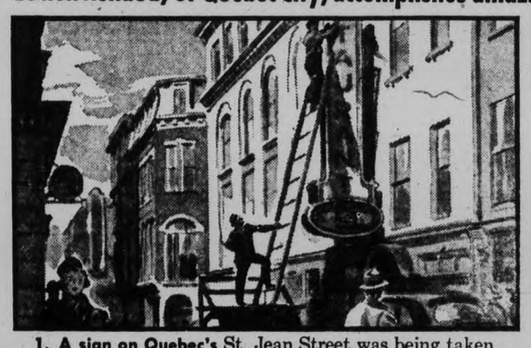
COURAGEOUS WORKER CATCHES BOSS AFTER FALL FROM SIGN

Lucien Renaud, of Quebec City, accomplishes amazing feat as he breaks man's fall on top of truck cabin



1. A sign on Quebec's St. Jean Street was being taken down for repair. Superintendent Wallace Hanson was at the top of a ladder about 30 feet from the ground. Lucien Renaud was at the foot of the ladder on a platform above the cabin of their truck. The men were not new to their job, but an accident can happen even to experts. And happen it did — suddenly!

2. The ladder somehow turned without warning — causing Mr. Hanson to lose his footing at the top. Although he instinctively clutched for something to hang onto, his hands grasped nothing but air . . . and he hurtled down head first, still holding a pair of heavy 24-inch pliers in one hand. At the bottom of the ladder Lucien Renaud had a fraction of a second in which to decide what his course of action would be.

3. Renaud resolved to save the man's life if he could possibly do so. Bracing himself for the impact, he circled his arms and caught Mr. Hanson, pressing him to his chest to break the fall. Although the pliers struck his head, causing a 4-inch gash, brave Lucien Renaud didn't lose his hold. He had saved Wallace Hanson from serious injury and possibly from death. We are proud to present him with The Dow Award.

Communist World Menace Causes Big Rise In Canada's National Defence Costs

By DOUGLAS HOW

OTTAWA, Dec. 14 — (CP) — National defence in 1950 thrust aside financial restraint and became big and costly business for Canada. It swirled far in front of all other types of government expenditure.

As the year ends, the era of the $1,000,000,000 military budget is only three months distant. It will come with the next federal budget. A sombre cabinet, facing up to a world in crisis, has said it will.

It came fairly close in 1950. For a year that started off with a relatively modest increase planned for defence, it came startlingly close to the billion dollar mark. It started off with a $425,000,000 defence budget and ended up around $850,000,000.

The reasons were obvious and threatening. They could be compressed into one word: Korea. Or, going deeper, Russia.

The ramifications were more complex. The extra $440,000,000 voted by parliament at its fall emergency session was needed largely not for Canada herself but for her allies. The government, accepting Canada's international obligations in a two-fold way, got $300,000,000 to carry out a program of helping arm Europe.

The first shipments, spearhead of equipment for a division, went forward to the Netherlands late in the year. An equal amount will go to the Netherlands or another Atlantic Pact ally next year.

The rest of the money was needed because Canada was accepting her international obligations in another way, by building up her forces so they would have units that could serve anywhere at any time.

The cost of Canada's Korean activities was placed tentatively at $50,000,000 for the existing fiscal year. But the program was broader than that. It called for acceleration and expansion all along the line in a field where costs have become staggering—$400,000 for a single one-seater fighter plane.

Korea was behind all this. But it also had its good points. It broke the log jam in Washington and opened the way for revival of the wartime economic integration of Canada and the United States for purposes of arms production. It brought intensified drives for the St. Lawrence seaway as a defence project.

It spurred civil defence planning and brought the green light for communities to start getting ready for the worst. It electrified the movement towards integrated western defence through the Atlantic Pact.

The biggest costs were ahead and late in the year cabinet ministers indicated to the federal-provincial conference there is no way of telling just how large they will be. That would depend on the wave of crises breaking around the periphery of the free world. But they would hit at least $1,000,000,000 in 1951-52, bringing with them higher taxes and blows at the civilian economy.

There was little if any sign of objection to this staggering prospect or its implementation. It was apparently a united country that heard Ottawa's prescription.

R. J. Hamilton Buried In Blackstock Cemetery

MILLBROOK, Dec. 14 (ENS)—The death occurred in Millbrook on Monday of Robert John Hamilton of Blackstock. Mr. Hamilton, who was in his 82nd year, had been in poor health for some time, although his final illness was short.

He was born in Cartwright township, the son of Frank Hamilton and the former Jane Swain. His mother was the daughter of early settlers in Cavan township.

Mr. Hamilton had been living in Millbrook for about six months. All the rest of his life had been spent in Cartwright township.

Mr. Hamilton had been married twice, the first time to Sarah McBrien and the second to Lottie McBrien, who still survives. Surviving sons and daughter include: Frederick, Mrs. Wm. Taylor (Annie), John and Cecil, all of Blackstock, and Percy, principal of Millbrook public school.

Mr. Hamilton, who was a retired farmer, received his education in Blackstock. He was a member of St. John's Anglican church in Blackstock, where he held the position of warden. He was a member also of the Loyal Orange Lodge, Blackstock, and of the Royal Black Preceptory, Blackstock.

Six Orangemen acted as pallbearers at the funeral. It took place today at 3.30 p.m. at St. John's Anglican church, Blackstock, with the Rev. Mr. Nicholson officiating. Interment was in St. John's cemetery, Blackstock.

Something to remember

This is one of a series of words and expressions whose origins and meanings are published in the interest of a better understanding, use and knowledge of the English language.

"KINGFISHER"

Everyone knows that the "Kingfisher" is one of the world's most beautiful birds. Frequenting the streams and ponds it gets its food by plunging almost perpendicularly into the water and emerging a moment later with its catch.

The "Kingfisher" is the subject of many legends. A medieval story tells that at one time the "Kingfisher" was a plain grey bird. Its amazing coloring came about, according to this story, when it was liberated from Noah's Ark and flew towards the sun. Thus, we are told, its upper surface assumed the hue of the sky above it, while the lower plumage was scorched to a rich chestnut tint by the heat of the setting orb.

Pain In Back and Legs 14 Years—Helped By Syntona

Says Herbal Medicine Also Relieved Stomach Disorders, Headaches, Dizzy Spells. Praises It Highly.

MR. A. WALLER

"Since I've been using Syntona Herbal Compound I have obtained relief from pains in my back and legs for the first time in 14 years," said Mr. A. Waller, 93 Beland Avenue, Hamilton, Ontario, in a recent statement telling of his experience with this well-known and popular medicine.

"Sometimes the pains were so bad that when I stooped over it was all I could do to straighten up again. I would often get dizzy spells with dark spots before my eyes, I was subject to headaches and never slept well. In more recent years I began to suffer with stomach disorders having a lot of gas, sour acid risings and heartburn, although I was careful what I ate.

"I tried just about everything I heard of, but got no relief from these troubles until I began taking Syntona. Since then I've constantly improved and am now so much better that I get around easily with scarcely no pain at all. At the same time this medicine has relieved the headaches, dizzy spells, and stomach distress and I am getting better sleep than I did in years before."

Why not let this Pure Herbal Medicine help you as it has so many other sufferers from common disorders of the stomach, kidneys, liver and bowels? Many people say that even after the first few doses, symptoms begin to disappear and the whole system takes on a new feeling of strength and energy.

Syntona is sold and recommended in Peterborough at Elliott's Drug Store.—(Advt.)

UN Army Being Pushed By Reds Back Into Sea

GETTING OUT—These tired Marines aboard an LCM are among the luckier soldiers to escape from the beachhead at Hungnam. They escaped a Chinese trap some miles from the North Korean coast and fought their way to the port with 60,000 other U.N. soldiers hoping for evacuation. Today, the Chinese trap is closing anew as Red soldiers are now only 2½ miles from the port, despite stiff resistance by forces in the narrow perimeter.

Ask Milk Control Act Revised

HAMILTON, Dec. 15—(CP)—Expressing dissatisfaction with the present authority of the Milk Control Board the Hamilton Milk Producers' Association, Thursday decided at its annual meeting to petition the Ontario Whole Milk League to have the act revised. The petition will ask that, in the event of a breakdown in negotiations between producers and distributors, the Milk Control Board shall be authorized to set prices for the producers as well as the consumers retail price.

Clifford Weaver, president of the Whole Milk League of Owen Sound, said the outstanding fact with regard to negotiations and arbitrations was the determination of the judges and the public to block spiralling prices "at the expense of the Agricultural industry."

Discussing the renewal of bacon and cheese contracts with Great Britain, Mr. Weaver said that the farmers were not going to produce at prices currently offered.

Dr. J. D. MacLachlan, president of the Ontario Agricultural College, spoke of the college's three purposes — education, research and extension. Extension, he said entailed bringing the farmers the most up-to-date information available.

Doctors Discover Sullivan Had Rare Brain Tumor

OTTAWA, Dec. 15—(CP)—Two medical experts today testified that they only lately had become aware that Francis J. Sullivan, alleged to have been bludgeoned to death, suffered from a rare type of brain tumor that may have caused fatal haemorrhaging.

Dr. Harry Dover, coroner, and Dr. G. Lorne Gardner, Chateau Laurier hotel physician, said they had become aware of the fact only through information given them yesterday. Both, however, were uncertain whether this disease, called Angioma, may have been the cause of death in the downtown hotel room Nov. 18.

This development was brought to light in the second day of the preliminary hearing of Mrs. Marion Sullivan, 50-year-old Toronto matron, on a charge of murdering her husband.

Earlier, Douglas H. Boland, Chateau night manager, testified Mrs. Sullivan exclaimed: "My goodness, I am finished!" when told her husband was dead.

Dr. Dover said he was called to examine the body at about 3.30 a.m. Nov. 18. He estimated that by that time Mr. Sullivan had been dead six or eight hours.

Dr. Dover said one reason why he called for an autopsy was the discovery of three sets of marks on the dead man's chest. They appeared to be scratches made by fingernails but he was noe certain.

Mr. Boland said he went to the first-floor room occupied by the Sullivans at 4.30 a.m. EST, Nov. 18.

There, he saw the nude body of Francis J. Sullivan, covered with a blanket. Both shoulders were scratched.

In the room were Mrs. Sullivan and John Stockfish, hotel detective, who had answered Mrs. Sullivan's call to help put her husband to bed.

Mr. Boland said he knelt on the floor and felt Mr. Sullivan's pulse. He told Mrs. Sullivan:

"I think your husband is dead."

Mountie Slayer Olander Hanged

MONTREAL, Dec. 15 (CP). — Joseph Olander, 45, alias Thomas Rossler, a hardened criminal who "liked to live fast," was hanged here early today for the murder of RCMP Constable Alexander Gamman following a robbery attempt here last May 25.

Defiant to the end, Olander walked to the gallows at 12:13 a.m. EST, and was declared dead 12 minutes later.

The Winnipeg-born Olander, whose true identity was discovered one day before his execution following an RCMP investigation, was sentenced to death last Sept. 13 following a two-day trial.

He was captured last June in a little United States town near the Montana-Saskatchewan border following a month-long country-wide manhunt. Shortly after his capture he nonchalantly told Montreal detectives bringing him back that he "liked to live fast. I gambled and I lost."

At his trial he admitted killing the Mountie, but denied planning any shooting.

To his last day of life, Olander took his fate coolly. He told his jail attendants yesterday he thought they ran a "nice hotel" and he wanted to leave them a letter of recommendation.

Assault Farmer Given 8 Years

TORONTO, Dec. 15 (CP)—Two Toronto men who assaulted and robbed an Owen Sound district farmer were each sentenced on Thursday to eight years.

Judge Robert Forsyth told Patrick Swan, 20, and Norman Hanlon, 31, they deserved little sympathy, "assaulting this man the way you did and apparently leaving him to die."

Robert Leifso, 28, who came to Toronto to sell five acres of turnips, met Swan and Hanlon in a beverage room, the court was told. At one point during a tour of taverns, Leifso testified, Hanlon pulled a knife and said: "drive where I tell you or I'll run it through you."

They drove nine miles, Leifso said, and he was ordered to stop and hand over his wallet. He said he knocked both men down but "something hit me on the head and I woke up in hospital 24 hours later."

Mrs. Pitre Breaks Into Tears As Murder Charge Read

QUEBEC, Dec. 15 (CP).—Mrs. Arthur Pitre, 42-year-old sister of Genereux Ruest and associate of J. Albert Guay, today was charged with murder in connection with an airline disaster that took 23 lives in September 1949.

The big, hard-voiced woman sobbed into a handkerchief as the court clerk intoned the act of accusation, a preferred indictment signed by Premier Duplessis as Attorney-General of the province.

Her trial was fixed for Feb. 12 after she was arraigned.

The accusation read that she was an accomplice of Guay and Ruest in the time-bombing of the Canadian Pacific Airlines plane Sept. 9, 1949.

She was called into the prisoner's box as soon as Mr. Justice Fernand Choquette appeared on the bench at 10:40 a.m.

The Crown was represented by assistant counsel Albert Dumontier, K.C., who handed the penned accusation, bearing Premier Duplessis' signature, to a clerk for its announcement.

Mrs. Pitre started to weep as the first words of the charge were read before the half-filled courtroom.

She collapsed, sobbing to the seat of the prisoner's box, and one of two provincial policemen standing beside called a grey-haired matron to her side.

When the clerk asked Mrs. Pitre how she pleaded, there was a silence and finally Irenee Simard, her lawyer, replied:

"Non coupable" (not guilty).

Mrs. Pitre repeated the plea of innocence a few seconds later.

When the clerk asked Mrs. Pitre when she wished to be tried, she said:

"I'm ready, any time will do. As quick as possible."

Sudan Assembly Asks For Self-Government

KHARTOUM, Anglo-Egyptian Sudan, Dec. 15 (AP)—The Anglo-Egyptian Sudan's legislative assembly decided by a one-vote, 39-38 margin today to ask Britain and Egypt for self-government in 1951—a call regarded as a major political development. The Sudan comprises nearly 1,000,000 square miles on the Upper Nile River.

The action came after Egypt's King Farouk reiterated his country's longtime demand that the 8,000,000 people of the Sudan be placed under his rule.

The Sudan, since 1899, has been ruled jointly by Britain and Egypt. Talks are under way now in London between te two governments on Egypt's demands for control of the Sudan and removal of British troops from the Suez Canal zone.

Ask Pearson To Help Truce Talks

Trying To Pave Way For Conference With Small Luncheon

NEW YORK, Dec. 15—(AP) — The new United Nations cease-fire committee today began its Korean peace mission by inviting United States delegate Ernest A. Gross to a private luncheon conference.

Gross has been designated to represent the United States in the truce negotiations. Today's meeting was arranged to get the U.S. views before approaching the Chinese Communist envoy, Gen. Wu Hsiu-chuan.

The three-man committee which includes L. B. Pearson of Canada has not yet arranged a meeting with Wu, informed quarters said.

The first move came amid reports that the cease-fire group might send a representative to Peiping, if necessary. No decision has been taken on this question yet, however, it was said.

Subject To Call

Meanwhile, the 1950 session of the General Assembly wound up all business except the China-Korea problem. It recessed at 12:09 p.m. EST, subject to call of the president. The session opened September 19.

The delegates were told further meetings would be arranged as soon as the cease-fire committee had something to report.

Outspoken Russian opposition promised little success for their efforts, but the committee went ahead nevertheless. The General Assembly president, Nasrollah Entezam of Iran, heads the committee, along with India's Sir Benegal N. Rau. Their move appeared to be to seek from the Red China representative, Wu Hsiu-chuan, what his government considers acceptable cease-fire terms.

The U.S. is reported to have said it will stop fighting if the Reds do the same. Though Wu has made no public statement, Russia's Jakob A. Malik has said the Chinese will withdraw from Korea if foreign—United Nations—troops pull out.

Told To Do Best

The general assembly, with only the Soviet bloc in opposition estaolished the committee Thursday and told it to seek means of halting the Korean fighting.

The assembly was expected to clear its calendar today of all business of this fifth session except the Korean question. But until every acceptable path toward peace here has been explored, it will not adjourn.

Should a case-fire appear to be in the offing soon, President Entezam plans to continue the main body in session next week. Otherwise, while the three-man committee continues to work, he will recess the assembly until after the Christmas holidays.

Since the committee is empowered only to ascertain acceptable terms for a cease-fire, not to issue such an order, the assembly must be in session to call a halt to the fighting.

Seek Savings Burn Man's Feet

STAYNER, Ont., Dec. 15 (CP) —Four thugs burned Erin Louden's feet and ankles with matches Thursday in an unsuccessful effort to force the 60-year-old farmer to reveal the hiding place of his life's savings in government bonds. After ransacking his farm home near this town 45 miles east of Owen Sound, the men left with a gold watch and $80.

Louden said that, at one stage, one of the men pressed a revolver against his head and threatened to shoot. Before leaving, the thugs blindfolded him and tied him to a chair. It took him three hours to free himself and go to a neighboring farm for help.

Child In Bad Shape

SUDBURY, Dec. 15—(CP) —Richard Wood, 5, said by police to have been beaten almost beyond recognition, today was unconscious in hospital and a doctor said his condition was "very poor indeed."

His parents, Mr. and Mrs. Victor Wood, Thursday were remanded in custody to Dec. 22 on charges of inflicting grievous bodily harm. Doctors say the child's injuries include a fractured skull, broken jaw, broken teeth, blackened and bruised eyes, cuts and frozen feet, legs and hands.

Will Lay Charge Of Contempt Against Railmen

CHICAGO, Dec. 15 (AP)—The government today moved to punish striking railroad yard workers.

Attorney-General Howard McGrath announced the government will bring contempt proceedings against the yardmen, who are striking in Chicago and many other key centres of the United States despite court orders issued in Chicago, Washington and Cleveland.

Successful contempt action could lead to heavy fines against the union.

The strikers continued to ignore the court orders. The strike was spreading. It hit home front mail deliveries—particularly parcels—even harder. Today it struck at express.

The Railway Express Agency, Inc., announced an embargo on all shipments in and out of Chicago and St. Louis today. Exempt were drugs, hospital supplies, funeral supplies and government shipments. The agency said a partial embargo is in effect in Washington.

Hit Industrial Output

The union, the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen, is seeking a 40-hour week at 48 hours pay for its yard workers.

The strike already had affected vital shipment of freight and mail, and slowed the industrial output.

The Carnegie - Illinois Steel Company said today one of its 12 blast furnaces at Gary, Ind., had been shut down and four others may be affected shortly. In the company's south works in Chicago, four blast furnaces also have been shut down and remained down today.

The post office department Thursday night clamped a partial embargo on parcel post mailing.

(The new postal restrictions are not expected to have any appreciable immediate effect on Canada. W. J. Turnbull, deputy postmaster general, said in Ottawa that Canadian post offices will not impose any embargo on mail going to the U.S., "unless we are asked to do so by U.S. postal authorities.")

The order came after the strike had "effectively crippled the mail distribution system".

Spread Rapidly

The strike, which started on a small scale in Chicago Wednesday morning and snowballed into

Deep Snow Blocks Travelling In Britain

LONDON, Dec. 15 (AP)—Deep snow and the coldest December weather in 13 years crippled British rail lines and blocked highway travel today.

In Somerset, gales whipped up drifts 15 to 25 feet deep. Dozens of motorists and truck drivers spent the night in their vehicles when the roads became impassable.

Trains in all parts of the United Kingdom ran hours late. Princess Margaret was caught in a Piccadilly traffic jam outside Buckingham Palace which made her 20 minutes late taking off on a flying holiday trip to Malta.

Some villages were isolated. At Dalwhinnie, Scotland, the temperature fell to one below zero—lowest in the British Isles since 1937.

Republicans Ask Ouster Of Acheson

Charge Confidence Of U.S. Citizens Shaken In Secretary

WASHINGTON, Dec. 15 — (AP) — Republicans of the House of Representatives today adopted a resolution calling for the ouster of State Secretary Dean Acheson.

The action was taken at a closed meeting of House party members. Republican leaders said the resolution was approved "overwhelmingly."

The resolution will be taken to President Truman.

In addition to asking for Acheson's replacement, it urges "changes in the personnel and policies responsible for this lack of confidence" in the State Department.

Senate Republicans may take some stand concerning Acheson before the day is over.

Have Lost Confidence

The resolution adopted by a voice vote of the House Republicans says:

"In this critical hour, confidence of the American people in their leadership is essential to our security.

"It is completely obvious that Secretary Acheson and the State Department under his leadership have lost the confidence of the Congress and the American people and cannot regain it.

"Recognizing this fact, we earnestly insist, for the good of our country, that Mr. Acheson be replaced as Secretary of State, and that there be a thorough housecleaning in the State Department and changes in the personnel and policies responsible for this lack of confidence."

The conference was well attended although there were some absentees.

News Service For Patricias

OTTAWA, Dec. 15 — (CP) — Defence Minister Brooke Claxton today announced that daily news bulletins from Canada will be provided to the 2nd Battalion, Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry, in the Far East.

The bulletins will be mimeographed at the base on receipt by cable and mail from Canada. The news is provided without charge by The Canadian Press. The government pays costs of editing and transmission.

The CP bulletins, for which the minister expressed "very warm appreciation," will cover briefly outstanding news developments and will include periodic surveys of sport and other subjects of special interest to the force. The service is to start at once.

Fire Destroys Mill

BURRITT'S RAPIDS, Ont., Dec. 15 —(CP)—Fire of undetermined origin destroyed the Burritt's Rapids Woollen Mills Ltd. early today. The fire spread to two other storage buildings before it was brought under control by residents and the Merrickville Fire Department. Loss was estimated at $75,000. The fire put about 35 employees of the mill out of work in this town 40 miles north of Brockville.

Ontario Council To Consider Teacher Raises

TORONTO, Dec. 15—(CP)—A meeting of the Ontario Trustees Council here Monday will consider requests for salary increase from public and separate school teachers in several communities in the province, as well as a threatened teachers' strike for higher pay in Sudbury.

The trustees are expected to discuss a common policy on dealing with the teachers' requests.

Sixty-two Sudbury secondary school teachers have said they will resign Dec. 31 unless they receive a general increase of $800 a year. The school board has offered $300.

The Kirkland Lake board Thursday night turned down a request from 44 high school teachers for a $600 pay boost. The board there offered a $300 hike.

Reach Stalemate

School boards and teachers at Fort William and Hamilton have reached stalemates. The Hamilton board has suspended negotiations until the new year with teachers seeking increases averaging 20 per cent.

Burlington and Saltfleet, in the Hamilton area, also have reached a deadlock in salary discussions.

Fifty-seven teachers have asked the Kitchener-Waterloo collegiate board for increases of $650 a year. The request was referred this week to a board committee.

Toronto secondary school teachers plan to seek a $1,000 boost next year, instead of the usual $200-a-year increase. Their request has not yet reached the negotiation stage.

Greek Freighter Limps Into French Port

BREST, France, Dec. 15 (AP)—The 3,658-ton Greek freighter, Agios Spyridon, limped into port here today, badly battered by a gale that damaged half a dozen ships on the Atlantic coasts of France and Spain.

A French tug helped the Greek ship into port. One of the crew, badly injured, was sent to hospital.

Two men and a woman from the ship, washed aboard, were picked up by French ships. Five others are believed to have been rescued by the U.S. ship Beaver State.

Two Days Under Rock Slide Report Miner Still Alive

SELLECK, Wash., Dec. 15—(AP)—Rescue workers reported today that a trapped coal miner for whom they had been digging for a day and two nights was alive under a rock slide.

The trapped man was John Wolti, 54. He was trapped in the slide Wednesday afternoon. He had been presumed dead, but rescue workers said Joe Bertelli, one of the rescue crew, had heard Wolti's voice from the slide area.

A telephone girl here, at this town about 5 miles southeast of Seattle, said the rescue members quoted Wolti as having asked from his mine tunnel prison:

"When are you going to get me out of here?"

There were no details immediately available on how he escaped death in the slide of tons of rock. Officials said Thursday there was virtually no hope of the man's having survived.

The rescue workers, who could dig only in pairs in the small opening around the slide area, had held to the slim hope that timbers might have fallen in such a way as to protect Wolti from being crushed under the rock

A bookkeeper at the Big Four Mine Company office, Rosa Martindale, said:

"They don't want anyone to be too optimistic. They say it probably will take all day at least to get him."

She said there still is a solid barrier of rock and gravel between the rescue crew and the trapped man. Rescue workers said the could hear him shouting in reply but there actually was no conversation with him. They added his voice seemed strong.

It was impossible to get any food or other relief to him immediately.

Wild Chinese Rush Tanks, Knife Ahead

Report Penetration Of 38th Parallel By North Koreans

TOKYO, Dec. 15—(AP)—Swarming Communist Chinese attacks drove into the shrinking Allied beachhead in northeast Korea today and roared on tonight with the aim of annihilating the U.S. 10th Corps defenders.

Many Chinese were reported killed in headlong charges of Red infantry and cavalrymen under Allied tank, artillery and air counter-attack and against withdrawing doughboy defences.

But the Reds kept coming onto the blazing flatlands of the Sea of Japan coast in the Hamhung-Hungnam port area.

Cross Parallel

(Meanwhile, Reuters News Agency quoted South Korean headquarters as saying that Communist troops—believed to be North Koreans—crossed the 38th Parallel into South Korea today and penetrated five miles to Kaesong on the west coast.

(The North Korean penetration of the 38th Parallel was the first since UN forces threw them out of South Korea 2½ months ago.)

An American hilltop position near Chunchon, nine miles south of the 38th Parallel, was attacked today, an air force communique based on observations by fighter pilots said. No further details were given.

(The original version of the communique said the attacking troops were Chinese Communists, but this reference was subsequently deleted from the communique by air force headquarters.)

Leap Aboard Tanks

The first major attack on the Hamhung - Hungnam beachhead was made by some 2,500 shouting mounted and foot soldiers who leaped aboard American tanks and tore at them with small wea-

Sell Turkey For $20 Pound

BRANDON, Man., Dec. 15 (CP) —A champion turkey and chicken sold for $20 a pound Thursday night at Brandon's annual poultry and dressed meat show.

D. C. Foster, provincial poultry representative, said the prices paid at the auction of exhibits are Canadian records and may rank as world highs.

The turkey sold for $20 a pound was a 13-pound hen which was bought by a department store.

A seven-pound dressed chicken also brought $20 a pound.

UK Gov't To Dole Out Scarce Zinc Supplies

LONDON, Dec. 15 (Reuters)-Zinc, one of the world's scarcest strategic raw materials, is to be doled out to British companies by the government according to their national importance, it was announced today.

The allocation scheme will start Jan. 1. The shortage in Britain is so severe that some companies using zinc have already been forced to shut down.

News of the scheme was announced in the House of Commons by John Freeman, Parliamentary Secretary to the Supply Ministry.

Council Requests Arena Records

The following clause in the finance committee report, adopted by the council Thursday, was: "That the chairman of the campaign for raising funds for the erection of the Peterborough Civic Arena be requested to place in the custody of the city authorities the list of donors to the fund, so that a complete list may be filed with other city records."

This subject was introduced at the finance committee meeting by Ald. H. Dodds, Monday.

Ald. Dodds recalled that he had been active in the promotion of the Arena in its inception and was "go-between the council and the Arena committee and the public."

"We had a rather tough time getting funds, and the government helped by exempting donations from the income tax. We had the records typed for keeping, and I feel that my job is not done until the council has those records. The last thing I ought to do is to recommend to the council that these records be placed in its custody. I don't know where they are, but the City Arena has failed to get them."

Ald. T. D. Miller: "Is some one withholding the list?"

Ald. Dodds: "Somebody must have it."

Ald. Miller: "Why not pass this on to the Civic Arena committee."

Ald. J. E. Gillespie: "I suppose the chairman of the Arena committee at that time should be approached to get the cards."

He seconded a Miller motion quoted above. "If there was ever a check up it would be lax on our part if the list was not available."

When asked who was chairman of the committee, Ald. Dodds replied "Dick Ouimet."

Committed For Trial In Manitoulin Shooting

LITTLE CURRENT, Dec. 15 — (CP)—Herbert Deering, 29, of Ice Lake, Wednesday was committed for trial on a charge of attempting to murder his wife Georgina.

Deering was arrested Nov. 12, two days after a strange shooting near Ice Lake, 25 miles west of this Manitoulin Island town. His wife, his sister-in-law, Mrs. Robert Deering, and his 10-month-old nephew Charles, were wounded by a single rifle bullet, which penetrated the rear of their car.

Police said the bullet was apparently fired after Deering shouted for his wife to stop.

At Wednesday's preliminary hearing, Andy Wilson, a neighbor, said he and Deering were drinking on the day of the shooting.

Mr. Boland said Mrs. Sullivan replied:

"My goodness, I am finished."

Cross-examined by Royden Hughes, defence counsel, Mr. Boland said he was certain that Mrs. Sullivan exclaimed "I am finished" and not "all is finished" as Mr. Hughes suggested.

The Crown alleges that Mr. Sullivan, 52, chief solicitor for the Ontario Department of Lands and Forests was bludgeoned to death.

Asked About Scratches

Mr. Boland said he asked Mrs. Sullivan how Mr. Sullivan's shoulders came to be scratched.

Mrs. Sullivan replied Mr Sullivan must have suffered them in getting out of bed or falling on the floor.

She first had seen her husband on the floor when she awoke shortly after midnight.

Mr. Boland then told of how Mr. Stockfish put in long distance calls for Mrs. Sullivan.

Dr. R. L. Gardner, hotel doctor, also placed a call to Toronto for Mrs. Sullivan.

Mr. Boland said Mrs. Sullivan had told him Mr. Sullivan had come into the room Friday afternoon and complained of not feeling well. She told him to lie down. She also took a nap. When she awoke she found her husband on the floor.

Dr. Harry Dover, coroner, then arrived and asked Mrs. Sullivan if there had been a scuffle.

Mrs. Sullivan replied there had not, Mr. Boland said.

Mr. Boland said he found the room in normal conditions. An empty liquor bottle and some glasses were on a table.

Russell Lowden, hotel night clerk, testified he had come into the room with Mr. Boland and found things normal.

He also had seen the body of Sullivan on the floor and surmised that he was dead.

At Thursday's hearing, hotel detective Stockfish told of finding Sullivan's body after Mrs. Sullivan had telephoned the hotel desk to help get her husband "back to bed." He had found the man dead.

A possible key to the slaying may lie in broken glass which the police found at the scene of the slaying and—according to previous police reports—in the luggage of the slain man's wife, Mrs. Marion Sullivan, who was arrested some 30 miles from Ottawa while driving back to Toronto.

Stockfish testified Thursday that he uncovered the neck of a soda-water bottle when a bed was moved after the body of Mr. Sullivan was taken from the hotel room.

He said he picked up the glass and placed it on a table. When he returned to the room after being called away for five minutes, the neck of the bottle was missing.

In cross-examination he was asked by defence counsel Royden Hughes why he noticed the missing bottle-top. Mr. Stockfish said he had been a detective for 12 years and did such things automatically. He was not sure at the time that he had not placed the broken bottle-top in his pocket.

Meter Market To Aid Parking

Press and public are getting the wrong "slant" on the purpose in metering the market, said Ald. E. C. Braund at the council meeting Thursday night.

"It has been mentioned more than once that revenue is the main reason for putting in the meters, whereas revenue is secondary to parking space and accommodation in the centre of the business area," Ald. Braund said.

Congestion of cars was increasingly aggravating the parking problem, and it was essential that convenient space should be provided for the people who come to Peterborough for shopping and other business.

Metering should therefore be an advantage to the business men of the city, and to the city as a whole.

Ald. Braund was referring to the metering matter which was introduced by Ald. Dodds.

"I feel we should leave the market as it is until after the first of the year," Ald. Braund said, "but if there ever is a time of the year when the merchants need parking space for their customers and themselves, it is now."

Bequest Furnished Reception Room

Ald. Hugh Waddell dispelled Thursday night another rumor of Civic hospital cost which was mentioned in the form of a question at the sitting of the finance committee Monday.

The prior rumor which was bruited about during the week before the municipal election related to the cafeteria at the hospital, and was subsequently refuted. Opinion in the council was that it was a factor in the recent defeat of the hospital bylaw.

Ald. Waddell recalled last night the later query about a reported expenditure of $2700 for a piano for the nurses residence at Civic Hospital.

He said the information he had obtained was that a piano was bought for the nurses residence at a cost of $1,418.40, and also that their general reception room was decorated and furnished at a further cost of $3,397.49.

"That money was not paid out of public funds," Ald. Waddell said. "It was paid out of a bequest of $5,000 by the late Mrs. Herbert McKee which was for the express purpose of providing and furnishing a reception room for the nurses."

Prices Level Off On Toronto Exchange

TORONTO, Dec. 15 — (CP) — Prices levelled off at their early fractional declines as the session progressed on the Toronto Stock Exchange today.

Activity continued at its quiet slow pace as it has all week.

Industrials eased from a mixed opening. Papers, steels, utilities, foods and refining oils showed a majority of losses in the groupings. Constructions, agricultures and banks tended higher and the rest of the board was mixed.

Base metals declined over a broad front with losses ranging to 50 cents. Noranda bucked the trend and gained the minimum fraction.

Western Oil losses ranged to 25 cents.

Wild Chinese

pons and their bare hands.

Bigger attacks were expected tonight out of the force of 100,000 Chinese ringed around the United Nations forces backed up against the Sea of Japan.

The beachhead was the last refuge in the northeast for around 60,000 Allied troops who were forced to retreat by the Chinese entry into the war late in November.

Two American platoons (possibly 80 to 100 men) were cut off in the initial attack during the day by about 2,500 Chinese, but gunfire in the no-man's land area Friday night indicated they still fought on.

A tank-led column had failed to rescue them.

After over-running some abandoned American outposts, the Reds pulled up briefly to build up for a large-scale assault on Chigyong, eight miles west of Hamhung.

Go To New Positions

The bulk of Allied forces in the slimming beachhead southwest of Hungnam withdrew to new defence positions set up in depth to the seashore.

In Northwest Korea, a two-week lull on the Eighth Army's front was expected to be broken soon by other Chinese hordes. A big Red troop movement on the Eighth Army's right flank in Centreal Korea northeast of Seoul was reported.

Another dogfight prelude to the expected big air war was waged by flashing jets in the extreme northwest corner of the peninsula.

But the sustained assault by Chinese horsemen and infantry on the narrow Hamhung-Hungnam sector in the northeast posed the immediate and serious threat.

Serious Threat

AP correspondent Tom Lambert, with the U.S. 3rd Division, said the Red "advance onto the beachhead's flat plain posed a serious threat to Allied forces backed against the sea." A security blackout shrouded Allied activities elsewhere within the beachhead.

The U.S. 1st Marine and 3rd and 7th Infantry Divisions and elements of two South Korean divisions, a few British Commandos and Puerto Ricans retreated into the beachhead last weekend.

Friday's major attack came after two lighter, probing thrusts were beaten off Thursday.

Reinforcing Chinese still were swarming down the valleys.

American artillery and planes pounded at the Red Forces.

Steeled For Attack

The Chinese warmed up for battle in a drum-beating, bugle-blowing and singing mass rally at Oro, a town six miles northwest of Hamhung abandoned by allied forces 24 hours earlier. U. S. soldiers heard the racket and steeled themselves for attack.

Maj. Thomas Cleary, a 3rd division regimental staff officer, said:

"The Chinese hit first last night and apparently hoped to make a break-through in the night hours. However, a heroic platoon which is now cut off stayed out there directing the artillery fire and the Reds were kept back until Friday morning.

"Then they kept coming until daylight."

The new jet-powered aerial warfare continued over northwest Korea near Manchuria with indecisive results. Fifty-seven sorties in Russian-made Red jets have been counted over that area in the last 10 days.

Gen. MacArthur in his daily war summary took the unusual course of quoting the Red China radio at Peiping for the purpose of "demolishing once more the fiction" that the Chinese fighting in Korea are volunteers, as contended by Communist propagandists.

Order of the Day

The quoted broadcast carried what would normally be construed as an order of the day to troops in the field.

It was a congratulatory message from Gen. Lin Piao on behalf of commanding officers of major units of the Chinese Fourth Field Army and corresponding military districts, MacArthur said. He quoted Lin as saying:

"A great epochal change has been brought forth in the Korean theatre. I fervently hope that you will exert to the utmost to annihilate the invading troops of the imperialists.

"This," MacArthur said, "is the normal language of an army commander addressing his troops."

MacArthur's summary also said "the bottomless well of Chinese Communist manpower in Manchuria continues to flow into Korea."

Backs To Sea

The 10th Corps defenders were fighting with their backs to the sea in efforts to hold the beachhead where about 60,000 Allied troops had been gathered on their general retreat from North-east Korea.

All 10th Corps units were reported safe within the Hamhung - Hungnam perimeter on Monday. Two light probing attacks preceded the heavy jolt now being launched by the 2,500-man Chinese vanguard on Maj.-Gen. Edward M. Almond's forces.

The attack reached major proportions this morning when Chinese infantrymen were reinforced with cavalry, a 10th Corps spokesman said.

By afternoon, "a heavy pressure" developed when a force estimated at battalion strength — 900 men — pounded American lines eight miles west of Hamhung.

In North-western Korea, where the hard-hit Eighth Army awaits its next blow, a spokesman reported artillery being used by Korean Reds. Attacks thereabouts had been small guerrilla tactics.

Choose 50 Girls To Visit Britain

TORONTO, Dec. 15 (CP). — One hundred British and Canadian girls will exchange visits next summer as guests of W. Garfield Weston, the Canadian-born industrialist announced today. Purpose of the two tours is to "develop closer understanding and friendship between Canada and Britain."

The goodwill program began two years ago with a tour of Canada for 50 British boys. Last summer 50 Canadian boys visited Britain while 50 British boys toured Canada.

Mr. Weston said the 50 Canadian girls will sail from Montreal for Liverpool July 13, returning in late August. Fifty British girls will tour central Canada during August.

In Canada girls will be chosen from all 10 provinces and the Yukon and Northwest Territories. All selections will be made through schools by the Canadian Education Association. Average age will be 16.

Washington Unafraid Of Possible Air Raid

WASHINGTON, Dec. 15 (AP). —The possibility that an atomic bomb may hit the United States capital is discussed here a great deal, but so far no Washington residents are taking to the hills. Or, at any rate, not many.

This conclusion was reached today after sampling real estate men's opinions. The survey was far from complete, but those talked to unanimously agreed:

There's no noticeable rush to get out of town.

Only this week a budget official quoted President Truman as saying the government must not flee Washington if enemy air raids should come.

What would happen to the civilian populace under these circumstances, no one knows. Right now, its staying put.

Don't Like Christmas Without Any Snow

TORONTO, Dec. 15—(CP)—Christmas isn't the same without snow and winter festivities, according to two Regina-born globe trotters who spent the last three Christmases in places where people went to the beaches for a swim on Christmas day.

Looking forward to their first Christmas at home since 1947 are Ione Joslin and Kay Clews. They left here by train Thursday night on the last lap of a 45,000-mile world tour.

"Last Christmas we spent in South Africa, the one before that in Australia and the first one away from home in New Zealand," said Ione.

Dollar Climbs

MONTREAL, Dec. 15 (CP). — The American dollar today opened at 5⅛ per cent premium to the Canadian dollar, 1-32 higher than Thursday's close. That is, it took $1.05⅛ Canadian to buy $1 American.

The pound sterling was $2.94⅜, up ⅛.

Arrives In Malta

VALETTA, Malta, Dec. 15 (AP) —Princess Margaret arrived in Malta for a visit tonight after a bumpy air passage from London. She was greeted by her sister, Princess Elizabeth, and Elizabeth's husband, the Duke of Edinburgh.

a full-grown stoppage, Thursday spread to Washington, St. Louis and Alexandria, Va.

There were hints that yard workers in other cities may join in what their union, the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen, has called an unauthorized walkout. However, railroad spokesman in Washington said the strike was "too well organized and the activities of local brotherhood leaders too conspicuous to lend credence to the claim that it was not a planned strike".

About 10,000 rail workers are off the job, the bulk of them in Chicago, but the strike has made idle hundreds of others in some rail-related industries.

Two Tied Tussles Feature Minor Puck Play At Civic

Oddfellows beat Lakefield Lions 3-1, and Clapper's took Trojans 5-3 in two tidy juvenile PMHA fixtures at Civic Arena last night. St. Peter's and Martin-Hewitt midgets battled to a 3-all draw, as Marines rolled to a 8-1 triumph over the midget Trojans. St. Peter's bantams and Empress tied 1-1, with the bantam Trojans downing Otonabee Wolves 6-0.

Lakefield and Oddfellows set a hot pace in a rugged scrap, all goals coming with teams shorthanded. The winners drew seven of the 13 penalties. Spencer and Hope twice combined to score for the victors with Gouley getting the other one, while Sloan counted for Lakefield. Clapper's showed more finesse around the net but both Clappers' and Trojans dished up nice hockey, the losers getting all three penalties. Sullivan scored two, and Stewart, Sanders and Ferguson one each for Clapper's. Mongraw having two assists, and Murdock and Ferguson one apiece. Brioux, Doris and Scriver hit the hemp for Trojans.

Goes To Draw

'Messiah' Sopranos

In Thursday's review of the "Messiah" music given by four United Church choirs Wednesday evening, two lines of type were dropped, so as to make the comments about the soprano soloists confusing. This should have read as follows: Miss Iris Whalon and Mrs. James Goldie were the two soprano soloists. Miss Whalon has a light voice and sang with control and clarity. Mrs. Goldie was outstanding. She revealed the breadth of range, a mastery of technique and a rapport with the music which made it a delight to listen to her She occasionally took liberties—flourishes — with the Handel score which the listener cannot commend.

The End Of A Desperate Crime

Nobody feels any personal satisfaction that Albert Guay and Genereux Ruest have been condemned to hang; nevertheless, as a nation we may be well satisfied that by process of law two men who were guilty of a desperate and vicious crime have been brought to justice, and that the severest penalty has been prescribed for them.

* * *

It was over a year ago, on September 9, 1949, that a Canadian Pacific Airlines plane was wrecked by a bomb which Ruest had made, and which Guay planted, in order to do away with his wife; 23 people were killed when the plane was wrecked at Sault Au Cochon. Guay had calculated that the plane would be lost in the St. Lawrence River, and that traces of the bomb which had caused the wreck would be destroyed. The plan went awry; it was soon made plain that the wreck had been caused by something other than a fault in the plane itself, and with remarkable speed Guay found himself charged with murder.

* * *

What has happened since then is well known to everyone who follows crime news. The story was a sordid one, and the crime itself was certainly one of the most devilish in the history of this country. Albert Guay will hang on January 12; Genereux Ruest will follow him on March 16.

* * *

Of late years there has been much discussion of the defensibility of capital punishment. It has been argued that the state should not take life; that the criminal is a victim of his environment; that no criminal is beyond redemption. The trials of Guay and Ruest should persuade fair-minded people who have argued in this way to re-examine their convictions. In the light of what these men did, and the way in which they did it, can anyone honestly say that they deserve less than the death sentence which has been pronounced upon them? There are criminals for whom one can feel genuine pity, but these men do not belong to that class. They are not victims of circumstance; calculatingly they embraced an evil course, and it is to the credit of this country that it has brought them to a bad end.

Canadian Soldiers Eager To Get Into Korean Fight?

There has been a Canadian Press despatch from Yokohama that the battalion on its way to Korea is just itching to get into the fighting. We do not believe it. Some of the men may be curious about what it feels like to be at the front; others may be fretting about the way in which they will face an enemy and want to get their battle inoculation over with. (The period of waiting before battle is often more agonizing than the battle itself). But no soldier who knows anything about soldiering aches to get under fire, unless he happens to have a personal feud with the enemy. That is rare among Canadians, whose homes have never been violated and land torn by enemy fire.

We have every confidence that when our soldiers now in the Far East finish their training they will give a good, brave account of themselves, if they are sent in to do battle in Korea. But they are not brainlessly, fecklessly 'dying to get into the fight'.

Mr. Truman As A Letter Writer

Whatever else may happen to him, it is unlikely that President Truman will be remembered in history as one of the great letter writers of his time. During the past fortnight he has apparently written in a most unbuttoned manner to a music critic who had adversely criticised the singing of Miss Truman, and he has used strong words of condemnation to another man prominent in the political life of the U.S.A. It was said of President Lincoln that when angry he wrote violent letters and then destroyed them; Mr. Truman, unhappily, lets them get into the post-box.

Many a man has, at one time or another, wanted to flatten the nose of a music critic or a drama critic, or a book reviewer, or some other person who has offended him. Indeed, there are many instances on record of notable revenges which have been wrought upon critics by angry men. We are not altogether sure that it is not a good thing for a critic to write under the chastening consciousness that he may have to defend himself against those whom he has aspersed. It is easy to become vain and cruel in a critic's position, and to lose that sympathy with artists which alone renders criticism acceptable. But in the instance of Mr. Paul Hume, who said that Miss Truman sang flat, there seems to have been no critical malice involved; he merely said what other critics have been saying for two or three years. Perhaps Mr. Truman thinks that the disesteem in which his daughter is held by music critics is the result of political spite. In any case his letter to Mr. Hume must go down in history as a prize instance of indiscretion.

Unfortunately a man in a high position is not free to express his resentment of real or fancied slights. He must retain a dignified silence under small irritations, and must swallow many a bitter pill. If his daughter's singing is unfavourably criticised, he must keep his annoyance to himself; if he thinks that another man has behaved in an unworthy manner, he must refrain from putting his opinion in writing. He must, in fact, behave with angelic patience and superhuman dignity. Otherwise he lets himself in for a good deal of public mortification.

P.M. Foregoes Festivities

Prime Minister St. Laurent is optimistic that there will be no general war for many months. He referred lightly to the 50-1 odds under which Lloyds of London have insured the Canadian Philatelic International Exhibition, scheduled to open in Toronto next September, against hostilities interfering with it. Nevertheless Mr. St. Laurent is not subordinating matters of state to holiday celebrations. He is scheduled to fly to London for a Commonwealth conference of prime ministers on either December 31st or January 1st. In Quebec, and with Mr. St. Laurent's household, New Year's is the major festival day, not Christmas. He will forego its home joys.

This conference will be important to Canada. Of late years this country has increasingly allied its external policies with those of the United States. If we are to keep the balance straight we must not let our connection with London and the other Commonwealth capitals get too slack. It is well to remember at this time when American policy in Far East affairs is under a cloud, that Canadian policy is not based on Washington any more than it is based on London. Canada continues to have the advantage, and should not lose it, of close consultation with her sister Dominions and with Whitehall whose experience in formulating and carrying out policy touching on foreign countries has been long, and, on the whole, successful.

When the Commonwealth prime ministers gather in London they will represent the largest, most important and most enduring bloc of democratic nations which exists. It is well that they should meet at this time and make their common voice heard.

Speculation About Korea

Until there is more information from the war front and the present withdrawal of American and U.N. forces is completed, and until China's intentions are clear, there is little value in speculating about what will happen there and what is actually happening now. Who is which side of the 38th parallel? Is the superior American air force bombing Manchuria with a fury that only hell can know? Will U.N. forces succeed in putting up some kind of defence barrier south of the Parallel? Will sheer Communist weight push the U.N. army right out of Korea? Can the U.N. establish, in that event, and hold two tiny beachheads as springboards in an all-out attack, or as bargaining points? The beachheads could be centred around Inchon and the second at Pusan. The capture of Inchon last September was the prelude to MacArthur's 'victory'. Pusan was a beach-head in the earlier days of the campaign. This is speculation and speculation at this moment is of little value.

NOTE AND COMMENT

A physicist says that electrons and protons are perpetually at war. Don't tell us that we have to take sides in that one!

A man who has just married a well-known Hollywood star says that he expects his marriage to last for about five years. That's realism!

A naturalist says that the whale has no sense of smell. Obviously, or it would not be able to stand being a whale.

The Ontario Liquor Control Board is reported to be looking for extra warehouse space. It seems that the latest ship into Halifax brought 18,000 cases of "Scotland's best known export". We are sure that there must be many kind-hearted people in Ontario who would gladly offer their cellars or attics as temporary storage space. And what about all the big school basements? Just the place to store carloads of Scotch jokes.

Notes And Queries

By ALPHA

Questions are solicited for this column particularly those relating to local lore and tradition.

UP TO DATE: That is the name of a book printed by the Times Printing Company of Peterborough in 1895 or 96 (the author dates the finis 14 April 1895). A local bibliophile lent it to me for my inspection. I know almost nothing about Peterburiana and this may be a book familiar to many of my readers. To me it was a surprise, something of a mystery and certainly interesting. Its author is one "Captain" George S. Thompson. It is autobiographical—or pretends to be—and the author was engaged in the lumbering business (chiefly around Fenelon Falls, Apsley, Haliburton, Minden and Algonquin) from 1869 until he went insane in 1893, after which he wrote this book. He says he began it in the Queen Street Asylum, Toronto.

THE man's career is so fantastic that it is probable. He says he was born in India about 1848, where his mother, whom he never knew, died. He was brought by his father (a soldier or officer) and a governess called Annie (he never discovered her last name) to England. After a while his English father and this woman went to New Orleans, where the father took a different name, for reasons which he did not explain to the child. Father was killed fighting for the South in the Civil War; Annie was lost sight of, and the boy was left homeless and nameless. He later worked his way back to England, tried to gain entry into some of the great mansions to which he thinks his father took him visiting when he was a child (he felt that he was of noble—at least titled—birth) but was turned away by the servants. So he took ship for Quebec. He offers to give any reader proof of his noble lineage. A facsimile of his autograph and the coat of arms of his father's family are offered for one dollar. Proceeds to go to a fund to build a home or retreat "for those dear brothers and sisters that I left behind in the asylum". It should be explained that by the time he finished this book he had become religious, and had been baptized into the Roman Catholic church.

ON board was a youth named George Thompson who was going out to a brother living in Haliburton. Our author had a ticket for Chicago. For adventure, or on a whim, they changed tickets, clothes and names, and he, our author, now posing as George Thompson, arrived in Haliburton. The 'brother' there had not seen the real younger brother, knew little about him or his family's life back in England, so the deception passed off successfully, it seems. This part of the story is the most incredible in the book, but the details, place-names, dates and people mentioned throughout the rest of the story have an air of authenticity; and the man himself is nakedly revealed. There are lapses from literacy in the writing of it which make it ring true.

Our author Thompson learns the bush business from the ground up to supervisor of camps, and makes some big deals, which flop because of politicians' and entrepreneurs' unscrupulousness. Worry over his debts and deteriorating affairs unbalances him mentally. He becomes a penniless wanderer in the States and twice tries to commit suicide. That leads to the asylum, for seven or eight months.

HE says about Peterborough: "I have always felt at home when in the town of Peterborough where some of my best and dearest friends reside.

"Peterborough, ever since I first knew it, was always a lively go-ahead place, and is to-day, without any exception, the smartest and best business town in Canada.

"The men are nearly all good business 'heads'—full of business and of fun. They are kind and hospitable to strangers, no matter where they hail from or what they are. The women, taken together, are the most beautiful I ever met in any town of its size or any place I have ever been in—and they are just as good and kind as they are lovely. (One wonders how he found them, taken singly! He confesses in his book to having an eager eye and no chastity in his palmy days.) I am deeply grateful to, and extremely proud of, the people of Peterborough; nothing pleases me better than to be called a Peterborough boy."

It looks as if the author were trying to make sales for his book "Up To Date or The Life of a Lumberman" in Peterborough!

HE says he was the first person to introduce stoves into lumbermen's cook-houses. (At the time he was a camp superintendent): "I introduced stoves to do the cooking on, and it was in one of my shanties that the first stove manufactured by Mr. Adam Hall of Peterborough, who makes the now celebrated shanty cook stoves was first tried. I gave him a few suggestions how to build the first one, and it proved a great success, and soon got other orders for them. I found our cooks could do much better and cheaper than cooking on the old camboose."

Among the advertisements at the back of the book is one inserted by Adam Hall firm (its plant used to be on Simcoe street near the railway tracks). The stove advertised is a "No. 10—Six Hole Range—Used in Lumber Camps". "It has a Capacity to Cook for 75 men. Weighs 500 pounds.... Fire Box, 28 inch-Wood ..price $50."

Any information any reader can give me about Captain Geo. S. Thompson will be vastly appreciated. There must be some residents of Peterborough, Minden, Apsley, Bobcaygeon or Fenelon Falls, who knew the author of this book, knew of his family and descendants, when and where he died, etc. Alpha is vastly titillated about him.

ALPHA: What kind of independence has Canada got if it is ruled by a British King? How many hundreds of thousands of dollars does Canada give each year to support King George and all the royal family in England?

ANSWER: King George of Britain is also King of Canada. He is a constitutional monarch, owes his throne to the will of the people and in all matters of state and legislation, acts according to the wish of the people as expressed by Parliament. The King's deputy in Canada is the Governor-General who is, in fact, selected by the Canadian Government. So as far as the throne goes, Canada is not under a sovereign's thumb. When King George is speaking or acting as King of England he is not acting or speaking on behalf of Canada. When he is directly or through the Governor-General, acting on Canadian matters, he is doing so as King of Canada, not King of England.

While Canada has a King it doesn't pay one cent toward his expenses or those of other members of the royal family. Canada provides the Governor-General with an official residence, some of his staff, and pays him a salary of £10,000 in addition to other sums for travel and the like.

The British Government provides King George, through the Civil List Act, with £410,000 a year, about $1,230,000. This includes: for personal use (H.M. Privy Purse) £45,000; for salaries of H.M. Household and retired allowance £134,000; expenses of the Royal Household £152,800; for Royal Bounty, alms and special services £13,200.

In addition, the Civil List provides the Queen Mother Mary with an annuity of £70,000, Princess Elizabeth £40,000 (it was £15,000 before her marriage); the Duke of Edinburgh £10,000; Princess Margaret £6,000.

Not much of this money comes directly out of the taxpayers, for the King and his predecessors surrendered their life interest in great royal estates in exchange for the Civil List. The revenue from these estates (such as the Duchy of Lancaster) goes into the national treasury.

THE HOUSE BY THE SIDE OF THE ROAD

Letter To The Editor

THE GOSPEL IN EARLY BRITAIN

Sir: Replying to "Catholic" in your issue of Dec. 4th, I wish to say that I have no desire to hurt my R.C. friends, of whom I have many, and who are sincere in their belief as taught by their church. I also have relatives of the R.C. faith who would not look at a Bible, but who always go to their priest for decision, for they claim the Bible is too hard to understand. But God says to search the Scriptures, for holy men of old were inspired by the Holy Spirit to write them, and they were given to us for reproof, for correction, and for instruction in righteousness.

That blessed book tells us that Jesus gave His precious life to cleanse us from all sin, and that He is the only mediator between God and man and when we put our trust in Him He gives us (note not will give) eternal life, there is no purgatory in the Bible because Jesus is an all-sufficient Saviour. He suffered for us, that we might be made the heirs of God. Neither is penance mentioned once, but repentance is often commanded.

So let us search the scriptures as Christ told us to do and not depend on traditions or works of sinful man. You did not mention what I said about Pope Gelasius in 494 condemning the article as heretical about the assumption of Mary, nor what I said about his offering a sacrifice for his cleansing after the birth of Jesus. Mary is seldom mentioned in the Bible but all Christians honour her for being the chosen one to give our Saviour birth and in Luke 1: 46 and 47 Mary says "My soul doth magnify the Lord and my spirit hath rejoiced in God my Saviour," thereby acknowledging her need of a Saviour.

I still must affirm that the R.C. church was the first to leave the religion of the founders of our Christian faith and bring in heresies for which there is no Bible foundation. You claim Peter as the first Pope. Yet the Bible never once mentions Peter as even having been in Rome, but tradition does say that Linus a British prince was the first bishop of Rome, however, we do not depend on tradition.

In the British Review of Oct. 1869 on page 130, one of your own most learned R.C's said that the passage of the Catholicism of the Fathers to that of the modern Popes was accomplished by falsehood etc. This man's name was Lord Actan.

Your own diets all subscribe to the fact that Joseph of Aramatheaa brought the gospel in all its purity to Britain in the 1st century, long before there was a "Roman" Catholic church.

May God help us all to see in Jesus the one and only Saviour who saves us from all our sins and who does not need any help from anyone to accomplish our full salvation.

MRS. R. BONNEY.

Havelock.

Bible Message

(From the Authorized Version)

And God said, Let the waters under the heaven be gathered together unto one place, and let the dry land appear: and it was so. And God called the dry land Earth; and the gathering together of the waters called the Seas: and God saw that it was good.

And God said, Let the earth bring forth grass, the herb yielding seed, and the fruit tree yielding fruit after his kind, whose seed is in itself, upon the earth: and it was so. And the earth brought forth grass, and herb yielding seed after his kind, and the tree yielding fruit, whose seed was in itself, after his kind: and God saw that it was good. (Gen. 1: 9-12.)

The heavens declare the glory of God; and the firmament sheweth his handywork. Day unto day uttereth speech, and night unto night sheweth knowledge. There is no speech nor language, where their voice is not heard. Their line is gone out through all the earth, and their words to the end of the world. (Ps. 19: 1-4.)

O Lord, thou art my God, I will exalt thee, I will praise thy name; for thou hast done wonderful things; thy counsels of old are faithfulness and truth. (Isa. 25: 1.)

Shew me thy ways, O Lord; teach me thy paths. Lead me in thy truth, and teach me; for thou art the God of my salvation; on thee do I wait all the day. (Ps. 25: 4, 5.)

Auto Prices

(Windsor Star)

Prospective automobile purchasers will get a shock at new increases in prices. These will dig further into the pockets of people who are able to scrape up the money, and they will deprive another segment of citizens of the opportunity of buying a new car, through sheer inability to pay.

The price increases, however, emphasize the difficulty of holding the price line on manufactured products in face of rising costs of materials and workmanship. The profit margin (much of it designed for future renewals and expansions) is squeezed between these higher costs and the prices, unless the prices can rise also.

An argument can be made that profits can stand some squeezing. This overlooks the unfairness of secondary industries being asked to accept this squeeze on their profits while primary industries, such as steel, have no such pinch.

We do not suggest wages are the only ingredient in high prices. They are but one cause, varying in each industry as they rise.

The workers, of course, also know what a squeeze is. For them it is between their wages and the higher costs of living, and it is very real.

One wonders how long it can continue, until some higher authority steps in and stops it.

"It seems to me that teaching juniors how to make hand-grenades out of cocoa-tins denotes a Leftish tendency."

Christmas Trees Plentiful, 1949 Prices

By The Canadian Press

Christmas trees are plentiful in Canada this year at prices about the same as in 1949.

A Canadian Press survey today shows that most families will probably pay from $1 to $4 for the evergreen under which gaily-wrapped gifts will be heaped Christmas Eve. Prices depend on where the tree is purchased, its height and species.

Rural dwellers who can take home an excellent tree from their own woodlots have no worries about prices. But catering to city families has built the Canadian Christmas tree trade into a $2,500,000 seasonal industry which last year involved the cutting of almost 11,000,000 evergreens, most of them for export.

Tree prices are higher in Canada's big cities than in smaller centres. Toronto prices, for instance, range from $2 for a four-foot scotch pine to $20 for a 20-footer, with spruce slightly cheaper. In Ottawa, however, the peak is about $4 for a tree suitable for a school auditorium and most householders pay $2 to $2 50 for a seven-foot spruce or balsam.

Depends on Size

British Columbia firs sell in Edmonton at $1 to $5, depending on size. In Vancouver the most popular buy is a pine or a spruce at $1 to $3. Black spruce trees are on sale in Winnipeg at 75 cents to $1.50.

Eight-foot balsam's bring $5 in Halifax. Oversized trees for parks sell for $30.

Scottish pines went on sale in Galt at $2 for medium-sized trees and $1 to $2.50 for spruce. Evergreens at the Farmers' Market in St. Catharines, mostly spruce and balsam, were offered last Saturday at upwards of $1.

The Montreal Association for the Blind is staging a campaign to sell 40,000 trees in Montreal this week at prices ranging from $1 for a three-foot tree to $3 for one 15 feet tall. Delivery costs 25 cents extra. Volunteer workers are handling the sales and Boy Scouts are keeping sales racks filled.

Ornamental centrepieces of silvered evergreen and pine cones are on sale in some centres. The price in Woodstock is $1.50.

Mexican Misiletoe

With a three-year embargo lifted, Mexican mistletoe is on sale in Vancouver at $3 a pound. British Columbia holly, usually sold in Vancouver at $1 a pound, is $1.25 this year and growers say the boost is due to weather damage to the crop early in the year.

Fire chiefs again are warning against the danger of trees catching fire. They say a tree should be set in water, with the butt tapered off so that it will absorb moisture, and that it should be kept well away from radiators or other sources of heat. They add that a colored spotlight focussed on a decorated tree is highly effective and probably the safest method of tree lighting.

Something to remember

This is one of a series of words and expressions whose origins and meanings are published in the interest of a better understanding, use and knowledge of the English language.

"KING-BIRD"

A common inhabitant of Canada during the summer months, the name of this species comes from the way in which the male assumes firm authority over other birds, attacking them furiously as they fly. This happens only in breeding time and he will courageously assault any bird, from an eagle down, which dares to approach his nest.

On such occasions the "King-Bird" reveals the emblem of his dignity—the erectile feathers of the crown of the head part and form a deep beautifully colored base.

Re-appoint Chartrand Liberal Party Whip

TORONTO, Dec. 15 — (CP) — Aurele Chartrand, member of the Ontario Legislature for Ottawa East, Thursday was re-appointed Liberal Party whip for the Legislature session starting Feb. 1. Ross A. McEwing, member for Wellington North, was elected party caucus chairman for 1951.

Another decision of a party caucus Thursday was to endorse Farquhar Oliver as House leader for the coming session. This was at the request of the party's new Ontario leader, Walter Thomson.

Mr. Thomson, member of parliament for Ontario Riding, said earlier this week he has made no decision about the possibility of resigning his Commons seat and seeking election to the Legislature.

Gold Mine Firms To Talk With Cabinet

TORONTO, Dec. 15 —(CP)— The future of Canadian gold mines in the light of reduced Federal cost-aid subsidies will be discused when a delegation of mining associations meet a Cabinet committee in Ottawa December 28, a delegation representative said Thursday.

V. C. Wansbrough, executive director of the Canadian Metal Mining Association, said more specific topics within this frame of reference remain to be worked out.

Other associations to be represented in the delegation are the Ontario Mining Association, Western Quebec Mining Association, the Mining Association of British Columba, and the Mid-West Mining Association.

The Cabinet committee will be composed of Prime Minister St. Laurent, Trade Minister Howe, Finance Minister Abbott, Revenue Minister McCann, Justice Minister Garson, Mines Minister Prudham, and any other Cabinet ministers in Ottawa at the time.

A revised cost-aid formula announced in October reduced the subsidy to gold mines by $2 an ounce. Producers also claim that by changing the base year on which payments are figured, the number of ounces on which the subsidy is paid will be substs tially reduced, and marginal mines may have to go out of business.

US War Plants To Be Increased

WASHINGTON, Dec. 15 (AP) —A rapid build-up of United States war plants is essential to meet the serious threat of a global conflict, Defence Secretary George Marshall has told Congress.

Marshall expressed his views in secret hearings before the House of Representatives Military Appropriations Sub-Committee on an emergency $16,844,000,000 request for more military funds. The sub-committee made the testimony of Marshall and other military officials public today.

Marshall said "emphasis on production is the way to begin" to strengthen the nation's sinews. He said the important thing is "to lay down the assembly lines, the tooling, the jigs and so forth, so that we can quickly build up what may be necessary."

The huge money bill— assured of Congressional approval this year — boosts to $41,481,000,000 the amount sought to fight the Korean war and to expand and maintain the military forces through next June 30.

Leafs Lash Chicago 7-1 As Wings Trip Bruins 4-2

By MEL SUFRIN,
Canadian Press Staff Writer.

Detroit Red Wings and Toronto Maple Leafs are threatening to make a runaway of the 1950-51 National Hockey League schedule.

The two power-packed teams which have occupied the top positions almost since the season began, demonstrated their mastery over the rest of the pack again Thursday night by taking comparatively-easy victories.

The Red Wings, in second place just four points behind the Leafs, scored early and then coasted to a 4-2 victory over the fifth place Boston Bruins in a dull game at Detroit before 10,193. At Chicago, the Leafs routed the third place Black Hawks 7-1 before 9,244.

The two cities, among the most rabid in the league, usually produce an attendance total between them of around 30,000 The reduced interest may be a fair indication that hockey fans aren't finding too much to cheer about in what is developing into a rather lopsided standing.

Well Ahead

As a result of Thursday night's games, Leafs are on top with 40 points and Red Wings are next with 36. Then there is a 10-point gap to Chicago with 26. Montreal Canadiens, the only team in the league which has higher attendance this season than last, has 23, Boston 21 and New York 18.

The fans who stayed away from Thursday night's games didn't miss much.

The Red Wings jumped into a two-goal lead in the first eight minutes and had enough goals to earn their victory margin when Leonard (Red) Kelly, the team's high-scoring defenceman, made it 3-0 just before the period ended.

Ted Lindsay got the first tally with Sid Abel and defenceman Bob Goldham helping, while Gordie Howe got the second, Goldham picking up his second assist. Abel set up the play for Kelly's goal.

Rookie Clare Raglan finished the Detroit scoring early in the second period on a passing play with Jim McFadden and Leo Reise. It was Raglan's first NHL goal.

Take Things Easy

The Red Wings took things easy from then on, and Boston was able to score only when the winners were a man short. Johnny Pierson tallied while Goldham was off at 8:58 of the second period, and then got an assist when Pete Horeck bagged the final goal with less than 30 seconds left in the listless tilt.

Red Wings, who have apparently decided from experience that penalties are their biggest worry, steered clear of hard checking. Boston did the same and the result was a game that had a paddy-cake tempo at times. The teams split the six penalties.

In Chicago, Leafs were bounding back after two successive defeats by the Red Wings. Sid Smith, Harry Watson, Danny Lewicki and Flem Mackell hit for four unanswered opening-period goals.

The Chicago defence was ineffective against a withering Leaf attack that was maintained despite a wide early-game lead. Joe Klukay made it 5-0 for the single second-period goal and Lewicki got his second followed by Max Bentley to wind up the Toronto scoring in the final frame. Bill Mosienko saved Hawks from a shutout when he connected at 8:37 on a passing play with Lee Fogolin and Ray Powell.

Hi Lee Matched With Layton

Decision to give mat fans one more show before the Christmas holidays, was reached when it was found Lord Athol Layton was available for the main bout. His opponent at the Brock Arena next Tuesday night will be towering Hi Lee, the Ozark giant. What a match this should be, with both men scaling better than 6 feet, 6 inches in height. Both have a tremendous arm reach, with Layton holding a decided edge in this department.

Hi Lee will be the heavier of these two powerful grapplers, with about a 30-lb. advantage, but Layton knows more ring tricks and has his famous chop stroke to rely on. Fans will love to watch him straighten out Lee with this treatment.

Layton is training hard for this one. He wants a shot at Watson's Empire title and will tackle anybody to build up the evidence that he's ready. If he wins from Lee a match with Atkins, and then the winner against Whip after Christmas, will be worth shooting for.

Two other good bouts will be announced tomorrow.

Jockey Gives Up Chance To End Exile

By JAMES FOWLER.

MIAMI, Fla., Dec. 15 (AP) — Jockey Don Meade, with tears in his eyes, Thursday withdrew his application for a year's probationary riding licence—two days before he could have ended a five-year exile.

In doing so, the 37-year-old "bad boy" of racing took the Florida State Racing Commission off an uncomfortably hot seat of its own creation.

Meade was granted the probationary licence last Saturday by a commission vote of 3 to 1. Chairman Leo Edwards of Miami, vice-president of the National Association of Racing Commissioners, vigorously opposed the action. He contended the action was in violation of the National Racing Association.

The jockey was suspended March, 1945, at the Hippodrome De Las Americas in Mexico City after insulting a steward. He tried unsuccessfully in New York and New Jersey to get reinstated.

Feels Badly

Meade appeared before the commission to submit a letter of withdrawal. He began to read it in a halting voice, then tears streaked down his cheeks and he flipped the letter on the table and left.

"I'm withdrawing," he choked. "I seem to have caused a big stink and it looked like I was putting every one in the middle. So I'm withdrawing my application."

His letter read:

"The other day you gentlemen gave me a Christmas present. It was the finest Christmas present I ever got. Today, as much as I hate to, I'm going to give it back to you. . . .

Commissioners Pleased

"Gentlemen, I have a wife and three children and a fourth child is expected any hour. Last Saturday, my wife and I were the happiest people in the United States. Today, we are broken-hearted.

"When I applied for a licence to race in Florida, I had no idea all the trouble it was going to cause. Therefore, I withdraw my application."

The withdrawal brought immediate results. A. S. Drew of New Orleans, chairman of the National Association of Racing Commissioners, said plans to move the scheduled national convention from Miami Beach had been dropped. He also refused Edwards' telephone offer to resign as vice-president.

Curling News

By HERB MARTIN

The final games—primary and consolation—in the ladies' vice-skips' bonspiel were played yesterday afternoon, and the curling was good. When you consider it was the first time that these vice-skips were playing as skips in a big event, the showing they made is all to their credit. They are the coming skips of the club; and we offer congratulations to all.

While we are on this subject of final games, we have a suggestion to make to the ladies: Would it be possible to have final games played in the evening? We believe there are many men who would like to see these games. We always think there is more kick to a final game than just the ordinary schedule game.

With the passing of Edward Gregory at Lindsay, the curlers of Lindsay and of the province have lost a real friend. He was one of the old school and played the game for the game's sake. He had played in Peterborough many times, and was a favorite. He will be greatly missed.

SPORTS SHOW WINDOW

By CEC. PERDUE, Sports Editor

A few further facts gleaned from the 1950 senior lacrosse club report presented by Paul Irwin. The average gate receipts indicate a dollar decrease of five per cent over '49, but then the club had just a 28-game schedule and two playoff games compared to a 36-game schedule the year before. Income was less but economies were effected to keep within the budget. Weather report showed fine weather for six home games, fair for two, threatening for four, very cold for one, rain for three and one tilt rained out. The final with Owen Sound had to be played in Civic Arena as it was raining here when it came time to notify Owen Sound re possibilities of play.

* * * * * * *

The OLA Petes won two of four games from Brampton, one of four from Hamilton, three from Mimico, none from Owen Sound, one from St. Kitts, and four each over Toronto and Weston. Won but one of five playoffs against Owen Sound, the team which went on to take the Mann Cup title as Dominion senior champs. Petes had tough luck to be drawn against the Sounders first thing in playoffs. Five local losses were by but one goal and two by only two goals. The report praised Ken Kingston and Walt Murphy for their PMLA work, as well as Lou Vitarelli and Frank Patterson for bringing an OLA junior "B" crown here. Fans, officials, players and press were thanked.

Panthers And Links

Port Hope Panthers play the local Oddfellows (also known as Triple Links or IOOF) in an OHA junior "B" game here tonight. It's at 8.30 in Civic Arena, and deserves a fat Friday night crowd of puck followers. Trailing the top-place Belleville Rockets by a single point now, the IOOF-ers have a chance this eve of getting back on the top rung, though they know the Panthers will extend 'em plenty all the way. Bun Kingdon's young hustlers have been dishing up crowd-pleasing hockey lately and aren't up around the top by accident. However, they'll have to keep up the pace as it's a tight group race with all clubs much in the hunt at present.

* * * * * * *

And that's a scrambly sort of senior "B" puck race, too, eh? Nylons knock off Eagles after being bumped by Petes, and darned if the latter don't lose three to the Eagles. Belleville trims the high-flying Eagles handily twice but lose to the tail-end Queen's crew. And so on. You just can't figure it yet. Eagles and Petes appear the pick of the lively group at the moment, but every team in there has an excellent chance of finishing in first place. Yes, even the revamped Queen's Combines could come on strongly from here on in to pull a lot of upsets. Well, that makes for an interesting schedule. Interlocking games with Gananoque count in the standing, as well.

* * * * * * *

"Well-Watered Pond"

Queen's are at Belleville tonight, while the Petes play Nylons in Kingston. Nylons beat Belleville 7-3 the other evening to take a tighter grip on third place. The standing is in tonight. Petes are at Belleville on Monday, while the Eagles are idle until next Wednesday when Queen's come here. Monday at the local arena is junior night, Belleville and Oddfellows tangling. Quinte columnist calls the Jock Harty Arena in Kingston a "well-watered pond that they call ice." And he adds: "Some day a player is going to get knocked whacky down there and may drown before help can arrive." Hm, looks like the start of a Belleville-Kingston feud.

* * * * * * *

Lots of keen action seen at Civic last gloaming with six PMHA games dished up. Oddfellows had to step to beat Lakefield Lions 3-1 in one juvenile joust, and Clapper's had to do likewise to take Trojans 5-3 in the other. St. Peter's midgets and Martin-Hewitt drew 3-all in neat play, whereas the midget Marines rolled through Trojans 8-1. There was also a tied tilt in the bantam division. St. Peter's and Empress deadlocked 1-1 in good hockey. The bantam Trojans proved too strong last p.m. for Otonabee Wolves and walked off with a 6-0 decision. Plenty of promising young puckists in this setup, the PMHA-ers going every Thursday night.

Here and There In Sport

By The Canadian Press

Madison Square Garden, that vast indoor truck farm specializing in rhubarbs and cauliflowers, is 25 years old today, but the silver anniversary is being celebrated without fanfare.

There will be no intimate little gathering of the family and the presentation of a gold watch for long service, as is the case when some loyal employee reaches that milestone. There will just be another boxing program, an event as routine as a morning shave.

But to those who reflect on its history the big arena is crowded with memories. Memories of gripping drama, of comedy, of thrills, of disappointments, even of tragedy.

Built primarily as a home for Tex Rickard's fight shows, the Garden through the years has become the core of practically every activity. Name it, and the chances are the Garden has seen it, whether it is a track meet, hockey match, basketball game, ice show, dog show, circus, rodeo, artistic concert, weight lifting tournament, polo match, political rally, flower show or baking exhibit.

Youth came into its own at the northern New Brunswick village of Shippegan Thursday when management of the Shippegan Arena was handed over to 15 ten-agers. Any financial balance after the season ends will be divided among them.

One of the first actions by the newly-formed Shippegan Junior Athletic Association was to permit use of the arena by school children from 4 p.m. to 5 p.m. daily for hockey purposes, with Tuesday evenings also reserved for children.

Montreal Canadiens dug into their amateur affiliations again Thursday, this time for scoring strength.

They announced that Bernie (Boom Boom) Geoffrion, high-scoring right-winger of Nationale Juniors, will play on a lend-lease basis Saturday night in Montreal against New York Rangers.

If Geoffrion shows well he will be used for the three-game limit of the amateur-pro lend-lease agreement.

It was also announced that efforts are being made to get permission to use two other well-liked scorers, Dick Gamble of Quebec Aces of the senior group and Jean Beliveau of Quebec Citadels, a bright prospect who refused to turn professional at the start of this season.

AmericanLeague Players Shatter Many Records

CHICAGO, Dec. 15 (AP). — American League players shattered or tied 67 major and American League records during the 1950 baseball campaign. The assaults on the record books became official today.

Boston's 20-4 victory over St. Louis June 7, followed by a 29-4 victory over the Browns the next day, helped the most to boost to 22 the assortment of major-league marks cracked.

Most involved such features as most runs by one club, most bases most hits in one game, and so forth.

Thirteen A.L. records were set, topped by a grand total of 973 home runs—90 more than the old mark of 883 booked in 1940.

Sixteen players slammed 20 or more homers, a total tying a major league record.

Afield, New York's Phil Rizzuto added two league marks—288 chances at shortstop without a bobble, and another of 58 straight errorless games at that position. Detroit's Hoot Evers hoisted another with only one error in 341 chances in the outfield.

Gerry Priddy, another Detroit ace, assisted in 150 double plays—a major league high for second sackers.

Co-Champions

For the second successive season, co-champions in runs batted in were crowned. Vern Stephens and rookie Walt Dropo, both of Boston, each drove in 144. Neither could break the stalemate and bang across a run in the final game against New York.

Stephens and another teammate, Ted Williams, tied in 1949 with 159 each.

A total of 11 players batted in more than 100 runs in 1950, six more than last year.

Williams repeated as slugging champion with a .647 clip through 89 games on 334 times at bat and 216 total bases. New York's Johnny Mize was second with .595.

Third-baseman Eddie Yost of Washington drew the most bases on balls, 141; Chicago's Gus Zernial struck out the most times, 110; and Bill Hitchcock of Philadelphia drove into 30 double plays, three more than Cleveland's Al Rosen.

Mercantile Trundlers Stage A 'Chicken Roll'

The annual Mercantile Bowling League chicken roll—not counted in the regular schedule—saw Mary Morton take top single for the girls with 270 as Eleanor Thorburn led in triples with 628. For men Harold Mesley hit a neat 321 single and Don Penrose banged out best three of 695. Blind scores were taken by Harvey Staunton 187, Louis Carveth 220, Winnie Hunter 100, Laverne Perritt 121, Nadine Plumpton 159 and Neil Plumpton 684, Ada Merrett 649, Helen Reid 648, Dot Martin 626, Toots Hewitt 614, Ethel Stanbury 607 and Elsie Storey 605. High single went to M. Gimblett with 288. She was followed by H. Reid 279, E. Storey 271, Winnie McCarrell 268, Marion Mahood 262, J. Alexander 246, E. Stanbury 242 and A. Merrett and D. Martin with 238 each.

Aces Clip Commandos In YMCA Lasses' Loop

Aces were the only team in the senior YMCA girl's bowling circuit this week to take all points from their opponents, beating Commandos. The second game of this series was tied up and, after several frames of playoffs, Aces triumphed. Hurricanes, Corvettes and Bombers took two points each over Lucky Strikes, Tigers and Glengarry's in that order.

Joan Alexander had high three with 688 as Mary Gimblett rolled 268. Each won a chicken averaging about six pounds.

Teams rolling in the special competition were Braund's No. 1 and No. 2, Bond's Austin's, Loblaw's, City Hall, Utilities, A & P, Stores, Lift Lock and the Prudential.

WARSAW NIGHTMARE — That's the way Jean Bamford Fletcher of Regina describes her last week in Warsaw as a Canadian employee of the British Embassy. Miss Fletcher, shown in this Canadian Pacific Railway photo as she arrived at Saint John, N.B., said she left Poland only six hours ahead of a "Communist dragnet". Miss Fletcher did not explain why she left Poland hurriedly but said she had been interested in the case of a Briton now being tried in Warsaw for helping Polish women escape the country.

AskPowerCommission Permission To Expand

WASHINGTON, Dec. 15 (AP) —Tennessee Gas Transmission Company Thursday asked the United States Power Commission authority for a $47,403,000 expansion to enable it to sell natural gas in Canada.

The company wants to increase its system capacity by 115,000,000 cubic feet of gas a day. This would be delivered at the U.S.-Canadian border near Niagara Falls.

The gas would go to Niagara Gas Transmission, Limited, newly-formed Ontario corporation controlled by Consumers Gas Company in Toronto, for resale for distribution in Toronto and other markets in Ontario.

The project would include a 45-mile line extending from Buffalo, N.Y., to Niagara Falls. There also would be a loop line of about 170 miles along the system between Texas and Kentucky and about 96 miles of loop along the Kentucky to Buffalo extension.

The company proposed to finance some of the construction from operating funds and by the sale of securities and bank loans.

Here And There

A wrestling match Thursday night at Marietta, Georgia, ended in a near riot with one wrestler in the hospital with stab wounds.

The battle started after a decision went against wrestler Bobby Lane who has been in Atlanta rings for a couple of months.

Referee Jack Bloomfield caught a blow that started a three-way battle involving Lane, the referee and wrestler Red Dugan of Marietta. Spectators surged toward the ring with chairs and bottles. Police stepped in and broke up the ring battle.

Lane started for his dressing room, accompanied by wrestler Karl Kowalski, who had wrestled Dugan earlier in the evening. Some of the aroused fans surrounded them as they neared the dressing room. A knife flashed and before police could interfere Kowalski was cut twice.

He was taken to a hospital with a stab wound in the right side and a deep gash over his right eye. Kowalski, billed from Warsaw, Poland, was not in serious condition, the hospital reported.

The knife wielder was not caught.

Niagara Farmers Back Moffats

ST. CATHARINES, Dec. 15 — (CP)—Defendants in the four-year "battle of Moffat's Gate" Thursday received support from a prominent district organization.

Organized farmers of the Niagara Peninsula Thursday called upon the Ontario government to repeal a section of the Highways Improvement Act which prohibits construction of new buildings or alteration of existing ones within 160 feet of controlled highways.

(The Supreme Court of Ontario earlier this month upheld the Ontario Highways Department which complained Mr. and Mrs. William Moffat, of St. Catharines, contravened the department's ban on erection of dwellings near highways.

(The judgment is to be appealed, the Moffats' counsel said, despite a statement by J. D. Millar, Deputy Highways Minister, that the Moffats will not be expected to move their house, only close the private road leading to the Queen Elizabeth Way.

VAN DOOS TRAIN—Pte. Emile Noel of Montreal, the first man to start over the Fort Lewis, Wash., battle training range, fires his rifle from behind a pile of debris, such as would be found in a battle-scarred town, as the Van Doos commence their advanced training at Fort Lewis. With him are an American instructor and Cpl. A. Tremblay of Quebec City, acting as coach.

The farmers' action came at the annual convention of the Niagara Peninsula Fruit and Vegetable Growers' Association.

The resolution described as "outrageous and iniquitous" the section of the act which also bans the sale of fruit from independent stands on the Queen Elizabeth Way without a permit.

At the same time the convention recommended that the federal government enact price controls on industry, labor, farm and natural products and suggested the 1947 price structure be used as the basis.

Another resolution called upon the federal and provincial governments to investigate dumping of fruit in the Canadian market by growers in te United States.

Wartime Tradition

LONDON — (CP) — A huge Norwegian Christmas tree will again shine brightly in Trafalgar Square starting Dec. 20. The custom dates back to the Second World War when fast Norwegian patrol boats stationed in England penetrated German defences along Norway's coast to bring back the navy's Christmas git to King Haakon—a genuine Norway spruce.

Danger From Air

FORT WILLIAM, Dec. 15 (CP) —Except for the seaports, it is reasonable to assume that any major attack on a Canadian city will be only from air bombardment, Major-General F. F. Worthington said Thursday at a Canadian Club luncheon. General Worthington spoke on the basic defence of civilians in the event of a disaster caused by war.

Police Collect Burglar Costs

Police Department is made responsible for collecting the cost of burglar alarm connections to the police section of the new city hall, as recommended by the Finance Committee and approved by the Council Thursday night.

In the committee report read by Ald. Hugh Waddell, the "total price submitted by the contractor to the architects is $227.80 for the placing of necessary conduits for 100 wires for the entry of the burglar alarm system into the Police Department of the new building."

The price was accepted and the expenditure approved, but the cost is to be charged back to the persons and companies in the city who receive the service of this burglar alarm system.

Ald. H. N. Young and Ald. J. A. Dewart voted for the committee report except the following clause: "That the architects of the new city hall be informed that referring to their letter of December 5, 1950, pointing out certain necessary equipment (slop sinks, reported Wednesday) for rooms 117A and 138A were omitted from mechanical drawings for the building, this Council feels that this matter is wholly the responsibility of the architects, and the cost of correcing the omission should not be the responsibility of the City Council."

In expressing exception to that clause in the Waddell report, the two aldermen said they simply wished their position to be recorded.

Ald. Sands commented that "to clear the air" the exceptions should be indicated in an amendment; and Ald. A. B. Burrows said it should have been done when the question of contract extras was being decided in committee.

Ald. Young replied that he wished to support the rest of the report, and there should be no objection to recording his exception of the one clause.

By HARRY THEOBALD

Warble Fly Campaign Proposed For Peterborough Townships — Durham and Northumberland Bid For International Plowing Match — Junior Farmers' Christmas Party Dec. 19 — Green Manure Practice In 1880.

A proposed campaign against the warble fly in some of Peterborough's townships next spring took the form of probability at a meeting Tuesday afternoon in the office here of the Ontario Department of Agriculture.

Harvey, Ennismore, Smith and North Monaghan would get preference as neighbors to Victoria townships which undertook control last year. Otonabee and Asphodel were considered ripe for action by Reeve-elect R. R. Stewart and Reeve James Humphries in a preliminary estimate of the attitude of farmers who have the option of deciding the matter for themselves.

Reeve Gale Elliott of Harvey township was chairman of the meeting, and R. H. Graham, Toronto, of the livestock branch of the Department, explained procedure of organization and extent of financial assistance from the government.

The Act of 1949 provides that when more than two-thirds of the cattle owners of a township sign a petition to accept its advantages the council of the municipality must pass an enabling by-law. The only condition is that the township clerk must give his opinion, or otherwise ascertain that the petition carries the required number of names.

It is recommended that a power sprayer be used and that an inspector be engaged to make sure that every herd is sprayed, because, as Mr. Graham said, there is the odd farmer who is too indifferent or lazy to do the work himself at the right time.

Spray Weeds, Too

Incidentally, the power machine could be used throughout the summer in spraying weeds. The Ontario government pays half the salary expense and cost of derris power used in a township campaign.

Mr. Graham suggested that in circulating petitions farmers be asked whether they were in favor of use of a power sprayer. If a machine is bought, the municipality pays the whole cost of it. Cost of spraying equipment ranges from $500 to $1,000, and as Mr. Graham emphasized, it is available for weed control.

Sixty townships treated their cattle by spray or hand brush last year, he said. All the townships of Bruce, Grey and Dufferin are warring against the warble. Nine townships in Victoria adopted the policy a year ago. The government's contribution last year was $17,000.

"We have funds set aside to encourage the townships that want to come in," Mr. Graham said. "One detail is important—if one man's cattle are omitted, you might just as well have not done it at all, because his cattle can reinfest all the other stock."

"This Act does not say you have to spray by machine, but we have found that it is a great time saver, and every man's cattle get done".

An Inspector Necessary

Mr. Graham said the brush method was the more effective if properly done, but in any case an inspector was necessary to make sure that all cattle were sprayed. For machine spraying a man must be engaged to work under the inspector who is hired by the Department. The spraying machine kills around 90 per cent.

"Will we completely eradicate warbles? That question can't be safely answered. We have gone a long way in personal cleanliness, but there still are lice. However, we can accomplish control down to a very few warbles. I was told in Chicago several weeks ago that the midwestern states would not be without this treatment of cattle, and warbles are practically eliminated.

In our own west, cattle are four to five weeks earlier off the grass; they put on fat earlier and they come to market earlier. The dairy cattle man should save in a week or so more than the cost of treating his herd, when no warble flies bother them.

The application of the powder solution does the job, there is no risk and it also kills lice. One man told me that it was worth while in that respect even if it hadn't killed a warble. In Bruce county there are many herds in which you can't find a warble, but you've got to keep it up once you make a start."

Action Must be Early

Mr. Graham advised that petitions be circulated early in January for presentation to councils, "also in order that they may be reported to us by March when we are making up our estimates for the year. Treatments should be in by the first half of April followed a second early in May, with three weeks between them."

To Reeve James Humphries, Mr. Graham said a machine sprays up to 8,000 head. One of the Bruce township last year reported 7,980 head.

Another statement was the by-law had to be obeyed. "But, there were only three cases last year in which we had to call on the Provincial Police."

"It is no good unless they all do it," Mr. Graham said, and for that reason there should be no exceptions in a township area when the provincial Act has been invoked by bylaw.

THE JUNIORS OF PEEL

More than 300 of the young people of Peel county are members of junior clubs, a manifestly high average.

This enrolment was mentioned by Keith Shaw of Malton in his breakfast talk to the 116 boys and girls from across Canada, 1950 club winners, at the Royal York Hotel Nov. 16. That was a month ago, but the interval of time has not diminished its significance.

That Peel has not only a high enrolment but also an active membership was reflected in Mr. Shaw's brief account of the building last year of a Junior Farmer hall on the fair grounds.

"This program was developed and carried out by our juniors. We raised a large amount of money and contributed a great deal of the labor. For over six weeks last winter members of the clubs from all over the county came and worked on the building. We did all the interior finishing, and the girls helped with the painting.

Although it has not yet been open one year, our hall is debt-free. We hold our meetings, dances and the junior show in connection with the annual fall fair, in this building. What we have gained from working together, and with the facilities it provides to the whole community, is expressed, I believe, in the Ontario Junior Farmers' motto: "Self Help: Community Betterment."

Mr. Shaw stressed as personal gains from his club experience: Friendship, understanding, leadership. He mentioned also the advantage of travel, broadening of vision, and a clearer appreciation of the extent and importance of Canada that comes to club winners.

Importance of Fellowship

"I like to think there is a great deal in the saying: "The man who works for himself alone, works for the meanest mortal known.' The people we meet, work with and come to know as friends, are very important. The sense of satisfaction we receive from working together in some community endeavor does much for our well being."

County Farm Notes

Mr. Shaw's talk to his young peers. It signifies an asset in the rural life of this country that has been expanding broadly in the last ten years or more, and it is worth remembering by Peterborough families when in the New Year the call comes again for the enlistment of juniors in various clubs.

"It is true," he said, "that learning how to produce better livestock and crops is an important aspect of club worg, but more and more I am realizing that the greatest value to be gained is the training in leadership that I have received and in making new and, I hope, life-long friends."

Translated into other words that means the development of personal responsibility and confidence and at the same time the discovery in their youth of the enriching values of joint enterprise within the community and for it.

BID FOR BIG MATCH

International Plowing Match of 1953 is the quest of Durham and Northumberland Plowmen's Association. Len Henderson of Millbrook has been appointed chairman of the deputation that will present the request to the provincial association's convention in Toronto in February.

Officers of the United Counties association were elected at Millbrook last Saturday. William Allin of Newcastle is president for 1951; Clare Winslow is 1st vice president and Percy Gooding of Hilton is second vice-president; Mr. Henderson is secretary. L. H. Winslow and J. A. Carroll of Toronto will wait on the counties council in January asking for financial support for the 1953 undertaking.

MEDICAL SERVICES UNION

Union with Peterborough Medical Services was proposed at a meeting of Kawartha Medical Services Tuesday night. W. W. Dawson of Kawartha presided, and Mr. Quirt McKinney represented the Peterborough group. The suggestion was considered tentatively in favoring circumstances, and it seemed probable that amalgamation will be arrived at early in the new year.

Mr. Paul Meeghan, manager of Cumba, Toronto, took part in the discussion, and will likely return to Peterborough for further conference as details are reached. Mr. Meeghan is going over at the first of the year to the Co-Operative Medical Services of Ontario.

An increase in Kawartha Medical Services membership rates has been virtually ordered by the Ontario government insurance department. Standard hospital bed accommodation moves up from $18 to $20; and semi-private will be up from $24 to $28. The purpose behind the higher rates is to broaden the financial background of the association against emergency requirements.

It is understood that Peterborough Medical Services will add about 150 persons to Kawartha membership, after losing a large group at Western Clock Co.

Mr. Dawson told the Examiner he expected that the proposed amalgamation might be concluded by Jan. 1.

Kawartha Medical Services is only one of the community enterprises promoted into organization by Peterborough Federation of Agriculture.

Chinese Admit Country Now Police State

(Editor's note: The following dispatch describing life in Communist China was written by M. Sivaram, just returned to India after three months in Peiping as staff correspondent for the Press Trust of India. He was the only non-Communist correspondent in the Chinese capital.)

By M. SIVARAM

BOMBAY, India, Dec. 15 — (Reuters)— New China officially described as a people's democracy is in practice a totalitarian state on the Soviet pattern.

The new regime in China is a government of the people by the Communist party and for the party. Not even the authorities deny new China is essentially a police state.

Fear of authority and regard for discipline are evident everywhere, secrecy shoulds the activities of the rulers.

Peiping reflects at every turn the grim discipline enforced by the party.

Elaborate Set-Up

The political set-up is elaborate. The new government has more functionaries of ministerial rank than any state in the world —but the destiny of the country is in the hands of one, Moe Tze-tung.

In North and Northwest China the Communist regime seems to have established itself fairly solidly, while in Eastern and Southern China the new government is still beset with growing pains.

Rumblings of anti-Communist revolts and guerrilla warfare are frequently heard from these parts.

The majority of the people outside the Communist party appear to consider the new regime as a mixed blessing.

On the credit side they list: The apparent sincerity of purpose, verging on fanaticism of the new leaders; strict maintenance of law and order; virtual elimination of official corruption; downward levelling of essential commodity prices; and the land reform program and recent reduction of taxation to benefit the peasants.

Poison Minds

Of the debit side they place: Conversion of China into a police state; drastic dislocation of the Chinese family and social structure; intellectual starvation of the people; strangulation of private enterprise and initiative; and control of thought and speech calculated to "poison" the minds of the youth of the country.

But almost every non-Communist Chinese including many admirers of the present regime, seemed to be skeptical of the Communist government's foreign policy and the "disproportioned" friendship with Russia.

This attitude is expressed—in whispers—even by strong government supporters.

But none dares discuss the future. For even people in the government seem puzzled by the latest ventures launched by their leaders.

LIVESTOCK DECLINE

South Africa's livestock population declined from 13,000,000 in 1943 to 12,000,000 in 1950.

It was decided to spend $5 on te purchase of Christmas decorations.

Toronto Singers Donate Talents To Hamper Show

Jimmy Shields, well known Canadian tenor and John Sturgess, star radio baritone, will join with Peterborough entertainers Sunday afternoon for the Optimist Club's annual Christmas hamper show at the Brock Street Arena. Proceeds will go to help needy families in the city.

Mr. Shields and Mr. Sturgess informed the club last week that they would donate their services. Other singers will be Michael Tunnacliff, Boys' Town Choir soloist who will sing The Lord's Prayer" and "Silent Night;" Walter Dawson, the Peterborough Choral Society, Joanne Chamberlain, barber shop quartets, and cowboy vocalists.

Bands in attendance will be the Salvation Army Band and the Citizens' Band. Other selections will be played by the Searles String Quartet, Graydon Sheldon and his Orchestra, Bobby Kinsman and his Orchestra, Baled Hay Opera, and Hal MacFarlane and his Orchestra.

Artists will include Mignon Mayneord, local whistler, Major C. G. Everitt, pianist, and Henry Jackson, accordionist.

The price of admission will be, as in previous years at least two cans of food or its equivalent in non-perishable goods. Six telephones will be installed to handle calls from people wishing to make cash donations. Musical requests will be answered by one of the artists and all monetary requests will be acknowledged over the air.

Last year the show netted $1,700 and two tons of foodstuffs, as compared with 1948's one ton of food and $700. Again all proceeds will be distributed to the needy of the community by A. G. Metheral, city welfare officer, and Major C. G. Everitt of the Salvation Army.

Bidding once more is expected to highlight the program for an exceptionally large Christmas cake especially large Christmas cake especially made and donated by the Canada Bread Company. Last year the Christmas cake was finally sold after bidding continued throughout the afternoon for $175. The total receipts from the three chief bidders were $426.

The variety stage show will be under way at the Arena from 1.30 p.m. until 5.30 p.m. and will be broadcast by CHEX from 2 p.m. until 5 p.m., Paul Reid and Del Crary as masters of ceremony.

City Enigneer Gives Review Of 1950 Paving Program

W. B. Bennett of Bennett Paving Company, Oshawa, has agreed to make certain changes to Rogers St. in order that it may be reasonably passabe for the winter, City Engineer A. E. Chalmers reported to the council Thursday night.

Work has been halted for the winter, and three streets in the original contract, Towsend, Perry and Lock streets may be transferred to a new paving program in 1951.

Mr. Chalmers reviewed the course of this year's paving project for the information of the council at its final session Thursday night.

On May 15, last, the council authorized the construction of pavements on: Park St., from McDonnel St. to Park Hill Road; on Monaghan from Frank St. to Lansdowne St.

On Perry and Townsend streets from Aylmer St. to Park St.

Lock St. from Lansdowne St. to King George St.; and Rogers St. from a point south on Hunter St. to James St.

Tenders were received on May 29, and on June 6 the tender (lowest) of W. B. Bennett Paving Limited was accepted an authority was given to enter into a contract. A bylaw on June 19 authorized the execution of the contract.

The Chalmer's review continues: "Work was commenced on Park St.toward the end of June and on Monaghan Road about July 28, and toward the end of August, work was begun on Rogers St.

On Sept. 5th I wrote the contractor criticizing their rate of progress, and comparing it with the previous pacing work carried on for the city.

Impossible to Complete Work

It became quite apparent during September that it would be impossible to complete all of the work this fall, and I was instructed to notify the contractor not to open any more streets unless he was going to be able to complete them. In conversation with Mr. Bennett he agreed that it was too much of a risk, and I instructed him not to open any further streets. He informed a committee of the council that, with reasonable weather conditions, he would be able to complete the asphalt work this season on the three streets which were under construction.

On Oct. 23, the contractor commenced laying asphalt on Park St. on Nov. 2, after working six days, the work on this street was completed. In the meantime, base asphalt had been started on Monaghan Road on Oct. 26, and continued for three days.

After numerous days lost due to breakdowns and inclement weather, the asphalt work stopped on Nov. 24, with Monaghan Road surface asphalt not completed between Chamberlen St. and Frank St. Since that date the weather has not remained satisfactory for a period long enough to start the work again.

Gives Up Hope Of Finishing

Late Tuesday afternoon, Dec. 12, Mr. Bennett called to say that he had given up hope of a break in the weather, and asked what he should do about the condition of Rogers St. He agreed to make certain changes to this street in order that it may be reasonably passable for the winter. He has also agreed that his asphalt plant will remain here so that he will be in a position to complete Monaghan Road and Rogers St. early next spring.

There are two alternative methods of completing the work authorized by bylaw No. 4854, and it will be necessary for the Council to decide which plan to follow. These may be summarized as follows:

(a) Permit the contractor to complete the balance of his original contract.

(b) Reduce the work in the original contract by taking out Townsend, Perry and Lock Streets. These streets could then be put into a new 1951 paving program; the contractor to complete Monaghan Road and Rogers St.

Of these two proposals I would suggest that the second one would be satisfactory. The above outline is given in order that the Council may be brought up to date on the matter."

BIG SALUTE

The biggest Royal salute, 62 guns, is fired at London on Royal birth, accession and coronation anniversaries.

Community Organized Recreation Requires Managing Authority

Community organized recreation must have a managing authority, legally established by law with power, duties and rights Alex Sinclair, recreation directro, told the Kinsmen Club on Thursday night. His topic was Working Together in Recreation

The need of this authority arises from the fact that recreation is now " in the big money class." Mr. Sinclair said that it is essential and a primary step for a solid foundation and growth. An informal organization, he said, may be a starter and will last for a while, but to be soundly principled in the life of the people as a community force it must be established as a large managing authority.

Elected by People

At a recent course in Queen's University, it was suggested that recreation commissions will be elected by the people as city councils and boards of education. The lecturer at that time said that he felt the people who are responsible for the raising of money spent on recreation would present a growing interest in recreational programs if they had more voice.

While glancing through the field of recreation, Mr. Sinclair said that whether in the name of paternalism, whether the fear of organized labor, whether its enlightened management, whether the pressure of times, industry has found recreation necessary. All over Canada and the United States, he added, industry after industry are sponsoring and operating recreation programs.

In the United States alone in 1948 there was spent on recreation $28,000,000,000, on sports $9,000,000,000 and on arts and crafts $3,000,000,000.

"When we talk in figures like that we realize that recreation is a very important part of our life. It is a producer of goods, a consumer of money, an employer of people and its place in the economy of a nation is constantly increasing and there are numerous facts available to set an economic approach to the values of organized recreation."

Clarence Boorman introduced the speaker, who was thanked by Dr. A. H. Ball.

2 Anglican Clergymen Disarm Man At Safe

TORONTO, Dec. 15 (CP). — Two Anglican clergymen disarmed and overpowered a man they surprised at a safe in the Church of St. Mary the Virgin Thursday. Detectives said that John J. Murphy, 55, later charged with attempted theft of money and with having burglar's tools—two knives—denied the minister's suggestion that he'd been after the church wine. As proof, police said Murphy produced a bottle of domestic wine from his pocket.

New Power Line On Park St. Will Cost $13,000

Erection of a new power line on Park St. south of Lansdowne St. will cost $13,000 as estimated in the report to the Utilities Commission Thursday by R. L. Dobbin, manager.

"The existing line was built in 1925 at the time the sewage disposal plant was placed in service," Mr. Dobbin said. "We could salvage part of the wire and some of the material amounting to about $2,000."

The Commission approved the proposal and request from the council "providing the city will agree to remove or trim the necessary trees."

One improvement south of Lansdowne St. has led to another. The Park St. drain was replaced this year with a new one of concrete, the ditch was filled in and the west side of the street was levelled.

That left the electric line conspicuously near the west side of the travelled strip of the road, and with an element of hazard to traffic. That is one job which became immediately apparent. Then there is a walk to be laid, and eventually that lower section of Park St. will have shed the last of its township traces.

Council Finishes Business Of Centennial Year

"When you consider that the population of Peterborough is 37,000 and that there are only eleven persons representing them every year, you realize how much an honor it is to be a member of the city council, as I have been for the last ten years," said Ald. Adam B. Sands Thursday night at the conclusion of the final meeting of centennial year of 1950.

"I wish to thank you sir," he said to Mayor Swanston, "and the members of the council and also the members of our civic staff for the co-operation and other things which make such good feelings in the council and around the city buildings."

"One thing I have found about the work in the council is that it is not until you have sat here many nights that you know one another as well as you should. You don't know the abilities of the other men you are associated with until you get around this table. Looking back over these ten years, I could not have been with a finer group, and as I said it is an honor which I greatly appreciate.

To you Mr. Mayor and members of the council of 1951, I wish all the best, not too high a tax rate and not too many headaches."

"To repeat what the late Gordon Armstrong said: "The city council is the finest men's club in Peterborough."

Ald. Hurrell Dodds said he had been a little beforehand in expressing his sentiments on leaving the council at the meeting of the finance committee Monday.

Installing Parking Meters

"I repeat what I said then, and I mean every word. There is one matter I would like to straighten out as to guidance from the council regarding the parking meters on the market. Is the City Engineer to go ahead and put up the meters as well as their posts?"

Mayor Swanston said the resolution of the council was that when the materials were all here the metering job was to be proceeded with.

"I understand the materials are here, and City Engineer Chalmers has started to put the posts in. But, it is only another week until Christmas, and speaking for myself I don't think we should put the meters till then," Mayor Swanston suggested.

"Well, that will be my motion," Ald. Dodds said, and Ald. Herbert Young seconded it.

Mayor Swanston recalled the understanding that the market square was to be resurfaced this fall.

City Engineer Chalmers said it was late now for that work, and Ald. Dodds remarked that he would take the word of the City Engineer as to that detail.

Tribute From Mayor

Final amenity of the meeting and the year of the council rested with Mayor Swanston.

"The council has done a lot of work this year," His Worship said. "I think we have done more work and business than any other council in the city's 100 years. It has been only with co-operation within the council, and with our civic departments and the citizens generally that we were able to do it. For my part I thank you all for your help. I am sorry that Ald. Dodds and Ald. Sands will not be back.

Ald. Sands and I came into the council at the same time. For a while it is going to feel next year like moving into a new neighborhood. I wish you all a happy Christmas."

IF YOU FIND A FOX, NOW...

Bits and pieces of news are still blowing into The Examiner office about the violent week-end windstorm of Nov. 25, the latest from a weekly Lands and Forests newsletter from Tweed. A fur farmer in Pakenham Township suffered severe damage when high winds overturned animal cages and all his stock, 45 silver foxes, escaped. It is reported that a few animals have been shot since then, but the owner still has hopes of getting most of them back, alive. All one has to do, apparently, after running the live foxes down and catching them, is to look for certain tattoo marks inside the ears. Here is a challenge to fleet-footed fox hunters everywhere, and if they have a breath left at the end of a chase, they are to tell what they know to Conservation Officer S. A. Shields at Renfrew. —N.N.

Acquit Anderson Second Count After Bad Crash

Glen Allen Anderson, 25, McKellar St. who was acquitted last Friday by a county court jury of dangerous driving was today in police court acquitted of a charge of careless driving when the Crown offered no evidence.

The lesser charge involved the same accident as the dangerous driving charge in which Gordon A. Ham was killed October 25 on Highway 28, half a mile south of the Kendry CPR crossing.

Crown Attorney John A. Bradshaw told the court since the jury had found Anderson not guilty, it was assumed they believed his story told in the witness box.

He said because of that, he thought it would be unfair to ask the magistrate to disbelieve Anderson's story involving the same circumstances.

Ham was killed when his car and Anderson's light truck crashed head-on on the highway just south of the top of a knoll.

Anderson's explanation of the accident was that he had swerved to the left, near the centre line of the road, and flicked his lights up and down to warn a car ahead he wished to pass.

He had barely done this, he said, when "very suddenly I saw the lights of the oncoming car. I tried to edge off the road and the accident happened."

Increases In Building Costs Force Board To Reduce Size of School Gymnasium

To keep within their $585,000 estimate the Board of Education has had to alter building plans for the new collegiate. J. B. Parkin, school architect, has been instructed to prepare working drawings cutting the gymnasium to half its planned size. This was announced Thursday night by G. Wilson Craw, chairman of the accommodation committee, at the December meeting of the Board. The worsening international situation has brought about a rise in the cost of building materials, he explained, so that the price per square foot of the collegiate has been boosted during the last two months from $11.50 to $13. Exclusive of architect's fees and equipment the cost of building must not exceed $510,000.

"We are delighted with the way the ratepayers supported the by-law," he said, "but now we have some news that is not so good. To keep within our estimates we've got to reduce the area of the school by approximately 5,000 square feet."

"We felt we couldn't exceed the $585,000 figure," continued Mr. Craw, "and while the gymnasium is important it is not as important as classrooms for the boys and girls."

"If the price per square foot has gone up $2 in the last two months have we any guarantee it won't go up just as much in the next two," asked Mrs. Paige Rowell.

"None," answered Mr. Craw, and he said he wouldn't be surprised if contractors refused to give a firm bid on the basis of the present estimates.

What About Steel?

"What about steel?" asked Murray Irwin.

"The situation there is not good either," said K. S. Wightman, superintendent of schools. "As the situation now stands schools have a degree of preference, but with this new and changing situation in the world we just don't know."

The revision in estimates came about after Mr. Wightman on Dec. 6 visited a school building expert on the Department of Education staff. Before presenting the plans for formal approval to the Department the Board wanted the expert's opinion of their suitability and possible cost.

While the plans seemed quite satisfactory to the expert, he thought the estimate too low. The most recent figures showed the square-foot cost of constructing similar schools at $13. This would raise the Peterborough expenditure from $585,000, as authorized in the recently approved by-law, to $660,000.

Offering his unofficial advice the expert suggested a smaller gymnasium, 60 ft. by 80 ft. might be substituted. The school architect, Mr. Parkin, was then consulted and he found that 5,000 square feet must be cut from the plans if the present estimate is to be met.

Return to Original Plan

Mr. Parkin's solution was to return to the Board's original plan and build only one gymnasium. (Later this was changed to two gymnasiums—one for the boys and one for the girls, the total floor space amounting to 11,800 square feet).

A temporary outside wall which would not make the collegiate unsightly could be built. Later a second gymnasium could be added with a minimum of alterations necessary. And in the meantime the single gymnasium would have to serve both the boys and the girls.

Elimination of half the gymnasium, plus the corridor, would save some 6,000 square feet, said Mr. Wightman.

The Board then unanimously voted for Mr. Parkin to prepare working drawings that included this revision in plans.

Mrs. Rowell suggested that another section of the school where economy might be observed was the lunch room.

Claims His Leg Broken Arriving Home

Joe Gooley, 163 Princess St., was driven home by taxi from a hotel Wednesday and when he arrived in the house he had his left leg broken in two places.

William Gooley, Joe's brother, said when the Gorman's taxi arrived with his brother, the driver came to the door and asked for help to get him in the house. His wife asked what was wrong with him, but the driver walked away.

William Gooley went outside and found his brother lying on the ground. He helped him inside and discovered there was something wrong with Joe's leg. He called Dr. Warren Gamble and Joe was taken to St. Joseph's Hospital where it was found there were two breaks in the leg between the knee and ankle.

Gooley himself said his leg was broken as he was being helped out of the taxi. He said he had had no argument with the driver or anything of that nature.

The driver, E. A. Gorman, said when he arrived at Gooley's home he walked with Gooley up the street and back and then walked with him to the back door. There he asked if he was alright and left him.

When he reached his cab, he looked back and saw Gooley lying on the ground. He went to the house and asked for help to get Gooley inside. He said he waited outside some time and no one came out, so he left.

Gooley had the leg set today.

Constable Donald Jones investigated.

8 Taxi Owners Fail To Get New Licences

Eight taxi owners did not have their applications for licences under the new bylaw approved by the Police Commission Thursday when they failed to meet the insurance policy qualifications demanded by the bylaw.

One taxi operator, G. J. Feeley, did not have his licence approved for a second reason: a police record. The other seven were: Charles Copping, Phillip Rochetta, Percy Johnston, Samuel J. Calladine, Fred G. Hughey, Loan Dupuis and Earl Turner.

If these eight taxi owners continue to operate taxis they are doing so without a licence and are subject to prosecution by the police.

The new taxi bylaw has been in the air for almost a full year. It was passed July 31 by the Police Commission to go into effect Sept. 30. At the first meeting in October after the bylaw was to have gone into effect, only a very few taxi operators had complied with the new bylaw.

The commission extended the deadline to Nov. 9, and again only a minority had complied. So the commission decided to make one more allowance.

This time the commission members were in no mood for any more excuses. No more taxi operators will be able to get a licence until the next meeting of the commission, scheduled Jan. 11.

Twenty-four taxi owners, owning 28 cabs, did comply with the bylaw and their licence applications were approved.

Teen-Agers Trying To Keep Home Together, Lose In Fire

Two teen-aged girls, who are trying to make a home for two younger sisters and a brother, received a setback Thursday when fire destroyed most of their clothing and bedding. The five Caldwells, ranging in age from nine to 19, are living in two buildings—a renovated garage and a cabin—on a lot adjacent to 887 Water St. Their mother is dead and their father is living elsewhere.

Hazel, age 17, and Sylvia, age 19, are employed as ward aides at Civic Hospital. Their jobs as aides do not bring much money but they are determined to keep the remnants of their family together.

The others are Allan, age nine, and two sisters, both of them students at PCVS: Shirley, age 14, and Carol, age 16.

Stove Overheated

Thursday an overheated stove in one of the two buildings touched off a fire. The flames raced through the interior destroying bedding and clothing and scorching the walls. A sewing machine and an empty chest were among the valuables saved.

Property destroyed by fire and water would not likely exceed $150 in value, but it amounted to most of the Caldwells' possessions. A line of hose and a booster pump were used by the Fire Department to quell the blaze.

Hazel and Sylvia slept in the other building on the lot Thursday night along with Allan while the two student girls went to a friend's home.

Raybestos Union Ratifies 10-Cent Boost

Some 130 production workers of the Canadian Raybestos Co. have negotiated themselves a worthwhile Christmas present. Thursday night they ratified a contract with the company giving them an extra 10 cents an hour, plus a cost-of-living bonus.

All of the production workers, members of Local 527, United Electrical Workers, will get the 10-cent boost which will work out to a $4.50 increase in their weekly pay envelopes. The contract signed with the company is good for a year.

It is retroactive to December 10.

The cost of living bonus comes to one cent an hour for each 1.4 point rise in the cost-of-living index. This escalator clause is only effective for an upward adjustment.

Basic rate for men at Raybestos is now $1.06 an hour and 95 cents for women. The work week remains at 45 hours.

The contract expired December 7 but was extended another seven days when the parties failed to reach an agreement. Final settlement came Thursday night and the company offer was ratified by the membership. The contract should be signed in a couple of days.

John Whalen, president of the composite Local 527, headed the negotiating committee. The committee was assisted by John Rowley, UE district representative.

Police Request $400 Raise

City police asked for a $400 raise in a brief presented to the Police Commission Thursday.

Other requests for the policemen were three weeks' holidays for officers who had served 10 years and more on the force; three days' sick leave a month instead of the day and a half they now are allowed; and one and a half days off each week instead of one as they now get.

The policemen have in mind the $150 raise given this year to the fire department and are asking for an additional $250.

Mayor Max J. Swanston said the firemen were asking for another $365 for 1951.

In asking for a raise, the police bargaining committee pointed out that the cost of living has continued to rise, and a constable after being on the force three years still made four cents an hour less than an unskilled laborer in a factory. The local force receives $308 less than the average of 25 other cities in Ontario with over 20,000 population.

Mayor Swanston said the Council's attitude was that since the firemen were given a $150 raise in 1950, the Council will take into consideration a similar raise for other municipal departments, including the police force, in their estimates next year.

He said he did not know what the firement would get until the first of next year.

Entitled To More

"Personally I think the policemen are entitled to more than the firemen," said Judge S. L. Smoke. The mayor and Magistrate W. R. Philp, KC, both agreed with this view.

In their brief the policemen said that 65 per cent of the police forces in municipalities over 20,000 receive three weeks' holidays after 10 years and in some cases five year. In the provincial police force, officers are given three weeks holidays after one year.

The members of the commission decided they would confer at their next meeting due January 11 with members of the bargaining committee: Constables Harold Mesley, Donald Mackay and Douglas Farthing.

ON RETIRED LIST

Miss Myra Baird, who has been on sick leave from the Public school staff for more than a year, offered the Board of Education her resignation Thursday. It was accepted, and the board put her on the retired list, effective January 1. The board makes special provision for a teacher who becomes ill and permanently incapacitated.

CLERICAL APPOINTMENT

Mrs. David Rymer has been appointed to the PCVS office staff, succeeding Mrs. Dorothy Palmer, whose resignation was accepted Thursday night by the Board of Education. Mrs. Rymer attended the Kitchener-Waterloo Collegiate and has had five years' practical experience. She begins January 3.

Board Rejects New Pay System

The Board of Education has turned down a request from a number of teachers to be paid in 12 annual instalments instead of the present 10. Lack of unanimity among the teachers themselves was given as the reason.

"We don't mind making the change," said G. Wilson Craw, chairman of finance, "but many of the teachers themselves are opposed to it." He said it would be unnecessary work for the board's staff to have both systems.

Most of those favoring payment in monthly instalments are Public school teachers. Under the present setup they are not paid from June 30 to September 30. And some of them find it difficult budgeting over the three-month period. A number of PCVS teachers prefer the present plan.

Dr. Russell Morgan requested that the teachers be informed of the board's decision and the reason for taking no action on it.

Parking Meters Need Month To Get $100,000

Peterborough's parking meters are about one month from total collections of $100,000.

The total take since May 12, 1947 to the end of November was $97,097.85 as reported to the council Thursday by City Clerk Outram.

Annual amounts for the last three years were; for the year ending Nov. 1948, $23,873.94; and for 1949, same period $24,977.90; and for 1950 to the end of Nov. $26,340.53.

Parking tickets last month contributed $269 at $1 each as compared with $194 a year ago and $188 in No. 1948.

Money collected through the city clerk's office last month included police court $1,246.67; licenses $846.50; miscellaneous $695.50; and parking meter money $2,590.45; total $5,379.12.

Of the 150 November births listed at the city hall, 80 were to city residents; six were to unmarried mothers. Of the 43 recorded deaths, 28 were city residents.

Taking A Bath Problem In Movies

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD Dec. 15 (AP)—A few lines in the Bible can amount to a production in Hollywood. Also a censorship problem.

That appeared true this week as 20th-Fox photographed what it claims to be "the most famous bath in history." It's the one that Bathsheba took, as described in II Samuel, Chapter 11.

The passage reads that David "walked upon the roof of the king's house; and from the roof he saw a woman washing herself; and the woman was very beautiful to look upon."

Biblical Epic

That's it. And from these few words the studio created a scene costing umpteen thousands of dollars and causing a few more grey hairs for the censor. It's part of the new Biblical epic, "David and Bathsheba," starring Gregory Peck and Susan Hayward.

Not being privileged to watch the scene, I asked a studio representative about it. Here is his report:

"A backless strapless, flesh colored, plastic bathing suit was devised for Miss Hayward to wear in the scene. Before she came out of her dressing room, the suit was somehow damaged and had to be repaired—vulcanized perhaps.

"Two Nubian slaves poured water over her. The water was warmed but Miss Hayward complained that it got quite cold. The scene was played without sound, so the director, Henry King, gave instructions during it. At one time he said, 'the water tickles now, Susan.'

"After doing the bath scene for two hours Miss Hayward had, of course, to take a bath. To remove the makeup."

I visited the set the next day and got another account from director King. I asked if the bathing scene presented any special problems.

"Just like washing a car" he bragged. However, he did admit that the necessities of censorship required nimble camera work.

"Actually, I will let Gregory take the bath," he observed. "We'll see some shots of her turning around and showing her back, but most of the scene will be his reaction to what he sees."

I remarked that this should win Peck a special Academy Award.

"Oh, it should be easy for a man of Gregory's fine talents," was the answer. "I want him to play it just as though he were looking at a beautiful tree in bloom."

I sought out Peck and he remarked that although Miss Hayward took her bath this week, his reaction won't be filmed for three weeks. "And I'll need the time to prepare for it," he added.

Cattle Prices Ease Off At Stockyards During Week

TORONTO, Dec. 15 — (CP).—Cattle prices steady to strong this week, but eased off at the close on plain quality at the Ontario Stockyards this week, the Dominion Marketing Service reported today.

Calves were steady, while hogs gained 25 cents. Sheep and lambs were 50 cents higher.

A light run of 5,027 cattle was added to 300 carried from last week. Opening sales were steady to strong on all grades, but trade slowed almost to a standstill on Wednesday with a few hundred plainer cattle offered. Four loads of choice weighty steers sold at $29 and a few individuals brought $29.25-$29.50.

Choice fed yearlings were $31-$33, with good light steers up to $28. Good heifers sold for $26.50-$27.50, and common to medium light steers and heifers brought $20-$26. Medium to good cows sold at $20-$22.50 with canenrs and cutters from $15-$17.50. Good buls brought $23-$24.50, and a few lots of medium quality stockers sold at $22-$26.50. Good stock calves were $27-$28.50.

Calves totalled 1,157 head. Prices were steady at $31-$33 for choice vealers, with common to medium from $20-$30. Thin grassers for slaughter sold for $18-$20.

Hogs were 2,699 head. Grade A sold generally at $30.25-$30.50, with sows $25 dressed.

Sheep and lambs were 1,288 head. Lambs were up 50 cents at $30 for good ewes and wethers with at $29 for bucks. A few choice Southdown lambs sold up to $33. Good light sheep brought $16-$17, with culls downward to $8.

Engineer Scalded

PARIS, Ont., Dec. 15 (CP).—William Monkhouse, an engineer on the Canadian National Railways, of Mount Vernon, was severely scalded Thursday night when a steam-heat boiler exploded in Smitty's garage on Capron Street. Monkhouse was admitted to Willett Hospital and authorities described his condition as "critical."

Bushworker Alive But Rather Not Be

FORT WILLIAM, Dec. 15 (CP)—Onni Lampi is alive today but not because he wanted to be.

The 45-year-old bushworker pleaded guilty to attempting to commit suicide and was sentenced Thursday to three months in jail.

Lampi's trouble all started because he couldn't sleep. In his first suicide attempt, he threw himself across the Canadian National Railway tracks near Geraldton, 150 miles northeast of the lakehead. He was pushed aside by a slow-moving locomotive.

Then he tried again, this time crawling between the wheels of a passing train. He was foiled again when the wheels just butted him aside.

Bleeding and bruised about the face, Lampi was arrested. Whether he will have any better luck sleeping in jail is questionable. A doctor said he does not react to sedatives.

TLC Suspends Vancouver Union

VANCOUVER, Dec. 15 (CP) — Local 28 of the Vancouver Civic Employees Union was suspended Thursday by the Trades and Labor Congress of Canada.

Carl E. Berg of Edmonton, vice-president of the TLC, has been here for two months in a campaign to rid the 1,600-member local of what the labor body called Communist domination.

The suspension was handed down in Ottawa by Percy R. Bengough, TLC president, who said:

"Conclusive evidence has been placed before me proving continuous collaboration between the officers and representatives of Vancouver CEU No. 28 and ranking members of the Labor-Progressive party to a degree to eliminate any shadow of doubt that (Local 28), under its present leadership, is definitely under Communist control."

Mr. Bengough called on all members of Local 28 to align themselves with Vancouver Civic Employees' Union, Local 407, set up by the TLC a short time ago in opposition to Local 28.

I Had To Watch My Children Suffer

"For several years my two boys suffered greatly" from asthma and bronchial attacks", says Mrs. A. Lamouroux, 256 Head St. South, Simcoe, Ont. "They would be weak, gasp for breath—choking, wheezing and coughing in a way to wring a mother's heart. I often had to watch my boys sit up nearly all night, unable to lie down because of the struggle for breath. Then I found out about RAZ-MAH. After 3 doses of RAZ-MAH they are relieved and have no attacks for months at a time. I certainly recommend RAZ-MAH."

Use Colombo Plan To Fight Communism In Asian Lands

By ALAN HARVEY

LONDON, Dec. 15 —(CP)— A six-year program of economic development in South and Southeast Asia, costing £1,868,000,000 ($5,604,000,000), emerged during 1950 as the Commonwealth's biggest co-ordinated gesture against international Communism.

Details of the plan to which Canada will contribute funds and technical assistance, were published here in November after a series of Commonwealth conferences in Colombo, Sydney and London. Known as the Colombo Plan, it provides primarily for technical assistance to the Asian members of the Commonwealth. Among non - Commonwealth countrise, Burma, Siam, Indonesia and the States of Indo-China may ultimately be included in the scheme.

Britain's contribution will be about £300,000,000, or £50,000,000 a year. Most of this will be accounted for by release from the sterling balances — wartime credits amassed by India, Pakistan and Ceylon during the war.

Hoping US to Help

No announcement was made about financial contributions from outside the Commonwealth, but it was hoped the United States would supply what was called the "missing component"—the difference between the target figure and what the Commonwealth countries actually could provide.

Commonwealth conferences on the development program were held at Colombo in January, at Sydney in May and at London in September. R. W. Mayhew, Canada's fisheries minister, was the dominion's chief representative at most of the talks.

Important Meetings

Although Commonwealth prime ministers did not meet during the year—the next such conference is scheduled for London early in 1951—there were the usual meetings between representatives of various Commonwealth ministers Sept. 19-22 in London. George McIlraith, parliamentary secretary to the minister of trade and commerce, represented Canada at a series of informal discussions on general economic and trade questions.

A statement after the meetings said the sterling-area countries reached agreement on the need for continued economy in dollar expenditure.

One of the Commonwealth's happiest demonstrations of unity occurred in October at ceremonies in Westminster Hall marking the opening of the new British House of Commons chamber, rebuilt on the side of the one that was destroyed by German bombs, May 10, 1941. Speakers and presiding officers of nearly every Commonwealth country attended the "Housewarming." Canada was represented by W. R. Macdonald, speaker of the Canadian House of Commons.

Tension Remains

Tensions remained behind the facade of Commonwealth unity. Chief among them were the difficulties between India and Pakistan over Kashmir and the uneasiness among other Commonwealth countries over South Africa's policy of racial segregation.

Perhaps the biggest constitutional experiment in Africa is slated for early in 1951. Britain's rich Gold Coast colony goes to the ballot box in a general election which will confer most government portfolios on Africans elected by popular franchise. In political circles, the election is regarded as a daring gamble. One report published in Britain said only one in 10 of the cocoa colony's 4,000,000 inhabitants can read or write and that even fewer have any understanding of democracy.

In the field of colonial development, new large-scale ranching projects were announced for Borneo and Bechuanaland, and eggs from Gambia in West Africa began to appear in small quantities. Failure was finally admitted in one of the British government's most ambitious plans—to grow peanuts in East and Central Africa. The project cost more than £30,000,000 but produced few peanuts. At year's end officials indicated the original purpose had been pretty well abandoned.

PARTY MANNERS—Skipper usually isn't this polite— except when he's eating ice cream. This now suave but usually ill-mannered parrot belongs to Edward Noice of Ottawa. His liking for ice cream is exceeded only by the range of his unsavory vocabulary. Here he meditates over some of his favorite food.

Actress Seeks Divorce

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 15 (AP).—Movie actress Elizabeth Taylor announced Thursday that she intends to divorce Nick Hilton, son of the Hotel Tycoon. Eighteen-year-old Liz and Hilton, 23, were wed in May. They weren't back from their European honeymoon, however, before there were reports of trouble. Chiefly, the stories centred around Hilton's objections to the lack of privacy in being married to a movie star.

Pair Sent To Jail

WELLAND, Dec. 15 (CP).—Albert McGahey, 22 and Nicolas Freel, 19, both of Hamilton Thursday were each sentenced to 18 months for breaking and entering a department store at Fort Erie Sept. 14. George Charles Stevens, 21, and Anthony Codispodi, 19, drew suspended sentences on similar charges on payment of court costs of $100 or in default six months. Leonard Despodesta, fifth man charged, also was given a suspended sentence.

Police In Ontario Are Still Handicapped With Drunk Driving Suspects

TORONTO, Dec. 15 — (CP) — Police in Ontario apparently are as far as ever from solving the problem of how to prove scientifically the guilt of a drunk-driving suspect.

The scientific machinery to convict drunk drivers may be present but unless a suspect consents to its use, he is legally immune from submitting to it.

A loophole appeared — and vanished within 24 hours— in the legal tangle after the Ontario Court of Appeal ruled Wednesday that there is no legal necessity to obtain consent before making a driver undergo the test.

Clifford R. Magone, Deputy Attorney-General of Ontario, said Thursday that the court's point was theoretical.

Mr. Magone said his department could not authorize officers to order a test against the wishes of a drunk-driving suspect, because the suspect would then have legal grounds for a charge of assault against the department.

Still Need Consent

The Appeal Court, in dismissing the appeal of a Lansing man against a manslaughter conviction, had established only that police need not issue a statutory warning before a test is made. As far as the department was concerned, the driver's consent still was needed.

Mr. Magone said it would be possible in theory for a man to be convicted of drunk driving on the basis of a test taken without his consent—and to win an assault case against the department because of the test.

But he added that the department would never allow it to happen.

There is a possibility that police may eventually use the drunkometer—a gadget equipped with a balloon which tests a motorist's breath for alcoholic content—instead of the blood test.

Could Blow Balloon

While a police officer might be convicted of assault for forcing a man to shed blood, it is conceivable that the officer could escape a charge in forcing him to blow a balloon.

But an official of the attorney-general's department indicated that the legality of the balloon test in Ontario would have to be established in a court test case.

The balloon test is recognized in a few cities in the United States but not by the federal or state courts or anywhere in Canada.

Amnesia Victim

TORONTO, Dec. 15 — (CP) — The wife of a suburban North York township builder, Walter Frost, said Thursday he disappeared Tuesday, one week after he was slugged with a brick and robbed of $3,000. An amnesia victim found wandering downtown Windsor streets was identified Thursday as the missing man. He is in hospital there, waiting for his daughter to come from Toronto to take him home.

Forty Hours Devotions Conclude At Marmora

MARMORA, Dec. 15 (ENS)— The Forty Hours Devotions were concluded at Sacred Heart Church on Tuesday evening with the following clergy assisting in the sanctuary: the Right Rev. F. Garvin, Belleville; the Right Rev. J. Shannon, Tweed; the Rev. C. Baker, Stoco; the Rev. J. Buckley, Belleville; the Rev. A. Welsh and the Rev. J. Rowell, Kingston.

The Rev. Harold Murphy gave a sermon on "Communism." He told his hearers that their weapons against this pagan religion were the mass and the rosary. In conclusion, he paid tribute to the Rev. J. A. O'Neill, pastor of Sacred Heart Church, and thanked him for inviting him to Marmora to take charge of the devotions. The service closed with benediction and procession of the Blessed Sacrament and the Litany of the Saints.

Port Colborne's Winter Fleet Totals Twenty Ships

PORT COLBORNE, Dec. 15 (CP)—With the close of navigation less than a week away, Port Colborne's winter fleet totals 20 ships, slightly smaller than in previous years, partly due to the large amount of storage grain being handled at the port of Buffalo this year, instead of through Canadian ports.

At present the fleet consists of six barges, and two upper lakers, all with storage grain, and eight canallers, one upper laker and one self-unloader, all wintering light, and two more upper lakers to arrive light to winter. In addition to this Capt. R. Scott Misener's yacht Venetia is also berthed here.

Although the Welland ship canal officially closes Monday at midnight, three dates later than in previous years, the actual deadline for vessel passages is 4 p.m. Wednesday, Dec. 20.

Canal crews will work during the daylight shifts Tuesday and Wednesday to accommodate some vessels, mostly oil tankers which still have additional trips to make before the final closing limit.

Great Lakes shipping has worked all season to make up for the five weeks opening delay, but there has been no last-minute rush of grain ships or other carriers to beat the deadline of normal insurance rates. Despite the later opening, record tonnages have been set for the Welland Canal this year.

Howe, Sawyer Begin Steel Talks

WASHINGTON, Dec. 15 (AP) —C. D. Howe, Canada's Trade Minister, and Commerce Secretary Charles Sawyer Thursday talked over problems confronting the two countries in their geared-in defence efforts and arranged more conferences today.

William H. Harrison, head of the National Production Authority, Commerce Department Materials-Allocation Agency, sat in during part of the conference.

Supply problems in scarce steel and aluminum were understood to be getting special attention, and there were reports—not confirmed by the participants—that Howe was asking an allotment of steel to expand Canada's aluminum production.

Officials said Thursday the NPA is preparing to allocate some U.S. steel for Canada's freight car building program and for Canadian warehousemen, who supply small-scale operators, in line with similar allocations arrangements already made in this country.

Canada gets about one-third of its steel requirements from the U.S. and it supplies the U.S. with substantial quantities of aluminum.

In Car-Bus Crash London Man Dies

LONDON, Ont., Dec. 15 (CP)—Victim of an automobile-bus sideswipe crash at Ingersoll Dec. 9, Harold Farrelly, 45-year-old Londoner, died in hospital here Thursday night.

Veteran Beats 3 Amputations

KITCHENER, Dec. 15—(CP)—Helen Wendell refused to listen to the objections offered by Eddie Wilkie when he came back from the Second World War a "triple amp"—one of 14 Canadians to suffer this disability. They were married.

Today they have two sons, Alan 4, and Brian 2. Eddie, with his artificial legs and right arm, has been working steadily with his old firm, a rubber company, where he runs off stencilled forms.

The Wilkies have a trim brick house on No. 7 Highway. One of the first small-holders under the Veterans' Land Act in the Kitchener area, Eddie got a special hammer made and built his own home. He taught himself to use a saw with his left hand.

He does his own plowing too. He bought a garden tractor and learned to run it with his left hand.

When members of the War Amputations of Canada get together on picnics, it's easy to pick out Eddie. He's the noisiest fellow on the baseball team.

Chicago Strike Affects Ontario

LONDON, Ont., Dec. 15 (CP)—Tie-up of United States key railroad yards, caused by a spreading strike of yardworkers which began Wednesday in Chicago, is expected to have its effect in Western Ontario within a day or two if continued.

Both Canadian National and Canadian Pacific Railways officials here said Thursday the strike would definitely tie up freight and possibly passenger movement between here and Chicago within a day or two.

Much freight could be rerouted, they said, but freight between Ontario points and Chicago would not be able to move if yardmen continued their strike.

At St. Thomas, Alex R. Wilson, superintendent of the Buffalo division, Wabash Railway, said Thursday night the strike is having a slight effect with a drop in eastbound traffic, and that a prolonged strike would definitely have a serious effect over lines of the Wabash Railway in Canada.

Severely Injured

KINGSTON, Dec. 15 — (CP) — Burford Freeman, 18, of Hartington, Ont., was severely injured Thursday night when the light truck he was driving was struck by the locomotive of a Canadian Pacific Railway train 3½ miles north of here. The truck was carried 150 feet. Hospital authorities said the youth's condition was critical.

Korean War Scare And Rail Strike Top Busy Year

By GEORGE KITCHEN

OTTAWA, Dec. 15 — (CP) — Canada's political pulse quickened again in 1950.

Parliament met twice, once in the regular spring session and again in a special emergency session called to settle the domestic railway strike crisis and to authorize the raising of troops for Korea or elsewhere.

Four major federal-provincial conferences were held, three in Ottawa and one in Quebec, as representatives of Canada's 11 governments tussled with the tough economic and constitutional problems facing the country.

House Standing

Nine federal by-elections called during the year resulted in the loss of four Commons seats for the Liberals. Two went to the Progressive Conservative and two to the Independent-Liberal column. At the year end, the House standing was:

Liberals 185; Progressive Conservatives 43; CCF 13; Social Credits 10; Independents, five; Independent - Liberals, four; vacancies, two; total 262.

The contests were in the ridings of Halifax, Annapolis-Kings, Montreal St. Mary, Montreal Cartier, Rimouski, Joliette-L'Assomption-Montcalm, Toronto Broadview, Hamilton West and Welland.

The two vacancies still unfilled, in the Manitoba riding of Brandon and the Prince Edward Island seat of Queens, were created by the deaths of the sitting members, both Liberals.

Senate Appointments

There were three Senate appointments, leaving 14 vacancies at the year-end. The new senators are Dr. Vincent P. Burke, educationist from St. John's, Nfld., Gordon Isnor, Halifax, merchant and former Liberal members of the Commons for Halifax, and Charles B. Hawkins, lumberman from Milford Station, NS.

The year's biggest Cabinet shuffle was in January when Walter E. Harris became minister of immigration and Reconstruction Minister Winters was transferred to the new department of resources and development. Resources Minister Colin Gibson was appointed to the Ontario Supreme Court. In August, Veterans Minister Gregg was appointed labor minister to succeed the late Hon. Humphrey Mitchell, and Mr. Gregg's portfolio went to Solicitor-General LaPointe, while Justice Minister Garson assumed the solicitor-generalship. In December, George Prudham, Liberal member for Edmonton West, became minister of mines and technical surveys.

The spring session of parliament running from Feb. 16 to June 30, generally featured domestic legislation and a federal budget which left taxes pretty much unchanged.

Korean Trouble

Then came the worsening Korean situation and parliament met again from Aug. 29 to Sept. 15 to approve the raising of the special brigade, authorize new defence expenditures, boost taxes and grant the government certain emergency powers in the defence production field.

The federal-provincial conferences dealt with domestic issues. Three of them—two in Otawa and one in Quebec—were aimed at devising a satisfactory method of amending the Canadian constitution, while the fourth, in Ottawa, dealt with financial relationships between the federal and provincial governments.

In the non-political sphere, the term of Viscount Alexander as Governor-General was extended for another year. His five-year term was to have expired in the spring of 1951.

THE APPOINTMENT of Denis Headley, right, as assistant general freight agent with system jurisdiction for the Canadian National Railways, has been announced at Montread by John Pullen, general freight traffic manager. Formerly chief of the Tariff Bureau for the Central and Atlantic regions, Mr. Headley is succeeded in that office by W. A. Bell, left, former chief clerk to the freight traffic manager. Both will have headquarters at Montreal.

Damages $4,475

TORONTO, Dec. 15 (CP). — Damages of $4,475 were assessed Thursday against Max Oretsky of Owen Sound, for the death of Harry Harmon of Toronto in a two-automobile collision at nearby Dixie last May 7. A jury awarded the damages to Harmon's widow.

Attlee Sends US Child Sprig Of Heather

LONDON, Dec. 15 —(AP)— Prime Minister Attlee took time off from the worries of state Thursday to send a little American girl a sprig of heather.

The heather will go by air to Heather Ann Nordheimer, 8, of East Orange, NJ.

The dollar Heather Ann mailed the Prime Minister has been turned over to the British Girl Guides. They will spend it on a present for some Guide who chances to be ill during the Christmas holidays.

Heather Ann sent Attlee the dollar with a request for a sprig of her namesake shrub after reading that he wore one for good luck on his trip to North America last week.

Gov't Gets Plea From McAuliffe

SIMCOE, Dec. 15 (CP)—A plea for clemency on behalf of Herbert J. McAuliffe has been presented to the government in Ottawa.

McAuliffe is under sentence to hang here Dec. 19 for the machine-gun slaying of ArthurLierman following the Langton bank robbery last June.

The plea was placed before the cabinet by Justice Minister Stuart Garson, who received it from Arthur Maloney, Toronto lawyer who handled McAuliffe's appeal to the Supreme Court of Ontario, which was turned down recently.

Decision by the cabinet on the plea for clemency will probably not be known for several days.

In addition to the plea, a petition, asking for a reprieve for McAuliffe and signed by a number of Simcoe residents, is believed to have been forwarded to the cabinet. The petition stated that the signees felt McAuliffe deserved severe punishment but not the death sentence.

Push Apple Pie With Cheese As Leading Canadian Dish

OTTAWA, Dec 15 —(CP)— Apple pie with cheese has long been a family favorite, and now it's being pushed as the No. 1 Canadian dish.

At the Canadian Tourist Association convention in Calgary this fall the Canadian cuisine committee suggested that apple pie with Canadian cheese is due for a bit of promotion.

"As mediocre as it may be in some food establishments, it is still Canada's number one favorite," says the committee report. "Let's resolve to make and serve better apple pie in Canada."

Suggestions from the year-old committee are directed particularly at the public catering industry. It behooves the rest of us to take note of such recommendation.

This is paticularly so right now with cheese and apples heavy on the market—waiting to be bought by the Canadian consumer.

The apple crop may be a little below last year's huge one of 18,000,000 bushels and cheese production down somewhat from 1949. But there's still plenty for all.

Each Has Season

Home economists of the agriculture department's consumer section remind that each variety of apple has a definite season when flavor and texture are at their best.

December and January are the months to ask for fall varieties such as McIntosh, Baldwin, Northern Spy, Golden Russet and Winesap. In fact the latter is good right through from December until May.

Northern Spy is best for both eating and cooking. Golden Russet is an eating apple. Another variety at its peak right now is the Rome Beauty—good for cooking but only fair eating.

Steamed apple pudding is an excellent way to treat the family to apples.

Ingredients: Six apples, one-third cup sugar; one cup all-purpose flour; two teaspoons baking-powder; one-half teaspoon salt; one-half cup milk; two tablespoons shortening.

Pare core and slices apples into a buttered double boiler. Add sugar. Mix and sift the dry ingredients, cut in shortening and add the milk. Spread the dough over the apples. Steam 35 minutes. Turn out to serve. Six servings.

Christmas Sweets

Honey-almond balls are a special treat for the home-made candy fans.

Ingredients: Four squares unsweetened chocolate; one-half cup liquid honey; one-quarter teaspoon cinnamon; one-eight teaspoon salt; one-half cup finely chopped, blanched almonds.

Melt chocolate over hot water, add honey, cinnamon and salt. Beat well add almonds. Chill until firm enough to handle. Form into small balls about one inch in diameter. Roll balls in icing sugar or finely dessicated cocoanut. Yield: 30 balls.

Jean Wagar Circle Elects Officers

The Christmas meeting of the Jean Wagar Mission Circle of St. James United Church was held Tuesday night at the parsonage with Mrs. F. W. Craik as hostess.

The president, Miss Gladys Langton led in the impressive worship service which took the form of a candle-lighting ceremony. Five candles symbolizing joy, love, light, peace and hope were lighted. Scriptural selections and Christmas carols interspersed the lighting of the candles.

Assisting in this service were Mrs. L. Aikenhead, Mrs. M. Hunter, Mrs. R. Booth, Miss Jean Hammond, Miss Shirley Booth with Mrs. Craik at the piano.

An effective dramatization of "No Room at the Inn" was presented by Miss S. Potts, Miss J. Hammond, and Miss C. Wagar. Mrs. Aikenhead read the lovely story of "Sammy's Christmas." Mrs. Hunter, temperance secretary, gave a brief report on the evils of intemperance. The story, "Why the Chimes Rang" was told by Miss Connie Wagar.

During the business session, a gratifying report was heard from the treasurer, Mrs. G. Martin, revealing that the circle had reached their allocation. The president expressed her gratitude at the fine spirit and co-operation shown by the members during the past year.

The report of the nominating committee was presented by Miss Hammond and the election was conducted by the Rev. F. W. Craik. The 1951 executive is as follows Miss Constance Wagar, advisory president; Miss Gladys Langton, president; Mrs. Norma Ephgrave, recording secretary; Mrs. Dorothy Martin, treasurer; Mrs. A. Agnew, corresponding secretary; Miss J. Hammond, Christian stewardship secretary; Mrs. Grace Samson, assistant; Mrs. Alma Hunter, temperance secretary; Miss Shirley Potts, literature and missionary monthly; Miss May Welch, mite boxes; Mrs. Jennie Cuffe, and Mrs. Louise Seabrook community friendship; Mrs. Lillian Aikenhead and Mrs. Greta Van Nest, supply committee; Miss C. Wagar, press secretary; Miss Jean Hammond, pianist; Mrs. Marjorie Sedore, telephone convener.

A prayer by Mr. Craik closed the meeting. A Christmas quiz was enjoyed with Mr. Craik and Mrs. Sedore as winners. Refreshments were served by the hostess and the committee in charge, Miss J. Hammond, Miss Marian Wagar and Miss Connie Wagar.

TINY TWOSOME—Bantam blonde Anne Sholter of Prince Albert, Sask., 47 inches tall, is married to her pint-sized stage partner, Frank Cucksey of Brooklyn, N.Y., 50 inches in height. The ceremony, a simple double ring service, was performed by Rev. R. Gaudet, who stands six foot four, in Prince Albert's Sacred Heart Cathedral. The couple have toured eastern United States as a song and dance team. (See picture on Page 26).

Lakevale Ladies Learn English Customs

Ladies' Aid of the Lakevale Presbyterian Church, Fowler's Corners met at the home of Mrs. Melville Moncrief Wednesday evening.

President, Mrs. Wm. Richmond opened by reading a poem entitled "Harmony in heart and home", and later read an article entitled "Christmas spirit". Mrs. Melville Deyell read the Christmas story taken from St. Luke. The Rev. Mr. Kaye then led in prayer.

It was moved that Mrs. Melville Deyell remain as treasurer for the coming year. Mrs. D. McAdams offered her home for the January meeting.

The matter of buying matting for the church was again brought up and it was moved that Mrs. Melville Deyell and Mrs. Eva Deyell be authorized to purchase the matting.

Mrs. Melville Moncrief read an article entitled "Christmas Wishes".

Mr. and Mrs. Kaye favored the meeting with a duet "Christians awake! salute the happy morn" which Mr. Kaye explained is sung in all the churches in England at Christmas time.

Mrs. A. McConnell gave a reading entitled "Winter's Maternal Version", followed by a reading by Mrs. R. Blackbourn entitled "Christmas Carols" and Mrs. Eva Deyell read an article "Santa Claus wore white".

Mr. Kaye addressed the meeting, his talk based on "Christmas in England". He stated that Christmas begins immediately the clock has struck twelve. They decorate the houses and it is a season of gladness and everyone stays up until midnight and sings Christmas Carols. The choirs from the various churches meet and at twelve o'clock they go outside and sing three or four carols at each house. They break up around three or four o'clock in the morning.

In England they use holly for decoration and mistletoe. The custom of kissing under the mistletoe is a favorite one. The children also go out singing carols on Christmas morning. Most of the churches have services on Christmas Day. At the homes fruit cake and cheese is served.

Mr. Kaye also read a story by Phillips Brooks—"Voice of the Christ Child".

The president thank Mr. Kaye for bringing a knowledge of the customs observed in England at Christmas.

Folowing the meeting a contest of Christmas songs and carols was won by Mrs. Ross Smith. The exchange of gifts then took place.

The hostess and the lunch committee served an appetizing lunch.

Men Often Find Divorce Fails to Bring Happiness

DEAR MISS DIX: This is a message to married men from a man who has been through the mill. If there is anything that gives me a pain in the neck, it is the squawking of married men over the slavery of marriage and the joys of single life. It's the bunk. I have been married and divorced, and believe me, I am getting married again as soon as I can afford it.

Dorothy Dix

The trouble with these dissatisfied men is that they want their cake and to eat it, too. They want the security and spiritual satisfaction of marriage without the responsibility of a home and having to support a wife. They think that if they were single again life would be one long gay party. I thought the same way and that I would be happier with the bonds of marriage broken, but I was wrong. Many a lonely evening do I spend in my room, too tired to call up a girl for a date; wishing for a home dinner instead of restaurant food, a real companion at my side to talk to and feel comfortable with and whom I would have to exert myself to keep entertained and amused for fear she would think I was a dead one. I've tried both and it is the married life for me.

EX-HUSBAND.

ANSWER: There are a lot of other ex-husbands whose experiences match this man's and who have found that divorce has not brought them the happiness they expected. For whether a marriage is happy or unhappy, it somehow unfits a man for single blessedness.

Long For Lost Shelter

Certain it is that many a man who has regarded his home as a jail, out of which he was crazy to break finds after he has smashed his way out of it and torn it down with his own hands that there is nothing he longs for so much as to be back again in its safety, shelter and comfort.

The trouble with most of the disgruntled husbands who have got fed up on domestic life is that they think that if they could only get free of their wives and their responsibilities that they would be gay, light-hearted lads again.

But when they get their divorces they find that after the first wild rapture of freedom has subsided that the calendar hasn't been turned back. They can't carouse all night and work all day as they once did, and they have to pay for their fun with too many headaches. And they begin to think regretfully of the homes they have wrecked, of the peace and quiet of their own firesides. They think of the good home cooking and of the women who loved them and were faithful to them and who have helped them save their money. And there are mightly few of them who don't wish that they hadn't broken their marriage bonds.

DEAR MISS DIX: I have a friend who is planning to be married this summer. She works and will continue to do so after marriage, but the serious part of the situation is that she plans to continue clothing her two sisters, aged 12 and 15, until they are self-supporting, as their parents are dead. The man knows about this and it is all right with him now, but won't he get tired of her going without things she needs, as she now does, and spending her money on her sisters? Should she take the risk? MOLLY

ANSWER: The only particular risk I see in this marriage is the risk of the man turning out to be a tightwad who will feel that he has a right to every penny his wife earns. As she seems to have taken the precaution of finding out his views on the subject before she marries him, let's hope it will turn out all right.

And at any rate, the woman's sacrifices will not be for long. Girls of 12 and 15 grow up very rapidly and it will not be long until they will be on their own feet. And, perhaps, the good clothes their sister gives them will help them to make fine marriages.

DEAR DOROTHY DIX: What is a woman's intuition, and should it be given any consideration?

J. A. R.

ANSWER: A woman's intuition is popularly supposed to be some occult faculty that she has for taking a flying leap in the dark and landing on both feet in making a decision. In other words, it is playing a hunch.

It is what makes a woman say: "I just had the feeling that it would rain on the day we set to go to the picnic." Or: "I just had an intuition that the cook would be sick when the Browns came to visit us." It is observable that intuition seems to work better backward than forward. Nevertheless women have great faith in their own, though scant respect for other women's hunches. Practically, intuition doesn't seem worth a darn, or otherwise women would all get rich playing the stock market or the races.

MARY MOORE SAYS:

Shortbread for Christmas Or for a New Year's Treat

Every December so many hard decisions have to be made. For instance think what a strain it is to decide between a shortbread recipe without rice flour and one with. For—according to some of my feuding friends—this is worth arguing about.

I quietly went home and made my dear old standby:

Scotch Shortbread

One pound butter, 1 cup well-packed icing sugar, 4 cups well-packed bread flour, shake of salt if desired. Of course you cream the butter, and gradually add the sugar by sifting it, same as you have been "creaming and gradually adding" those two little numbers for years and years, but in this you work in the flour with your hands until the dough holds together. The heat of your hands accelerates this process.

Now if you are Scottish you press it into pans to one-half inch or three-quarters inch thickness, and prick it with a fork and bake in a slow oven. If you are an average Canadian you roll it out and pat and press (to make it roll out just once without cracking at edge) and cut it out with small cookie cutter—the cookies being either thick or thin according to your nature and nationality. I like it to finish up with half-inch thick cookies—something you bit into. Barb. likes them one-quarter inch thick—something dainty to nibble on. In any event bake slowly at 325 deg. Fahr.—do not brown these at all.

Variations of shortbread are only limited by your imagination.

The above dough may be divided into three parts: To one-third of dough add ½ cup ground or chopped raw cashews or blanched almonds. When cookies are rolled and cut out, press top of each cookie into finely chopped nuts; to second one-third of dough add ½ teaspoon freshly grated nutmeg and 2 tablespoons each very finely chopped drained red and green maraschino cherries; to last part add finely grated cocoanut, and press cut out cookies in tiny silver dragees. I am describing in this paragraph what I am doing for some boxes of Christmas cookies I am packing for gifts. They are designed both to taste and appear attractive.

The above dough may be cut out in fancy shapes and all of the variations made from outside. Press a large whole pecan on some, but before doing so brush the top of the cookie with egg white to make it stick. Nuts very easily fall off after baking. Cut some out like very small Christmas trees and sprinkle with green tinted sugar that may be bought in glass bottles in confectionery stores.

For the children roll the cookies thin and cut out in Santa Claus or bell shaped and decorate with tiny pieces of red and green candied cherries to make features and buttons, etc.

CAUTION: Shortbread is made with butter or margarine, both of which scorch easily. If you overheat or overbake shortbread you are merely burning the butter, and this gives the shortbread a strong taste. Bake shortbread until when you scrape it with your finger nail it feels crisp, and does not catch in your nail. It should be only one shade darker when baked than it was when it was unbaked.

WCTU's Meet In Fairview Home

A special Christmas meeting of the Smith and Lakefield WCTU was held at the home of Mrs. Wesley Bell of Fairview, when there were 25 ladies present.

The president, Mrs. J. Gordon Mann, opened the meeting with a poem entitled "Looking Out of the Window."

Fairview ladies took the devotions with Mrs. Cephas Heard in charge. Following hymn singing, the scripture lesson was read by Mrs. Clarence Mann and prayer by Mrs. Harold Lewis. Mrs. Fred Bell read a poem.

The special speaker was Mrs. Austin Poast, president of the Peterborough WCTU and a former member. Mrs. Poast gave reports of the dominion and provincial conventions. Mrs. Elmer Milburn, in expressing appreciation to the speaker, stated that the union was very fortunate in hearing so many reports, the world report from Hastings, England, which was presented by Mrs. Allan B. Mann at the last meeting, and those presented this meeting.

Mrs. W. D. Wilson expressed thanks to the hostess.

The president took charge of the business. The ladies decided to purchase a little gift for each pupil writing on the scientific temperance papers.

Lakefield ladies, Mrs. Yale, Mrs. Porter and Mrs. Brown, all spoke briefly on some temperance project. Mrs. Brown mentioned the work and effort put forth by the temperance workers in Lakefield when the vote was carried by the drys.

The meeting was closed with prayer and lunch was served.

Of Interest to Women

MARRIAGE IN MINIATURE—Midget stage and screen stars smile happily leaving Sacred Heart Cathedral, Prince Albert, Sask., after teaming up for a long engagement as man and wife. Doll-like Anne Sholter of Prince Albert, 47 inches tall, married her stage partner, Frank Cucksey of Brooklyn, N.Y., who stands 50 inches. Both have appeared in Hollywood movies and toured the eastern United States as a song and dance team. (See also picture on Page 23).

Elizabeth Parker Auxiliary Meets

The Ladies' Parlor of Trinity United Church was gaily decorated for the Christmas meeting of the Elizabeth Parker Auxiliary Monday night.

The business session was in charge of Miss M. Sargent, president. Favorable reports were read and a slate of officers were given for next year. Installation of officers will take place in January.

A trio, Miss B. Woodcock, Miss A. Gordon and Miss J. Sketch from the intermediate choir sang tow fine vocal selections with Miss G. Giles as accompanist.

The guest speaker for the meeting was Major C. Everitt of the Salvation Army, who gave a most interesting talk about "The First Christmas Tree," "The Star" and also explained how Christmas is celebrated in other countries. Major Everitt was introduced by Miss I. Giles and thanked by Miss E. Bennett.

Also assisting in the devotional program were Miss M. Nelson, Miss A. Edmison, Mrs. F. Rappe and Mrs. W. Head.

Following the close of the meeting, light refreshments were served.

Dear Friends and Neighbours— It is with deep appreciation for the sincere sympathy shown us by so many in the loss of a husband and father that we take this opportunity to express our thanks. Board Endorses Stand On Civilian Defense

The board appointed a committee to act on behalf of the chamber in this regard if necessary. Those appointed to the comittee were W. M. Gemmell, chairman; E. S. Baker and Ross Thompson.

This action was taken to assure the city of the co-operation of the chamber in the council's plan to carry out an active program in civilian defense.

At the council meeting Tuesday night, Mayor M. J. Swanston and Ald. J. A. Dewart were authorized to nominate a general committee on civilian defense.

Chrysler Lists Price Increases

DETROIT, Dec. 15 (AP) — Chrysler Corporation Thursday night announced price increases on its 1951 model automobiles, joining with General Motors and Ford who recently announced boosts.

Chrysler said its new prices would range from $80 to $195 above the tags on its 1950 models.

Dodge truck prices are raised from $80 to $295.

Chrysler, third member of the industry's "big three," was the last major producer to set prices for its 1951 models.

Earlier in the day Buick Motors announced price increases of $45 to $127 on new model cars.

In Windsor, a spokesman for the Chrysler Corporation of Canada said that prices of 1951 models in Canada have not been set.

Production on 1950 models was discontinued recently to make way for a model change-over and a reorganization of assembly lines in an enlarged plant here.

Engineers Hear Talk On Steel

Manufacture of steel was discussed at the monthly meeting of the Peterborough branch of the Engineering Institute of Canada by R. M. McGee in the public library. He is sales representative of the Jones and Laughlin Steel Company of Pittsburgh, Ohio.

Mr. McGee described the production of steel for the 70 members, from iron ore mining through the blast furnaces to the rolling of steel shapes. The method of loading and unloading the iron ore ships on the Great Lakes was discussed with emphasis on the mechanized equipment now used. A ship with 14,000 tons of iron ore can be unloaded by mechanical methods in four hours.

Frank Pope, mechanical engineer of the Western Clock Co., reported the formation of a Belleville branch of the institute.

Arms Production Transition Hoped Smooth

By FORBES RHUDE
Canadian Press Business Editor.

There is some concern that the shift in production from peacetime goods to defence items may cause an interim downturn in business and, therefore, in employment.

The currently monthly letter of the National City Bank of New York discusses this possibility in regard to the United States. On the whole, it takes an optimistic view, and, as the course of the shift in United States will have some bearing on the supply of materials in Canada, the letter is of interest here. It comments in part:

Government programs are tightening their grip on industries from two directions — by reducing material supplies and by curtailment of demand (through restrictions on consumer and housing credit).

These moves mark the real beginning of the impact or armament expansion on the economy. They usher in the period when the employment of labor, materials and factories for civilian purposes will be reduced by priorities and limitations and by checking demand, and when a shift of men and materials from peacetime work to war work must be brought about.

Smooth Transition

In terms of the outlook for business, the question is whether there will be a smooth transition, with work on armament orders taking up the slack in employment as civilian workers are released. It is not to be expected that friction and unsettlement can be wholly avoided.

However, there is an encouraging record of experience. In the fall of 1941 the same question was pressing, and in greater degree. Many people took a pessimistic view of the ability of the economic organization to make the necessary shifts with minimum disturbance. The term "priorities unemployment" was coined....

In a short time it became clear that the situation was never as bad as it had been described, and that despite confusion and mismanagement it was steadily curing itself.

Experience Reversed

The reverse of the experience came in 1945 and 1946 when predictions of "reconversion unemployment" ranging up to 8,000,000 people were common and proved to be woefully exaggerated.

While this experience is testimony to the ability of the economy to accomplish a shift in the use of resources with encouraging speed and effectiveness, it is nevertheless true that the principal responsibility must fall on the government authorities.

If they move too early and too strongly in limiting civilian work before equivalent war orders are ready, they will bring about unnecessary unemployment, disruption of working forces and productive facilities, and loss of output.

Rail Strike Settled After 4 Days

Settlement Follows Truman Plea In Emergency Talk

WASHINGTON, Dec. 16 — (AP)—A high-ranking Union official said today that the railway strike which hobbled transportation in the United States for four days has been settled.

The official, who asked not to be identified, said that agreement on all issues was reached here late Friday night. He did not say how the union, the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen, fared in the reported agreement.

Settlement of the strike followed close on the heels of a request by President Truman that striking trainmen return to work in the interest of national defence.

The trainmen have been in a wage-hour dispute with the carriers for 21 months. Last August the army took over technical control of the roads to avert a walkout by both the trainmen and railway conductors.

The conductors, however, have not been involved in this "wildcat" strike.

Termination of the strike which started five days ago in Chicago and spread quickly to Washington, Cleveland, St. Louis and other cities, was expected to end serious tie-ups of parcel post and railway express. Christmas packages have been widely embargoed.

Strikers returned to work in the early morning in at least two cities—Washington, and Battle Creek, Mich. Truman's appeal was said to have been at least partly responsible.

While there was no general back-to-work move in the early morning hours, there were reports of strikers being told to return to their jobs later today.

One report was in Chicago, the country's rail centre where the strike started last Wednesday. A local union president said chiefs of the Chicago locals had decided to end the walkout.

The strikers had ignored three federal court orders to end the walkout. W. P. Kennedy, president of the BRT also had urged them to return to work. But there were no signs of a back-to-work movement until after Truman's speech Friday night.

Man Of The Year

LONDON, Dec. 16—(AP)—Gen. MacArthur has been named "man of the year" in a poll conducted by The London Daily Express which claims more than 4,200,000 circulation. The poll named Winston Churchill "man of the year in Britain."

Ottawa Man Found Guilty Of Manslaughter

HULL, Que., Dec. 16 (CP). — John Ralph Hooper, 27-year-old son of a well-to-do Ottawa family was found guilty of manslaughter by a Court of King's Bench jury which deliberated for five hours here Friday night.

Hooper had been charged with murder in the hand-towel slaying last March 29 of a 25-year-old Ottawa woman, Gertrude Marion Davis.

The nude body of Miss Davis was found on a bed in a third-floor room of a dingy Hull rooming house on the day of March 29, some hours after she and Hooper had signed into the establishment as man and wife. A dampened hand towel was knotted tightly about her neck.

The jury brought back a verdict of guilty of manslaughter after the trial judge, Mr. Justice Theodule Rheaume, in his charge, had said he could find no reasons for a manslaughter verdict, and that the decision should be either guilty as charged — or murder—or not guilty.

Recommend Clemency

The jury also entered a strong recommendation for clemency.

Hooper is scheduled to be sentenced at the end of the current court sittings—probably in about a week.

The case ended late Friday after addresses by the judge, crown attorney Avila Labelle and Hon. Alexandre Tache, chief defence counsel.

Following the verdict, Mr. Labelle said he will communicate with Premier Duplessis of Quebec —attorney-general for the province—with a view to appealing the case on behalf of the crown. Mr. Labelle held that the jury should have returned a verdict of guilty or not guilty of the charge of murder.

Mr. Tache earlier Friday surprised spectators when, after the crown had concluded the calling of a number of witnesses, he announced he would call no witnesses for the defence.

Mr. Tache said he was prepared to rest his case "upon the crown's evidence."

Addressing the jury, he stressed the fact—admitted by the crown —that all of the evidence had been circumstantial. Hooper had registered at the rooming-house with the woman; had left after an hour or two; and no one else had been seen going to the room. He suggested the possibility that a fire escape leading to the room might have been used by someone else—"possibly a sex maniac."

US President Proclaims Emergency

Partial Price Control Has Been Imposed, Mobilize Production

WASHINGTON, Dec. 16 — (AP)— President Truman today proclaimed a state of national emergency, summoning the nation to marshal its strength against the threat of "Communist world conquest".

Truman signed the proclamation at 10:20 a.m. EST. His action was announced by Stephen Early, acting press secretary, five minutes later.

The proclamation called all Americans to a united effort to build up the nation's armed forces and throw the "full moral and material strength" of the United States into the protection of its freedom.

The White House released a long list of laws, carrying extraordinary powers, which it said automatically became effective upon signing of the declaration.

But many of them were merely re-assertions of powers already held by Truman under the defence production act and other post-war legislation.

May Not Use Some

Further, Early said, it is uncertain whether Truman will use some of the emergency powers.

The proclamation is a part of Truman's effort to get production-speeding, inflation-curbing machinery in motion behind a rearmament program aimed at forcing Russia to choose peace instead of war.

In a major address on Friday night, Truman heralded the proclamation as intended to call on "every citizen to put aside his personal interests for the good of the country." He called it a first step toward "rapid expansion to full mobilization if that becomes necessary."

For members of two more National Guard units, that means a call to active service in January. For young men stepped-up draft inductions are in order on the road to a 3,500,000-man armed force for the United States.

For the man on the street, the new accelerated program involves selective price-wage controls on defence and cost-of-living items, higher taxes, longer work days in factories and on farms, curtailed civilian production and sharp cut-backs in government non-defence spending.

DR. GRANT BRECKENRIDGE, a Peterborough son, and prominent surgeon, died suddenly in his Montreal office Friday evening.

G. Breckenridge Noted Surgeon Dies In Montreal

Dr. Grant Breckenridge, son of Mr. and Mrs. M. T. Breckenridge, of Pearl Avenue, died suddenly in his office in the Medical Arts Building, Montreal, Friday evening between six and seven. He had not previously been ill. Funeral services will be held in Montreal on Monday, and burial is expected to take place in Peterborough on Tuesday.

Dr. Breckenridge was a prominent specialist in orthopaedic surgery. He leaves his wife, three young daughters and one son, all between the ages of seven years and six months; a sister, Mrs. Douglas Agnew, of Ottawa; and a brother, Dr. R. A. Breckenridge, of Akron, Ohio. He was in his 37th year.

Dr. Grant Breckenridge went from Peterborough Collegiate Institute to Queen's University where he graduated from medical school in 1936. From there he went to Ottawa Civic Hospital, and thence for specialized study to Massachusetts General Hospital at Boston and Harvard University . He enlisted early during the war in the Canadian navy, attaining the rank of lieutenant-commander. He gained prominence for his work as a naval surgeon, and after the war set up a consulting and surgical practice in Montreal, where he was also on the teaching staff of McGill University. He was a head surgeon at the Children's Memorial Hospital, Montreal.

Dr. Breckenridge has only just returned from professional conferences in New York, Philadelphia and Washington.

Won't Follow Truman Lead

OTTAWA, Dec. 16. The government may seek new mobilization powers at the next session of parliament, but there is no intention at this stage of invoking the far-reaching emergency or wartime legislation known as the War Measures Act, it was indicated Friday night.

Those were the signs as official Ottawa watched Washington and listened to the radio for the ramifications of a US mobilization plan that appeared to be going to dwarf anything Canada has done or has in mind now.

Prime Minister St. Laurent was at home in Quebec City where he planned to hear President Truman's broadcast address.

Trade Minister Howe was in Washington or preparing to head back to Ottawa and officials said he may have sought clarification there of just what Washington's new plans are.

The general attitude here was one of wait-and-see.

Informed quarters said Canada has at this time no intention of declaring a national emergency or of embarking on all-out mobilization and all-out controls. But it was considered obvious that anything like the enormous US plan now shaping up will inevitably affect Canada broadly, although not immediately.

Cling To One Last Toehold At Hungnam Port Used For Evacuation

Reds Hurl Thousands of Men At One Point In Allied Perimiter Line, Sheer Weight of Numbers Brings Victory

TOKYO, Dec. 16—(AP)—Allied beachhead forces abandoned Hamhung today to the Chinese Communists pounding against them in masses of "sea wave" attacks. The defenders withdrew from the wrecked industrial city into a tight ring around Hungnam port on the Sea of Japan, six miles to the southeast. Demolition charges blasted the heart of Hamhung before the pull-out.

Terror-stricken North Korean refugees swarmed by tens of thousands across frozen fields and down roads toward the Allied beachhead.

As the last American soldier left Hamhung at 12.30 p.m. (10.30 p.m. EST Friday), a Red Korean flag flapped out over one house.

Field dispatches indicated the withdrawal was made according to plan into defences in depth to the shore.

Open To Reds

The city lay open to Chinese Communists who watched from outlying ridges as demolitions sent towering clouds of black smoke into the sky.

Then the Chinese swarmed into the Hamhung suburbs.

The Chinese pressed Allied defenders into their shrinking beachhead with attacks that overran forward positions by sheer weight of manpower masses.

"They are throwing great groups of people in columns at one point in our line," Maj.-Gen. Robert H. Soule said.

"It is the same 'sea wave' tactic they used in China (to rout Chiang Kai-shek's Nationalists).

"They try to overrun one particular position. It's a ferocious attack. They blow bugles and whistles and suddenly strike in such numbers they are bound to overrun some of us.

"You just have got to kill them. That's the only thing—stick and kill them."

Crime Syndicate Recruits Youths On Stealing Jobs

ORILLIA, Dec. 16 (CP).—The story of how two youths were lured into a life of crime and of Fagin-like characters who used threats to increase their share of the spoils was told Friday in Orillia police court.

Donald Prophet, 17, and Donald Bresso, 16, pleaded guilty to stealing $400 worth of tires, a radio and an outboard motor from a garage at Hawkestone, a village five miles from here. Both were remanded one week for sentence.

Prophet testified that while working at a Toronto service station he was approached by a man who promised a sizeable reward for a load of tires from the Orillia district.

Advanced $25.

The man advanced him $25 to rent a truck, Prophet said, and the youth got Bresso to help him. Early Sunday the two broke into the Hawkestone garage.

Prophet said he drove the loot to Toronto and acting on instructions left the truck in front of a Dundas Street restaurant where it was picked up by the instigator of the crime.

Prophet said they were rebuked for not bringing back enough tires, given $10 and ordered to return to Orillia for more with threats of a beating if they were not more successful.

Provincial police here arrested Prophet and Bresso Tuesday. Police said two Toronto men were questioned in connection with the case.

Board Of Reference To Consider Dispute

SUDBURY, Dec. 16. (CP) — A Board of Reference will consider a salary dispute between 62 secondary school teachers and the Sudbury High School board.

It was announced Friday night that the three-man board headed by Judge as. M. Cooper of Sudbury, will hold sessions here, probably within the next two weeks The teachers' group and the board will appoint representatives.

The teachers seek a general increase of $800 a year, with a minimum of $3,000 and a maximum of $5,400. They have threatened to strike Dec. 31 unless their request is met. The board has offered a general increase of $300, with a minimum of $2,500 and a maximum of $4,300.

Transportation Paralyzed In UK

LONDON, Dec. 16 — (AP) - Freezing weather following snowstorms today paralyzed road transportation in many portions of the British Isles and disrupted train services for the second day.

Snowplows worked to clear roads to north country villages isolated by huge snow banks. London had its coldest night of winter—24 above zero—and all Britain recorded sub-freezing mercury readings.

Electric heaters were used to such an extent that power was reduced on a Saturday for the first time this year.

The two race tracks cancelled the day's events as snow continued to pile up in norther England.

Snow also was reported from most points on the continent and Paris streets were frozen for the first time this winter.

Beam Saves Miner's Life Entombed For 54 Hours

SELLECK, Wash., Dec. 16—(AP)—His life saved by the same huge beam that held him prisoner 400 feet underground for 54 hours of torture, John Wolti was clawed to freedom by rescue crews Friday night. The miner, who has lived one year for every hour he spent pinned in the big coal mine, was weak, pain-wracked and near a state of shock when brought to the surface.

His right arm was crushed and his face covered with a grimy, three day growth of beard. Etched into his face was a record of the agonizing, doubt-filled hours he had spent in what rescuers were sure until early Friday was his tomb.

Wolti was caught in an avalanche of rock and timbers Wednesday when the mine roof gave way. Several other miners escaped, but they were sure he had been swept to his death by the slide.

Protected By Beam

And he would have been, too, Wolti said, except for a huge 12-by-12 timber. It held him securely, but it and others fell around him in such a manner that they held off the other debris.

"It got cold, then it got colder," he recalled after his arrival in hospital.

"A long time went by. A hell of a long time. Then I heard some noise. I whistled. I yelled as best I could. I don't know whether they heard me.

"Then I kind of gave up. I didn't think I could make it. I passed out. Then I came to and heard more noise. I yelled and

$1,600,000 A Day Spent On Liquor

OTTAWA, Dec. 16 (CP) — More than $1,600,000 a day was spent on liquor in Canada during the fiscal year ended March 31, 1949.

In a report Friday the Bureau of Statistics showed that from March 31, 1948, to April 1, 1949, a total of $614,000,000—an increase of $42,000,000 from the previous fiscal year—was spent on liquor, beer and wine.

"It must be remembered," said the report, "that these amounts are not all spent by Canadians." The figures included purchases by tourists and other visitors to Canada.

"It should be remembered, too, that a substantial proportion of the amounts—more than 50 per cent—was returned to the federal and provincial governments as duties, taxes and other revenue."

While the report gave the consumers' liquor bill only up to March 31, 1949, there were figures showing the apparent consumption of alcoholic beverages and the federal taxes collected on them up to last March 31.

In the 1949-50 fiscal year the apparent consumption was 6,969,000 proof gallons of spirits, 181,442,503 gallons of beer and 4,894,649 gallons of wine.

Former Life Prisoner Begins Righteous Life

SALT LAKE CITY, Dec. 16 — (AP)—The prisoner "emeritus" of Utah state penitentiary today settled into a "righteous" life as vice-president of a $100,000 machine tool firm.

Robert H. McCoy, 58-year-old convicted murderer and robber yesterday gained his third parole after serving a commuted sentence of 26 years.

The business in which he begins active participate today is the McCoy Machine Tool Corporation. It will manufacture steel cutting shears and other inventions devised by McCoy during his stay in prison.

McCoy was a fine mechanic when he went wrong. He and a partner held up the Woods Cross, Utah, bank. A bystander was shot to death in the ensuing battle. McCoy drew a life sentence, later commuted.

MacArthur's Terms Given To Red Chinese

NEW YORK, Dec. 16 (AP).—India's Sir Benegal N. Rau will report Gen. MacArthur's terms for a cease-fire in Korea to Communist China's Wu Hsiu-chuan this weekend and, in return, ask for Peiping's conditions.

Wu and his alternate, Chaio Kuan-hua, conferred with the UN secretary-general Trygve Lie at Lake Success for 75 minutes Friday night. It was announced they requested Lie to hold a press conference. It was scheduled for 3 p.m. EST today.

Rau is acting for the three-man U.N. cease-fire committee which began work Friday in an effort to rush a peaceful solution of the Korean war. The other members are Canada's Minister of External Affairs, L. B. Pearson, and Nasrollah Entezam of Iran, president of the general assembly.

The Indian diplomat will report back to the committee, probably Monday morning, on the result of his talks with Wu, and the group will then try to reconcile the opposing views with the aim of finding the basis for a truce.

Canadians Going Same Port As Evacuated UN Marines

KOBE, Japan, Dec. 16 (CP)—The troop transport carrying the 2nd battalion of Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry to Korea was docked at this Japanese port today to take on equipment needed to re-supply American marines evacuated from the Hamhung area of northeast Korea.

It is believed the evacuated marines are destined for the same Korean port as the Canadian troops. The marines will be regrouped and refitted there.

The trooper Pvt. Joe P. Martinez, which brought the Canadians and other American troops here from Seattle, also is expected to take on reinforcements here for the evacuated marines.

Awaiting the arrival of the Canadians in Korea is an advance party of about 350 men, mostly tradesmen and specialists. They are encamped near Pusan, big port of the southeastern tip of Korea.

The Canadians, about 1,000 strong, again had a brief route march through Kobe to limber up. They had marched through Yokohama during their stop there.

At first, the battalion's commanding officer, Lt.-Col. J. M. (Big Jim) Stone of Salmon, B.C., confined the troops aboard ship because six Patricias had missed the ship at Yokohama Thursday. It was learned in Kobe Friday night that all six are staying at the Canadian liaison mission in Tokyo and will be flown to Korea to meet the battalion there. Col. Stone, however, reversed the decision today when informed the troops' presence aboard ship impeded efficient loading of the vessel.

The Patricias are expected to arrive at their Korean destination some time Sunday.

Steel Supplies For Canada Pledged By US Officials

WASHINGTON, Dec. 16 (CP)—Thousands of tons of American steel soon will be flowing into Canadian plants to be used for construction of ore carriers, tankers and freight cars.

In return, the United States has agreed to re-open promptly the proposal to buy Canadian aluminum for her own armament program.

These announcements came on Friday at the end of a two-day conference between C. D. Howe, Canadian Trade Minister, and Charles Sawyer, US Secretary of Commerce.

The national production authority, which comes under Sawyer's Department, agreed to authorize the delivery to Canada of 1,300 tons of steel for the building of ore carriers and tankers as well as facilities for producing titanium.

The NPA also took immediate action to allocate 8,000 tons of steel products monthly from March through June in 1951 to help complete 11,000 new Canadian-built freight cars which are used interchangeably across the US-Canadian border.

The US Defence Agency at the same time undertook to provide a steady flow of steel products to Canadian warehouses—the retail steel outlets which supply most of the small and medium-sized plants.

The breakdown in negotiations for US purchase of Canadian aluminum occurred last October. At that time US authorities rejected a Canadian plan under which the US would buy 200,000 tons of the metal from the Aluminum Company of Canada.

In explanation for their action the US authorities claimed that the purchase of Canadian aluminum would, in effect, underwrite an expansion of Canadian plant facilities which would not produce aluminum in quantity for the next two or three years.

But it has been held up largely through mechanical difficulties in reproducing a large quantity of material attached to the findings

Toronto Union Loses Charter Over One Man

TORONTO, Dec. 16 (CP). — The Toronto Firefighters' Association said Friday it has lost its charter for refusing to retain as an active member a man who now works for the Ontario Fire Marshal's department.

Capt. Don Dunlop, president of the 890-member Toronto organization said the charter was lifted by the executive of the International Association of Firefighters whose head office is in Washington.

The local group refused, when Capt. Edward Bevis retired from the Toronto fire department and became administrator of the Ontario Fire Departments Act, to continue to recognize him as an active member.

Two other men who took jobs with the Fire Marshal accepted honorary memberships, Capt Dunlop said. Capt. Bevis had refused; he appealed to the international executive.

"Firemen don't come under the Ontario Labor Relations Act" said Capt. Dunlop. "The Fire Departments Act, which Bevis administers, is the collective bargaining act for us. We take the position that in that capacity he has joined the side of management and should not be a member of our union. In effect, we have lost our charter because we refuse to keep management in our union."

Cancels Connection

Lifting of the charter, he said, automatically cancels the Toronto association's connection with the Trades and Labor Congress of Canada and the American Federation of Labor, both of whom require of members that they be in good standing with their international unions.

Capt. Dunlop said the international executive's action is contrary to a decision taken in September at the international association's convention in Milwaukee. At that time, he said, the executive recommendation that the Toronto group be cast adrift was turned down by the membership.

"We can't appeal to the membership until the next international convention in 1952 at Seattle. But locals in New York, Buffalo, Cleveland, Boston and Philadelphia have advised us they'll appeal direct to the executive. If that doesn't work, maybe it will have to have court action taken by these American locals on our behalf."

Allow Appeal For Adoption

TORONTO, Dec. 16 (CP) — The Ontario Appeal Court Friday gave a Pembroke couple another opportunity to apply for permanent adoption of a Roman Catholic-born child they have raised a Protestant.

Julia Yvonne LeSieur, born Jan. 29, 1947, was given by her mother, Adele LeSieur, to Mr. and Mrs. Palmer Gibeau of Pembroke, about two months later.

The mother, now Mrs. James Keuhl, took this action "of her own free will," the court was told. She consented to have the child brought up in the Protestant faith.

James Keuhl formerly of Sudbury, where the child was born, had "become a Catholic" and, with his wife, had pleaded for return of the child "so that she might be brought up in the religion of her parents."

Renfrew County Judge J. T. Mulcahy last May 31 refused the Gibeaus' application for permanent adoption papers.

The appeal court ruled Friday that Gibeaus may apply again for permission to retain the child.

U.S. President

The president put General Electric's Charles E. Wilson in charge of an office of defence mobilization, giving him responsibility for directing production, procurement, manpower, transportation and economic stablization.

It will be Wilson's job to see that within a year the United States is turning out planes at five times the present rate of production—a step up to somewhere between 18,000 and 24,000 planes a year compared with the 100,000 top production during the Second World War.

Truman promised a four-fold increase in combat vehicles, including tanks, and a 4½ times as much electronic equipment as now is being turned out.

To start this speed-up, the House of Representatives shouted its approval Friday of a $17,809,000,000 military fund bill. Senate passage is expected next week. Military officials said they will go back to Congress for at least $5,000,000,000 more to spend before June 30, upping the year's total to about $47,000,000,000.

Grimly, Truman told the country in a radio address Friday night:

"The future of civilization depends on what we do—what we do now and in the months ahead."

War Not Inevitable

Truman said war is not inevitable, but he ruled out appeasement to avoid it. Instead, the free countries must "create military forces strong enough to convince the Communist rulers that they cannot gain by aggression."

The proposed controls, not yet officially announced, could cover such products as automobiles, where the government's efforts to halt price increases not only were rejected by General Motors and Ford, but followed with boosts by Chrysler and Nash.

Cost-of-living items conceivably could include food and clothing but there was notihng definite on this from official quarters.

At the mine entrance word came back to his wife, who had been told there was practically no hope at all, that her husband had been heard.

Work Frantically

All day the rescue crews clawed at the dangerous rocks and timbers in a little three-by-five-feet working space. Wolti carried on a running patter of comment. He even joked grimly.

Then, at 7:20 Friday night came the welcome signal of six bells and six more bells. It meant they were bringing Wolti out.

He came up on a dirty coal car, barely conscious.

Mrs. Wolti stepped forward and sobbed. Big John heard, and tears rolled down his cheek.

A rescue worker said reassuringly:

"He'll be all right. He's tougher than hell."

Funeral Pyre For Strong Man

BOMBAY, India, Dec. 16 (AP) — The body of Sardar Vallabhbhai Patel Indian strong man and deputy prime minister, was committed Friday night to a funeral pyre at a Hindu cemetery less than 10 hours after his death.

Patel's death leaves only Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru of the famed triumvirate which led India's long struggle for independence. Mohandas K. Gandhi, the other member of the "big three," died of an assassin's bullet Jan. 30, 1948.

The state funeral procession moved to the cemetery from the home of industrialist G. D. Birla, where the 75-year-old Patel died.

Defend Toehold

Soule is commander of the U.S. 3rd Division. Its American, Puerto Rican and South Korean infantrymen, with their backs to the sea, are defending the tiny U.S. 10th Corps toehold in the Hamhung-Hungnam port area.

An army security blackout continued to blanket reports of Allied troops not engaged in combat operations.

(A security blackout has been clamped on over-all operations of the 10th Corps, but Moscow radio has quoted the North Korean Reds as saying the 10th Corps is evacuating the beachhead by sea.)

While the Allied troops fought off Communist assaults or crouched in snow-lined foxholes awaiting attack, the U.S. navy's big guns pounded Communist troops swarming along the coastal roads converging on Hungnam.

Gunfire from the Allied fleet had not been mentioned the last day or so in field dispatches. But again the warships moved up and down the coast, hurling steel at the enemy.

Planes In Action

Carrier-based planes buzzed out in murky weather and hit front waves of 112,000 Chinese Red troops massed against the beachhead.

Ground forces fought off three pre-dawn attacks Saturday.

A 10th corps spokesman said the attacks "are being contained" and described the situation as not disastrous."

Army engineers destroyed great stores of supplies to keep them from falling into Communist hands.

Associated Press correspondent Stan Swinton reported from the beachhead that some members of one of the two platoons cut off Friday by the Chinese returned to allied lines last night.

One 3rd division regiment reported it killed 1,000 Reds Friday in hurling back a single attack.

The two-week lull on the U.S. Eighth Army front in West Korea continued, but there was light action between South Koreans and North Koreans 45 miles northeast of Seoul. The South Koreans reported their lines stabilized five miles south of the 38th parallel Friday night.

Lt.-Gen. George E. Stratemeyer, Far East air forces commander, said his allied airmen had killed or wounded 33,000 Chinese Reds in the three weeks the Chinese have been openly fighting in Korea.

"Our new foe who has since Nov. 25 deployed seven corps against United Nations forces in Korea, has sacrificed one-seventh of his battle-wise, front-line fighting strength to the incessant air strikes," Stratemeyer said.

Time Is In Addition To Statutory Holidays

City police, in their brief to the Police Commission, asking for a $400 raise and other changes in working conditions, were not asking for one and one-half days off a week in place of one day a week.

The officers are already receiving one and one-half days off a week. But they are asking that they get this time off in addition to their statutory holidays which they are given each year in a lump of one week.

They are given this week because they work all dominion provincial and city-declared holidays, totalling about 11 each year.

In the past, the week they take their statutory holidays, they have lost the normal day and a half off. They are now asking that they receive this day and a half as well, giving them an eight and a half day holiday when they take their statutory holiday.

In asking for three days a month sick leave instead of the day and a half now allowed, the police officers are not asking that the accumulated total be raised from the six months now given. If a man at the end of his service with the department has been on the job steadily and has more than six months in sick leave coming to him, he will still not be entitled to any more if the constable's request is met.

Remaining Import Controls To Be Lifted January 2

OTTAWA, Dec. 16 — (CP) — Canada's emergency import controls, imposed three years ago to conserve dollars, will be swept out of existence Jan. 2.

The Trade Department Friday announced that all controls on capital goods, such as steel, trucks, heavy machinery needed to equip factories, will be eliminated on that day.

The Finance Department already has announced that remaining controls on consumer goods, such as textiles, leather goods and foods, also will be lifted Jan. 2.

That will bring an end to a program that has been to some extent instrumental in boosting Canada's reserves of U.S. dollars from a low of $500,000,000 to an all-time high of $1,800,000,000.

It also has been instrumental in bringing more new factories to Canada. Foreign industrialists, finding that the Canadian market was closed to their product, decided to erect manufacturing concerns inside Canada to escape the import restrictions.

Officials believe even though the controls are being ditched, these factories are here to stay.

They were cautious about predicting what impact on Canada's trade removal of these restrictions may cause. Though normally they might lead to increased imports and greater competition in the Canadian market for the consumer and manufacturing dollar, these are not normal times.

Instead of problems of surpluses there are growing problems of scarcities.

BC Industries Have Good Year

VANCOUVER, Dec. 16 (CP) — It has been a prosperous year for most of British Columbia's basic industries.

A survey today showed all-time highs indicated in practically all phases of economic development during 1950.

Lumber mining, fishing and agriculture—on which depend the livelihood of thousands of workers and their families—show an estimated dollar production of $709,000,000. In 1949 it was $689,429,738.

Agriculture was the lone basic industry to slip during the year, due to a bad winter which caused damage in the orchards. The dollar value is estimated at $131,000,000 compared with $139,000,000 last year.

For the other industries there were gains. Forestry production is valued at $380,000,000 compared with a 1949's $360,000,000; mining $135,000,000 against $133,012,968 and fishers $63,000,000 compared with $56,465,260.

Retail sales are expected to total more than $820,000,000 as against $768,250,000 in 1949.

Tourists poured millions into the province. Americans coming into B.C. spent approximately $33,000,000 compared with $30,609,000 in 1949. And, with visitors from other world centres, the total may reach $50,000,000.

Arnprior Driver Strikes Parked Car

A charge of careless driving was laid today against James H. Tourangeau, Arnprior, following an accident Friday evening at Sherbrooke and Rubidge Sts. in which he crashed into a parked car, driving it ahead into another parked car.

Owner of the first parked car was Douglas Dawes, 414 Lansdowne St. The second parked car was owned by P. J. La Branche, 407 Chambers St.

Tourangeau was driving west on Sherbrooke when he attempted to turn left into Rubidge St. and hit the car parked on the west side of Rubidge. Damage was done to the rear of both parked cars.

Constable Louis Rodreque, who investigated, reported that Tourangeau had been drinking.

HAILEYBURY, Dec. 16—(CP)—Rushed 56 miles by dog sled, airplane and ambulance, 21-year-old Dorothy Matthias, of Bear Island, died in hospital here Friday from extensive burns suffered after she poured oil on a sluggish stove.

Police at Temagami said that she was staying with Mr. and Mrs. George Baker on Bear Island, Lake Temagami, about 37 air miles southwest of here.

The girl's mother, Mrs. Theriault of Haileybury, said her daughter told her shortly before she died that she had poured a gasoline mixture from a can she believed to be holding kerosene.

Senator Charges Drew Pearson UnderRedThumb

WASHINGTON, Dec. 16 (AP) —Senator Joseph McCarthy (Rep. Wis.) said in the Senate Friday that Drew Pearson is a "Moscow-directed character assassin" who serves as "the voice of international Communism."

Pearson promptly retorted in a statement that his record in fighting Communism is well known to everybody but "the headline-happy Senator from Wisconsin." He threatened to sue McCarthy.

McCarthy studded his attack on the columnist-commentator with such epithets as "unprincipled liar and fake," and "this twisted, perverted mentality."

H said, however, "it appears that Pearson never actually signed up as a member of the Communist Party and never paid dues."

The long-standing antagonism between the two men reached the point of blows last Tuesday night in a cloak-room squabble at the plush Sulgrave Club. Just what happened was not clear. Pearson said McCarthy kicked him in the groin twice. McCarthy said he smacked Pearson with his open hand and knocked him down.

Hounded By Pearson

In his speech Friday, McCarthy charged that Pearson and Communist Party hounded to death James Forrestal, the late Secretory of Defence. (Forrestal, under treatment for nervous trouble, leaped to his death from a hospital window May 22, 1949.)

McCarthy said the Communists' next intended victim is Gen. Douglas MacArthur, and that Pearson has been assigned the task of destroying him.

The Senator charged that Pearson takes his orders from David Karr, and quoted former Representative Martin Dies as saying in the Congressional Record in 1943 that Karr was on the staff of the Communist Daily Worker for two years and that "there is not the slightest doubt that all members of the Daily Worker staff were required to be members of the Communist Party."

Pearson said that if Karr is a pro-Communist "the Washington monument is a hole in the ground."

Karr himself, in a statement telephoned from New York, said that "within his lying heart, McCarthy khows that I am not and never have been" a Communist or fellow-traveller. He challenged the Senator to repeat his remarks without the protection of Congressional immunity "so I will be able to sue him for libel."

Describes Canadian Ballet "Miracle of Achievement"

By JOHN PATERSON

TORONTO, Dec. 16 —(CP)— A top-flight English ballet star calls Canadian ballet a "miracle of achievement" in the face of "terrific obstacles."

But dark-haired Celia Franca of London, who danced and created lead roles there with the famed Sadler's Wells and Ballet Rambert companies, add this:

"There is danger that ballet in Canada may disintegrate."

The attractive ballerina—in her mid-20s—made a flying visit to this country to see the Canadian Ballet Festival, held recently in Montreal with companies from all parts of Canada taking part.

She said in an interview here that "Canada is ready for a national ballet company."

Ready Turn Professional

"In each of the companies in the festival, I saw one or two dancers who are ready to turn professional. They are at an age when they should be dancing or training every day, however. They cannot be expected to improve unless they are given the opportunity.

"Ballet in Canada will disintegrate and die and Canada will lose this splendid talent unless something is done. Those with ability and courage will go to England or the United States for the opportunities lacking here."

Miss Franca, a professional dancer since she was 15, joined first the Madame Rombert company where her contemporaries included such ballet luminaries as Frederick Ashton and Anthony Tudor. During the Second World War she was with the Sadler's Wells company. She created lead roles in such ballets as "Hamlet" and "Miracle of the Gorbals."

May Return

Miss Franca says she intends to return to Canada if possible. "I love it here and am most anxious to help in any way I can."

There are rumors in national ballet circles that Miss Franca may play an important role in the future of the classic art in this country.

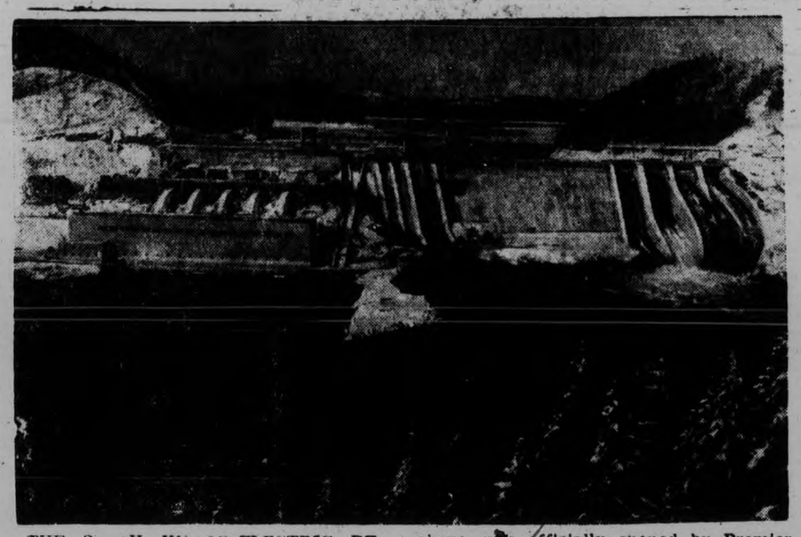
"The dancers here have tremendous vitality; they are perhaps a shade too athletic," she said. "I found the poetic element, so essential in ballet, almost completely lacking. I missed this lyric quality."

Some of the choreography at the festival she found "too obscure."

Use Simple Themes

"In England today the top choreographers are choosing simple themes and developing them strongly. Ballet is one of the languages of the arts. The choreographer must tell his story in an understanding manner if theatre audiences are to be built up.

"Some tended to be too ambitious, to attempt a theme too pretentious for the medium. A few failed to develop their stories properly and, as a result, the audiences missed the point. But, on the whole, choreography at the festival was excellent. Some of the ballets were of professional calibre. It remains now to be seen if the dancers and choreographers are given the opportunity they deserve".



THE SMITH HYDRO-ELECTRIC DEVELOPMENT to be built on the St. Maurice River and the largest single power-house on the system of the Shawinigan Water and Power Co., the Trenche project, shown above, was officially opened by Premier Maurice Duplessis recently. Trenche is about 200 air miles north-east of Montreal. The $40,000,000 project when completed next year will be capable of producing 325,000 horsepower.

The Canadian Bank of Commerce Reports

Growth in Commerce, Agriculture, Industry Aids National Defence

● President sees Canadians facing three major tasks: 1) to integrate economic stability with military preparedness; 2) to co-operate internationally to mitigate the basic causes of world unrest; 3) to expand our world trade.

STANLEY M. WEDD, President, addressing the Annual Meeting of The Canadian Bank of Commerce in Toronto, said in part:

THE course of events that we have witnessed in recent months will mark as historically significant the year now drawing to a close. Yet the favourable developments that have taken place in Canada since we last met are overshadowed by the extremely disturbing possibilities of the hostilities in the Far East. Two distinct trends have emerged within the past year—the hesitation in business activity which was beginning to appear during the first half of the year and which was arrested by the outbreak and impact of war in Korea; and the upturn which followed. The latter phase directs our attention to the significant fact that an expanding economy such as ours responds quickly to outside influences.

At the present time we are by no means on a war basis, yet we are not all employed in peaceful pursuits. The degree to which we may alter this existing division in the economy depends upon forces beyond our control.

General Economic Patterns

First I would note the latest official estimate of the value of our production for 1950, which is seventeen and a half billion dollars. This is an increase of about fourteen hundred million over last year and is, in relation to the 1944 figure, approximately twelve billion dollars, indicative of the expansion that has been taking place over recent years. Although this increase is measured in fluctuating dollar values it does represent a higher rate of increase than at any other period in our history.

Over the post-war years there has been an intensive capital investment in the industries of Canada. Between 1945 and the close of this year an estimated twelve billion dollars will have been invested. This is in addition to the heavy wartime expansion which was necessary to meet the demands of war. This rate of investment shows little sign of slackening.

The labour force at the present time is at peak levels. In fact in some areas there is developing a shortage of employable persons, and this at a time when we are embarking on an armament program of some magnitude and are already engaged in important development of our natural resources. It would seem, therefore, to be a matter of real urgency that the labour force be expanded, and since this can be done to only a very limited extent from the manpower resources now available, the immediate implementation of a well-integrated immigration policy would seem to be the proper solution.

Agriculture

Over all, this year has been a good one for agriculture. Current reports indicate that the Western wheat crop will be almost one hundred million bushels larger than a year ago although an unusually large percentage of it will be of low grade. Yields of feed grains are also above those of last year. In the Eastern Provinces and in British Columbia good harvests were general in almost all lines of farming endeavour.

Mining

Turning now to mining, attention continues to be focused on oil and iron, each of which is expected to play a prominent role in maintaining our present high level of business activity.

With the Leduc and Redwater discoveries, proven oil reserves are now well above the billion barrel mark and capital at the rate of three million dollars a week is being invested in development and exploration. In addition, other expenditures for refineries and pipe-lines to be completed within the next year total more than one hundred and twenty-five million dollars. In all, these investments in the oil industry account for roughly ten per cent of Canada's non-governmental capital investment program for 1950. The 1,150-mile trunk pipeline to Superior, Wisconsin, is completed and already oil has begun to move via this pipeline to refineries at Regina and Gretna.

The discovery to date of the four hundred million tons proven reserves of iron ore in Eastern Canada will place Canada among the world's top ranking iron ore producers. The development of the area due to its inaccessibility will take some time and will be costly. However, the contract for the railway into the area recently has been allotted and construction is to begin before the turn of the year. It is estimated that capital expenditures for this railway, for the construction of a hydro-electric power plant, harbour facilities and rolling stock may be in the neighborhood of two hundred million dollars and we gather that to justify an outlay of this magnitude at least ten million tons annually will have to be taken out.

Manufacturing

Several of the most important branches of the Canadian manufacturing industry have created new production records within the past year and the industry as a whole is currently operating at the highest level of the year to date and over five per cent above that in October 1949. Consumption of electrical energy is a good gauge of industrial activity and the increase of seven per cent during the elapsed part of the present year reflects fairly well the general position. The completion of new central electric installations within the past twelve months has made this increase possible but demand for power continues to keep pace with and, indeed, exceed that available.

International Trade

This year we have witnessed a decided change in trade activities. Our surplus in merchandise trade of two hundred and twelve million dollars a year in the period 1935-39 and of even larger amounts in the post-war years has been replaced by a deficit of fifteen million dollars at present annual rates. Since the round of devaluations a year ago last September, which had the effect of increasing the price of Canadian goods in countries which devalued more than ten per cent, Canada's trade surplus with the United Kingdom has declined. At the same time, a rising level of income in the United States, coupled with the attractions of somewhat lower Canadian prices, has served to increase our exports to that country.

The ability of Canada to cushion the effect of a decrease in exports to the sterling countries by an increase in exports to the United States is another evidence of the adaptability of the Canadian economy. At this time our newly-developed trading pattern is operating under the forces of the free dollar market and it is hoped that the unbalanced position which has existed in world trade under conditions of rigid control will steadily decrease.

The Free Dollar

The development of a new trade pattern has caused attention to be directed to both the short and the long run possibilities in the Canadian economy. Total investment by non-residents in Canada at the end of 1949 amounted to nearly eight billion dollars, of which the greater part, some five billion nine hundred million, was held by Americans. Since then the continued attractiveness of Canadian investments has brought in additional investment funds from the United States. This inflow, which was particularly heavy in the three months after June last, indicated for the most part a growing realization by Americans of Canadian investment opportunities. Yet this inflow stimulated inflationary pressures in Canada and some method was necessary whereby inflationary pressure engendered by speculation about the value of the Canadian dollar could be relieved, while, at the same time, the beneficial flow of capital for investment and development could be maintained. From the choices available to cope with the situation, the decision to permit the Canadian dollar to find its own price in terms of other currencies was one with many implications and much to commend it.

Preparedness Programs

For the first time in our history, this year witnessed the meeting of Parliament for the purpose of considering an extensive military program unaccompanied by a declaration of war. The supplementary budget which evolved from that meeting was significant in that it brought more clearly into focus our responsibilities as a member of the United Nations. It also emphasized our role as a signatory to the North Atlantic Defence Pact.

In the light of existing conditions, the fiscal provisions of this supplementary budget might best be described as precautionary, and the extent to which they may have to be expanded will be determined by the outcome of the critical situation in which the world now finds itself. For the present, our cash commitments for defence under the latest budget, both for ourselves and on behalf of our partners of the North Atlantic Defence Pact, amount to eight hundred and fifty-six million dollars which, together with defence expenditures authorized in the main estimates earlier in the year, bring the total commitment for defence to approximately one billion four hundred and twenty million dollars, or about eight per cent of the estimated Gross National Product. High levels of National Income during the first nine months of the year had resulted in a sizable budgetary surplus on the then existing bases of taxation, but in order to cover the foreseeable cash disbursements for defence during the remainder of the year, the Minister of Finance found it necessary to impose additional taxation upon corporations and upon certain classes of goods used by the public.

Military Integration

It is not unlikely that history will record the Washington Agreement which was signed in October of this year as an outstanding occurrence. The signing of the Agreement by Canadian and American representatives in Washington does more than reiterate the principles contained in the Hyde Park Declaration of 1941. The new Agreement reaffirms the principle of co-ordination in defence purchasing and allocation of materials between the two countries. It also indicates that, insofar as defence expenditures are concerned, problems of foreign exchange and restriction of purchasing ability which hindered co-ordination in the post-war period may well be avoided.

The Outlook

We enter into a preparedness program under conditions far different from those of the early days of World War II. We know that manpower and resources are being fully utilized and consequently the diversion of men and material for military production is bound to cause strains. The expansion of our economy during the past year makes it possible to meet the requirements immediately in sight without distorting the pattern of civilian production; should we find it necessary to expand military commitments beyond those recently established then inflationary stresses will become still more insistent.

Events of recent weeks have served to emphasize the uncertainties that lie ahead. Undoubtedly three major tasks face us: to ensure a continuation of economic stability under conditions of military preparedness; full co-operation and assistance towards the mitigation of the basic causes of unrest and war; and also the expansion of trade which is basic to the maintenance of our well-being. These are challenging objectives, yet the record shows ability and courage in facing other equally difficult problems that have arisen in the course of our history.

JAMES STEWART, Vice-President and General Manager, commenting on the Bank's operations during the past year said in part:

THE substantial progress of the Bank in the past year by way of the growth in assets and earnings is reflected in the eighty-fourth annual Balance Sheet now before you. (Highlights of the statement are reproduced below.)

Taxation

On the tax program Mr. Stewart said: Apart from the fact that taxation must raise the revenues necessary to finance much of the defence program, taxation in general is an important fiscal means for "siphoning off" purchasing power. While the tax structure should be so arranged as to assist in restraining inflationary tendencies, yet at the same time it should not hamper or retard the industrial program necessary to meet military and domestic requirements.

Under certain economic conditions some taxes can have effects opposite to those originally intended. The choice of taxes and their rates therefore loom large in our planning. I know that in certain quarters the excess profits tax has its adherents!—yet, because of its tendency towards encouraging unnecessary spending, it has, to my mind, particularly under conditions of full employment, an inflationary potential. A further and I think equally important argument against such form of taxation is that in our economy, part of which is in the developmental stage, every encouragement should be given to expanding new businesses and industries, yet a tax arbitrarily based on what are termed excess profits well might discriminate against the smaller risk-taking industries, many of which require additional capital to expand their plant and equipment and produce needed goods. Retention of profits is, after all, one of the best methods of capital expansion. Should we be on the verge of a heavier tax program—and this is a definite likelihood—then serious consideration should be given to setting the rates of the corporation income tax at sensible levels.

In the long run this might well be a better revenue-raising arrangement than the application of an excess profits tax. At the same time this policy could avoid the weaknesses and the inflationary potential inherent in an excess profits tax.

Staff

It is again my privilege to express my thanks to the staff for their co-operation: The all-round increase in the Bank's business which has taken place is indicative of the team-play that exists in all the branches of the Bank. The growth of the Bank as shown by the Balance Sheet is not something that just happens—it represents hard work—and the progress made during the past year is a tribute to the loyalty of the staff and to their constant vigilance in the interests of the Bank and the public we serve. I cannot speak too forcibly in this respect—and in taking this opportunity of expressing my appreciation to the members of the staff I am sure I am conveying to them the thanks of all the shareholders as well for their praiseworthy contribution to the welfare of the Bank.

$2.75 A Day, All Found

The lowest pay for a Canadian soldier who has had his basic training is now $83 a month—about $2.75 a day. It does not seem a great deal by present industrial wage standards but this pay is all gravy. The soldier is fed, clothed, housed, gets free medical care and dental treatment. If he is married his pay is $170 a month, about $5.65 a day. If he is out of Canada or overseas, his basic pay is $92.00 a month or, if married, $179.00. There is also an allowance for children. If the soldier gets a stripe or two his pay is increased. If he becomes a warrant officer, or a commissioned officer, there are higher rates. For instance, a captain now draws $234 a month, or, if he is married, $353.

* * *

Canadian soldiers are now the highest paid in the world, except for American. The rates are considerably above those prevailing during the last war. A fully trained private soldier was getting $1.50 a day by the end of the war, whether he was overseas on a fighting front or stationed in Canada. Since the introduction of the new rates this week, therefore, the Canadian soldier is getting 100 per cent. more pay than he did five years ago, if he is serving outside Canada, and an increase of 83 1/3 per cent for home service. Thus pay increases for the armed service have kept pace with increases in wage-rates generally throughout Canada. Incidentally, soldier's pay is now computed on a monthly basis, not, as formerly, on a day rate.

Two Asians, One Canadian

It is somewhat droll that the foreign minister of a nation which already has troops in embattled Korea is one of the three men appointed by U.N. to persuade the Chinese and fighting U.N. nations to stop fighting. But it is not expected that Mr. Pearson will, as U.N. mediator tell his Government to pull the P.P.C.L.I. out of Korea the day after they have landed there. The Chinese and Russians in particular must find the situation wry where a representative of one of the belligerent countries is a negotiator for peace, and might even doubt the good intentions of U.N. in making such an appointment.

The truth is that Mr. Pearson is, by training, experience and personality, one of the ablest diplomats whom the U.N. could find for such a task. Further, Canada is not and has not taken any major part in the Korean action and does not admit that a state of war exists between Canada and Korea or that there is a battle between Canada and China.

The two other members of the committee are the Assembly's President, Nasrollaj Entezam of Iran (Persia), and Sir Bengal N. Rau of India. The Indian delegate's presence on the Committee should reassure China that U.N. has no predisposition against China. The fact that two of the committee of three are Asians should convince Asia that the West at U.N. is not trying to dictate terms in a matter which is primarily Oriental.

Ontario's Villages

We are already getting those pretty Christmas cards showing a snow-bound quiet village with neat rows of evergreens, children and puppies playing, kindly folk going into the front porch, and a serene church steeple hovering peacefully over the village scene. These views make us quite homesick for a village, even though we have never lived in a village and, it must be confessed, have never had any desire to. Christmas-card villages are about as real as Santa Claus.

But Ontario has its real villages—142 of them, excluding a few villages in the northern Districts, and such false ones as Forest Hill Village. Actually, Ontario has three big shams of villages: Forest Hill which has 15,978 people, Swansea, with 7,792, and Long Branch with 7,661. No proper village would want to be associated with these fakes.

Ontario's villages are surprisingly few; only 142 of them, compared with 116 towns. There are quite prominent ones, which the whole world knows about: Morrisburg, Lakefield, Madoc, Winchester; sizable villages with more than a thousand people. We must not forget Portsmouth at Kingston's door with its 3,193 unfettered souls. But the most fascinating to think upon and dream about are the little places, carrying on a corporate life at perhaps some venerable crossroads which commerce and traffic have long since neglected. There is a score of villages with populations between 750 and 1,000, places like Streetsville, Norwood and Ayr. It is not these on which our fancy roams. It is the places with pop. 749-0.

There are 55 of them, and most have names to conjure with: Cayuga, Cobden, Paisley, Omemee, Blyth, Erin, Tara, Tottenham, Embro, Neustadt, Finch. So the list goes, right down to Vienna (population 259), Tiverton (272) and hamburger villages like Wasaga Beach, Sturgeon Point and Erie Beach (population 53). The best village to live in from a taxation point of view is Hepworth. Last year its taxes amounted to $10.66 a head. There are 327 heads in Hepworth. Compare that delectable rate with the tax in smaller (sic) Wasaga Beach: $120.96, three times as much as Peterborough's rate.

The names of these small villages are not a whit as interesting as the names of English villages; the best Ontario rises to are such names as Ailsa Craig, Flesherton, and Lion's Head. We do not go in for Little Twinkerton-Under-Mulls; we are more expansive and have a village of Wyoming.

Where are all these villages to be found? Frankly, we do not care to say. But some day on some road somewhere in the province we may round a corner and lo-and-behold, there will nestle Ailsa Craig or even Wyoming! We wonder what Wyoming would look like on a Christmas card?

A Book For Curlers

We do not ordinarily review books in the editorial columns, but we have received a volume of interest to sportsmen which does not seem to fit in with our ordinary reviewing policy; it is Curling Past and Present by W. A. Creelman, and it is published by the firm of McClelland & Stewart. The author is a member of a family which has long been associated with this sport in Canada, and he has included an excellent analysis of the technique of curling by Mr. H. E. Weyman of Levis, Quebec. The book contains an account of curling from the earliest times, makes some interesting speculations upon its origin, and of course pays special attention to curling as it exists in Canada today. It is written in a lively and enthusiastic style and is pleasantly illustrated; as is inevitable in a book about a Scottish sport it is copiously interlarded with with verses from Burns.

It also contains some opinions which we, as a non-curler, found interesting. For instance: "The art of sweeping has been highly developed in Western Canada, where it has become graceful and attractive to spectators; it is amusing, but also pitiful, to watch Eastern sweepers beside the Western sweepers". Those sound to us like fighting words. Are the members of the local Curling Club ready to admit that their sweeping is "pitiful"? To them, in particular, we recommend the book, which is plainly intended for enthusiasts.

Franco Wants Gibraltar

The Spanish dictator has made it plain that he would like to regain Gibraltar for his country. That is understandable enough; no country likes to have a small portion of territory which geography suggests should be its own in the hands of a foreign power; when that small piece of territory is as important as Gibraltar the irritation increases. Franco suggested to Hitler that if the Axis won the war, he would be glad to put his influence behind the victors in return for Gibraltar; but the Axis was beaten, and Franco now seems to think that he should be given Gibraltar as a reward for his neutrality—a sort of good-conduct prize.

Britain and the Netherlands captured Gibraltar in 1707, when they were fighting to put the Archduke Charles of Austria on the Spanish throne; Britain was awarded the Rock in the Treaty of Utrecht in 1713 and has kept it ever since. In the days before air power Gibraltar was of the utmost strategic importance, because its batteries commanded the entrance to the Mediterranean and could close it at will. And even now, when it is possible to fly over the Rock and out of range of its fire, great numbers of troops cannot be taken into the Mediterranean except by sea. It is still an important fortress.

Franco's attempts to get public opinion on his side in the matter of Gibraltar are not likely to be successful. Spain's international record during the past fifty years has not been impressive, and the dictator's qualifications for a good-conduct prize are not quite up to par.

NOTE AND COMMENT

Now that the square dance has been successfully revived, how about bringing back the square deal?

The captain of a French soccer team accidentally swallowed the coin which was tossed to decide which goal was which. A handy fluoroscope, however, quickly showed who had won the toss.

The Marchbanks Correspondence

To Samuel Marchbanks, Esq.
Dear Mr. Marchbanks:

Before you read further, hurry to the nearest notary and swear yourself to secrecy, for what I have to impart to you is strictly confidential. The Bureau for the Harrying of Suspicious Aliens, of which I have the honour to be deputy-commissioner, has got wind of a foreigner who is rumoured to be in Canada at present, named Santa, or it may be Sandy, Claus. In person he is of medium height, obese and when last seen wore a full beard (white); this alone is enough to make him an abomination in the eyes of every right-thinking Canadian.

Claus is thougnt to be dealing very heavily in toys; we have on file several pictures of him in which he is shown with quantities of merchandise of this type. He says that he gives these goods away, but as he is not soliciting votes for any public office it is improbable that this is true. He appears to us to be trading without a license, and it is also clear that he is a man of considerable wealth. And yet—I can hardly bring myself to write such an obscene charge—he has never filed an Income Tax return! There is no excuse for this, as the man is definitely not a farmer.

It is my intention, Mr. Marchbanks, to get Claus and take him to the cleaners. If I can lay hands on him, the Government will shake him down for everything he's got. As a loyal citizen it is your duty and privilege to assist me. The word to all our operatives is: Get Claus Before Christmas!

Yours,
HAUBERGEON HYDRA.

To Amyas Pilgarlic, Esq.
Dear Pil:

I write to you from a bed of pain. Oh, I am a cursed thing! If there is an inglorious ailment going around, you may depend on me to get it. At present I am laid low again with flu in my tripes. Why do I never catch anything which ennobles the character and inspires widespread sympathy? But no: salt rheums and catarrh of the epigaster for poor Marchbanks.

However, as I lie here I have been listening to the morning radio programs; in the afternoon, when the soap fantasies are at their bubbliest, I cannot bear it. But the programs for schools are full of meat. This morning, for instance, I heard one about Champlain; it was good, even though all the actors representing early explorers talked in tragic, noble voices, like a man trying to palm off a bad cheque on somebody who suspects him.

My favourite, however, is the Kindergarten of the Air. I like to sing the songs and play the games that the ladies with the charming voices give out, and when they urge their hearers to come closer I obligingly drag my radio right into bed with me. This morning there was a good story about a Christmas Tree which went from door to door looking for a home; at one house a dog told it to go away; this was a false psychological note; what dog ever told a tree that he had no use for it?

Write to me, or better still, send me some little comfort to amuse me in bed. A keg of rum, for instance.

Yours in humiliating indisposition,
SAM.

To Apollo Fishorn, Esq.
Dear Mr. Fishorn:

I am ashamed that a young Canadian playwright such as yourself should write to me complaining that he cannot think of a theme for a major work. If you intend to get your manuscript in for the London Little Theatre's prize of $1,000, you had better hurry; the closing day is December 31.

Out of pity for you, I suggest the following theme: the steps by which the barbarous medieval treatment of insane persons was supplanted by our modern comparatively humane methods. That would make a fine chronicle play. And don't forget that the Quakers were the first people to establish a hospital in which the insane were treated as human beings with personal preferences and rights. It is a matter of history that Quakers spent many hours finding out from their patients what they liked to eat, instead of giving them dirty skilly in dippers. And there is one of your best scenes, roughly like this:

SCENE: A cell in a Quaker hospital. Mad Bess is happily banging her head against the wall. Enter a Quaker.
QUAKE: Peace be upon you, woman. Prithee give over. Thee will injure thee's brainpan.
MAD B: Yahoo! Cockyolly, cockyolly!
QUAKE: Tell me, prithee, dost thee like marmalade or jam on thee's breakfast toast?
MAD B: They say the owl was a baker's daughter.
QUAKE: Very like, dear sister. But speaking of breakfast toast —
MAD B: Come, my coach. Good night, ladies, good night.
QUAKE: It may be as thee says. But in the morning, dost thee like jam or marmalade on thee's breakfast toast?
(Enter Elizabeth Fry, the great Quaker humanitarian)
ELIZ. FRY: How fares the work, brother?
QUAKE: But tardily, sister. This dear sister here cannot say whether she wants jam or marmalade on her breakfast toast.
ELIZ. FRY: Come Sister, I am Elizabeth Fry. Tell me what thee wants on thee's toast.
MAD B: Oh, you're one of the Frys, are you? Then bring me a great big delicious, steaming, vitamin-packed cup of Cadbury's cocoa!
(Confusion; Elizabeth Fry and Quaker look pained, and Mad Bess strikes the wall again with her head; the wall breaks through; she escapes.)
There; you see how impressive it could be? Shame on you for despairing.

S. MARCHBANKS.

To Chandos Fribble, Esq.
Admired Fribble:

It is useless to talk to me about television; it lacks charm. It is just like the movies. When you get three-dimensional television, write me again and I will consider buying a small set.

And by three-dimensional, I mean precisely that. I want the performers brought right into my room. I want the wrestlers wrestling on the rug. When the beer advertisements are on, I want to be able to put a glass under the stream. And the movie stars—let us have them with depth, as well as height and width. To have, let us say, a three-dimensional Lana Turner right in one's own home—the mind boggles (but pleasantly, mind you, pleasantly).

Yours firmly,
MARCHBANKS.

Letters To The Editor

WARM THANKS FOR "MESSIAH"

Sir: May we use the columns of your paper to express to the choirs and their leaders who performed the Christmas music from Handel's Messiah so beautifully this week, the very great pleasure which this performance gave us. It was one of the best concerts which Peterborough has had in a long time. All those who were responsible for its success, leaders, soloists and choir members are to be congratulated on its excellence. If they had as much joy in the singing as we had in listening, they have been richly repaid for the time and energy they must have given to its preparation.

Yours truly,
MARY E. MEDD,
FERN A. RAHMEL.

APPRECIATES COVENTRY SINGERS

Sir: I think I speak for many radio listeners when I thank The Examiner for the programs the Coventry Singers of Peterborough have given us during the past five weeks. I am looking forward to the final program on Monday night with both pleasure and sadness, for it will be the last of the series. Peterborough is certainly lucky to have a small choir of this kind, which gives its efforts to unaccompanied music of a kind which we do not otherwise hear, and it is in tune with The Examiner's longheaded policy on artistic matters to sponsor this fine group on the air.

Yours with renewed thanks,
MUSIC LOVER.

PETERBOROUGH HISTORIAN ASKS ASSISTANCE

Sir: I would like to take this means of conveying Season's Greetings and most sincere thanks to all the kind people who have given me material assistance and words of advice and encouragement in the exacting task of preparing a comprehensive up-to-date History of Peterborough and the Kawartha District, throughout the past momentous year. I have received help from many in Peterborough, as well as others from Millbrook to Apsley, from Hastings to Bobcaygeon, and from Haliburton to Marmora, in addition to letters from such outlying points as Toronto, London, Kingston, Quebec, New Orleans and California. I am grateful also to the Peterborough Centennial Committee which is sponsoring book publication of the History, after the present Examiner series is completed, and to the other community and district organizations which are helping in the preparation and promotion of the History.

On reaching the period 1870-1900, we are coming to an era well within the memories of numerous citizens still active in the life of the community. I have interviewed many of these, but unfortunately have not had time or opportunity to seek all who could provide valuable reminiscences and other data on early decades in Kawartha history. Accordingly, I would be very happy to hear from any who can write down their memories of the town and the district in the period following 1870, covering every aspect of the times—industries, stores, churches, schools, railways and steamers, streets, lights sidewalks, building and construction, telegraphs and telephones and mail service, newspapers and libraries, circuses and concerts and bands, societies and clubs, noted speakers and entertainers, councils and bylaws and taxes, fires and firemen and policemen, etc. etc. Those who have historical materials which they will be good enough to loan—directories, almanacs, letters, diaries, maps, engravings, photographs, account books, etc.—would be doing a real service by sending them to me at the address below; they will be most carefully handled and returned by registered mail.

Finally, I would like to hear from any who have accurate facts which will assist me in amplifying, revising and correcting earlier articles while I am re-writing these preparatory to their publication in book form. One hundred per cent. accuracy and completeness is a worthwhile target to aim at in an historical work, but the checking of a few hundred thousand details requires the maximum of co-operation from all who have exact knowledge of the events and people mentioned. The authentic history of a community is one of its most precious possessions, and should be most carefully preserved from the ravages of time, death, fire and other destructive forces.

To all those people of goodwill who have been and will be of assistance, my heartiest thanks.

HOWARD PAMMETT.

Bible Message

(From the Authorized Version)

Now it came to pass on a certain day, that he went into a ship with his disciples: and he said unto them, Let us go over unto the other side of the lake. And they launched forth. But as they sailed he fell asleep: and there came down a storm of wind on the lake; and they were filled with water, and were in jeopardy.

And they came to him, and awoke him, saying, Master, master, we perish. Then he arose, and rebuked the wind and the raging of the water: and they ceased, and there was a calm. And he said unto them, Where is your faith? and they being afraid wondered, saying one to another, What manner of man is this! for he commandeth even the winds and water, and they obey him. (Luke 8: 22-25.)

Verily, verily, I say unto you, The Son can do nothing of himself, but what he seeth the Father do: for what things soever he doeth, these also doeth the Son likewise. (John 5: 19.)

Ah Lord God! behold, thou hast made the heaven and the earth by thy great power and stretched out arm, and there is nothing too hard for thee.... Which hast set signs and wonders in the land of Egypt, even unto this day, and in Israel, and among other men; and hast made thee a name, as at this day. (Jer. 32: 17, 20.)

A Snorting Monster

(Edinburgh Scotsman)

Several villagers at Tobson, on Bernera, a small island off the west coast of Lewis, claim to have seen a 12-foot long monster swimming in a long inlet of the sea.

One fisherman said that the monster surfaced near his boat, making a snorting, hissing noise. He described its head as like that of a hornless cow. It had humps on its back, and he puts its length at 12 feet.

The monster, he said, travelled on the surface at such a speed that he was forced to give it a wide berth in case its wash capsized his boat.

Corroboration of the "cow's head" description came from a woman who, when she first saw the "Tobson monster", thought that a cow had fallen into the sea.

Progress of Peterborough: XLIX

Rough Life Of The Kawartha Lumbermen When Timber Worth Million Dollars Year

By HOWARD PAMMETT, M.A.

Fowlds had shanty gangs in Percy, Dummer and Methuen in the sixties; he had a unique system by which blankets were rented to the men when they went to the shanties, and when they returned to Hastings in the spring the blankets were washed in the river and stored until autumn. From the Marmora-Madoc settlements, loggers were pushing up the Hastings road to Bancroft and Maynooth. Most lumber operators, however, were working on the Kawartha watershed, obtaining timber licenses for areas of white pine, usually extending five miles inland from the banks of lakes and rivers flowing down into the Trent waterway. A majority of big operators, like Dickson and Ludgate & McDougall (Peterborough), Gilmour (Trenton), Boyd (Bobcaygeon), Campbell (Nassau), Shaw (Lakefield), McDermot & Walsh (Lindsay) had their own shanties on northern limits, grouped around a depot camp, but others bought logs from the operators and cut them at their mills; similarly, most of the small mills bought their logs or cut them on commission for the big operators, or sawed logs for nearby farmers, keeping a share of the lumber as payment.

Lumbermen's Shanties

A shanty was built of logs cut on the spot, and was thirty or forty feet in dimensions, with two tiers of bunks around three sides, a single door and a window close by. The usual type was the "camboose shanty" which had a huge fireplace in the middle where the fire blazed from autumn until spring steadily. Above it was a six foot square hole in the roof for light and ventilation.

Old-time lumbermen testify that this was the healthiest of all shanties; a roaring fire in the "camboose" warmed the whole room, yet provided a draft that took the miscellaneous odours out the roof. The floor was of small poles set close together, and in a corner was a stone-lined pit where the cook stored his food. The supplies for one Boyd shanty were: 35 narrow axes, 7 broad axes, 25 pairs blankets, 3 kettles, 1 pot, 1 tin kettle, 2 pails, 20 tin cups, 5 tin plates, 3 large bowls, 19 spoons, 1 knife, 1 fork, 1 shovel. Barreled staple foods were hauled in by wagon: beans, salt pork, flour, and blackstrap molasses.

The most skilful cook could not provide much variation from baked beans and bread, fried pork and strong tea; in some camps the men even had to provide their own tea. If the employer had a depot farm, it raised mainly potatoes and turnips for the men and oats for the horses. As fires were forbidden in the bush, the mid-day lunch gulped at sub-zero temperatures consisted of a loaf of bread in which a hole was filled with frozen molasses, and a hunk of fried cold pork. No wonder most lumbermen ate with their sheath-knives. Apparently there was little effort to obtain fresh game and fish for the men, from the forests and waters around.

Work And Dress

The working hours were from dawn to dusk, and the walk to and from the shanty was in the dark. As each man had one blanket, they took off their shoepacks when going to bed, and little else. Strickland described the typical shanty dress: "Grey cloth trousers, a flannel shirt, and a blouse of fustian, or a blanket coat fastened round the waist with a red or tricolored sash. Shoepacks . . . and a bonnet rouge for the head, complete the costume . . ." No liquor was allowed in the shanties, but tobacco (chewing and pipe varieties) were universally used. Saturday evenings and Sundays were spent talking, whittling, playing games, and dancing (only the fastidious spent their rest-day washing their clothes or themselves). Some popular games were "blanket scuddy," "hot hand," "selling the fat sheep," and "shovel the brogue."

Books and magazines were unheard of. Every shanty, however, had a fiddle or an accordion and a few mouthorgans and jews' harps, which provided music for songs and step-dancing; square-dancing was also enjoyed, half the men pulling out their shirt-tails and prancing around coyly as "ladies." Once or twice every winter, except in very remote regions, a priest or preacher came to hold religious services, and everyone attended regardless of faith or lack of it. Even today the traveller in deserted northern bushlands comes upon ruined depot shanties and log mission churches, and usually nearby is an overgrown cemetery where lumbermen and settlers lie in unmarked graves. It was a hard life, and yet most old-timers looking back 60 to 80 years at those days are nostalgic.

Old Timers' Stories

David Conroy who worked for Ludgate in 1860 at age 20: "I never saw the shanty by daylight except on Sunday. We had to be out to work before sunup, and would not return until sundown. Our noon meal was a loaf of bread and a piece of salt pork. . . We melted the snow to provide drinking water in the absence of tea. . . . The pay was $7 a month, and the daily diet potatoes, pork and bread. . ."

Matthew Young who went to a shanty in 1860 at age 15: "We got lots of rattlesnake pork, bread and beans. . . We had to buy our own tea and brew it if we wanted any. . . . On Sunday we got fried pork. . . ."

William Lynch who started with Dickson near Minden about 1870 at age 16: "There were no tables, no dishes, no stove . . .

We know not whether death be good,
But life at least it will not be:
Men will stand saddening as we stood,
Watch the same fields and skies as we
And the same sea.

Algernon Swinburne
1837-1909)

The cooking was done on a big fireplace in the centre of the shanty. The smoke went up and out through a hole in the roof. . . . Each man had to bring his own knife and fork. And the wages I got were $20 a month. . . There was always a fiddler or two in the crowd, and after supper those winter nights there would be music and the men would sing and dance. The first cook was Dan McGuire and the foreman was Paddy O'Neil. . . . Ted Cavanagh would get French-Canadians from Montreal. He kept a hotel here for years . . . It took us three days to go by wagon from Peterborough to Minden over rough roads. We would stay overnight at hotels along the way. . ."

Hard-Living Men

The basic shanty gang had 50 men: 4 gangs of 5 axemen; 15 men for cutting trails, fixing dams, clearing streams, etc.; 13 teamsters and loaders with 20 horses to transport the logs to the streams; a cook and his helper or boy. No logs were taken with more than three knots, or less than 14 inches at the top end. The advance gang in the autumn worked clearing roads, fixing dams and repairing shanties; the cutting season was from December to March, by which time the logs were piled near the water; from April to July the log drives were riding the floods down the Trent system. The week from Christmas to the New Year was a holiday, and shantymen who could not get home went to celebrate in the nearest village; there are numerous tales of dances at Haliburton, Minden, etc., lasting four or five days and nights continuously. One sign of spring in the shanties was the arrival of the jewelry peddler, who seemed to know when the men were to be paid, and helped to relieve them of a share of it for more-or-less genuine gold watches, diamond rings, and other gifts which the men planned to take home with them. A few shantymen were kept for the log-drives, but most were dismissed with the breakup of the ice, and set off by wagon or on foot to their homes, if any.

The taverns along the Haliburton-Bobcaygeon roads encouraged "liquid" celebration of the new freedom, relieving the men of much of their remaining silver. When they left Bobcaygeon, they had to "run the gauntlet" through Emily and Ennismore; there was a long-drawn-out feud between the farmers and the lumbermen, both French-Canadians and Irishmen. No Catholic-Orange battle was more ferocious than the spring skirmishes along roads from Bobcaygeon to Peterborough, usually between fellow-Catholics. The rare shantyman who reached Peterborough with pay unsquandered and scalp unbloodied often fell from grace in the taverns of Peterborough. Yet with all his faults, the Kawartha lumberman for industry, honesty, cheerfulness generosity and natural courtesy ranked with the best.

Rivalry was keen between companies to get their drives down-river first, ahead of competitors, to get better prices for their logs. Preparations took four to six weeks—building punts and scows, cribbing logs, planking a raft for the cook's tent, sharpening pike-poles and cleats, etc. The usual drive crew consisted of fifty men, chosen for their skill and strength. Strong men were frequent, able to carry a barrel of pork (350 pounds) or an overturned punt across a portage alone. In great haste they broke out the dumps, got the logs afloat and rafted, and started downstream, before they were "hung up" by the passing of the flood-crest. No tugs were used, the motive power being the capstan on each raft. A strong rope was tied to an anchor which was taken down a lake 600 feet in a punt and dropped; then the rope was wound up on the capstan by manpower (though sometimes a horse was used) drawing the raft slowly along.

Another method was to carry the rope to a tree on the riverbank and tie it securely, then wind in the rope on the capstan. At a rapids or waterfall, the logs were sent through singly and cribbed again below. Dickson used to release his logs in the upper Otonabee and catch them by booms in the goosepond above the mill, or in Little Lake. Where they could, the men slept on the rafts but along rapid water they slept on shore in tents; the cookery likewise had to be carried in punts whenever the cribs were broken up to go over rough water, and it was no mean feat for the cook to have warm meals always ready for the wet, tired men. Good cooks were famed in the north country, and experienced lumbermen chose their jobs in shanty or on drive by the name of the cook, ahead of the company or the foreman.

Square And Sawn Lumber

In 1864-65, over 3,500,000 feet of square timber (white pine, red pine, oak) were sent to Quebec from Peterborough county, and 1,500,000 feet from Victoria. In the next year, however, there was a drastic drop, and by 1870 the Kawarthas produced no more than 2,000,000 feet for this trade. The sawn lumber trade, on the other hand, increased from 1860, when about 60,000,000 feet went from the district. In 1866, according to Poole, Peterborough county produced 50,650,000 feet as follows:

Campbell Nassau Mills	10,000,000 feet
Shaw & Waite, Buckhorn & Lakefield	9,000,000
Hilliard's Blythe Mills	7,000,000
Ludgate & McDougall Ashburnham Mill	7,000,000
Dickson Peterborough Mills	6,000000
Scott Ball Lake Mill	4,000,000
Boyd Bobcaygeon Mill (half)	3,000,000
Boyd Squaw River Mill	1,500,000
Hale Otonabee Mill	1,500,000
Fowlds Hastings Mill (part)	1,000,000
Craigie & Stevenson Ashburnham Mill	400,000
Kelly Bridgenorth Mill	250,000

Counting other small mills in the county, 2,000,000 feet, and Victoria county 50,000,000 feet, and others on Rice Lake and Trent River 5,000,000 feet, the district in 1866 produced at least 107,000,000 feet, selling at the lakefront for $12 per M, bringing to the Kawarthas well over one million dollars. Of the Peterborough county export, it was estimated that 32,000,000 feet went through Peterborough town, 6,000,000 feet by scow to Harwood, the rest by rail to Port Hope. Of the Victoria product, at least 45,000,000 feet went by rail to Port Hope also, the rest by scow and raft to Scugog and overland to the lakefront.

Buckhorn	8,000,000 ft.
Fenelon Falls	8,000,000 ft.
Bobcaygeon	6,000,000 ft.
Ball Lake	6,000,000 ft.
Squaw River	4,000,000 ft.
Peterborough & Ashburnham	12,000,000 ft.
Others	4,000,000 ft.

There have been mills omitted in this estimate, but the evidence indicates a drop in production which continued until after 1870. As railways were pushed north, however, the industry expanded and prospered accordingly.

COMMENTS: This is not a very satisfactory showing according to the general results of the Kawarthas and with one or two exceptions the fish are small. There have been much larger ones taken I have mentioned several of them through the summer season, but, if people will not fill out the bonafide form provided, it is impossible and unfair to size it up on any other basis. It is gratifying to see that many of the above prize winners used Rusty Edgar's baits. The whole affair is called the Lucky Strike-Examiner Contest and if his Peterborough-made baits are capable of pulling in prize winning fish, they are about as good as they come. First prize winners will get a steel rod, second placers will get a reel and silk line and thirds won themselves a dozen spoons or plugs. Out-of-towners will be notified by mail and prizes shipped and city and district folk may get theirs by applying to the Examiner business office not before THURSDAY, Dec. 21st, just in time to take home a Christmas present.

It is a fairly easy matter for wives to pick out suitable Christmas gifts for their sports-minded husbands by simply walking into your nearest sports shop and getting the advice of trained clerks. There are a thousand things to choose from, all of them, if wisely chosen, will be acceptable. But to sow a subtle seed on conservation, I would favor exposing children to some cracking good outdoor reading. The information young minds absorb through this delightful treatment is a corker.

One book in particular comes to mind—there is a copyright on my desk—entitled PETER'S ADVENTURES IN THE OUT-OF-DOORS, written by Muriel Miller. It was compiled and published ten years ago but never pushed until leading outdoor associations such as the Ontario Federation of Anglers took it under their wing this year and sponsored its sale. Illustrated by Viola Thomson, the author describes an amazing lot of outdoor data in painless story form and it is as Canadian as maple syrup. Contact Jack Baldwin of PFGPA at Kingan Hardware whose group have signed to sell a block of 50 books at $1 each. It is grand stuff for boys and girls alike.

Peterborough Fish and Game Protective Association,
Dear Exec.:

So you had your first wolf hunt last Saturday morning. That much I gathered from one of your officers who came to see me last Friday morning asking for some publicity. This I gave on Friday and Saturday last week. In exchange for this courtesy, I expected a follow-up from someone on the executive on Monday as to what happened on the hunt. (I found out all about it on Monday, anyway.) When you deliberately leave me up in the air like this, my only conclusion is that you were looking for some cheap advertising and that is far from good sportsmanship. Another thing I have been waiting to hear about for weeks is your success, if any, in the setting up of lost hound pounds during the deer hunt. I have come to two conclusions: (a) some of your Exec. have chips on their shoulders and, to the detriment of your whole group's activities, have determined among themselves to tell me nothing of their doings; (b) you have nothing to report. I gathered this from many past months of talks with sportsmen in the field who wear your club shoulder patch, and who in too many cases, say wryly that they have dropped away from the PFGPA because they were not getting anything out of it. Why? If you don't straighten me out on some of these matters, the next time you come looking for publicity, I am apt to snatch a stave from that currently popular Thing song: "Get out of here with that boom-boom-boom....."

Additional wealth of Nature's bounty in Peterborough County—we already enjoy fish and game, the grandest scenery in the world, rich and well-tended farms—may come from her picture rocks. Already there is the mining of nepheline at Blue Mountain, the largest deposit of this ceramic ingredient in the Americas. Prospector Bill Collins showed me some chip samples of titanium ore which he said had come from claims near Catchacoma Lake. If this ever amounts to anything, Peterborough County will really be on the map, mine-wise. The titanium deposit at Lac Allard on the north shore of the St. Lawrence has made press headlines for the past three or four years. Large tonnages are coming out of there and are being treated in a hush-hush electrical furnace process at Sorel, P.Q., a revolutionary steel ingredient. Because those in the know about the Catchacoma find are tight-lipped, it would indicate that they have located something of great importance.

What On Earth Holds Huge Mountains Up? Here Is A Notable New Scientific Answer

By A. J. ARNOTT, Lakefield

From the earliest times mountains have been known as barriers between people and as impressive scenic features. More recently their effect on the weather and their attraction for tourists and skiers have drawn some attention. In this connection, a couple of strategically placed mountain ranges could make a tremendous change in Australia's deserts.

These things are known. But the occurrence and nature of mountains are somewhat of a mystery. Although mountains appear high if we are close to them, they are not very notable features when compared with the size of the earth. A ridge of the same proportions on a billiard ball could not be seen. Yet the actual weight of rock raised so high above the earth's surface presents some geological problems. A mountain range like the Himalayas is heavy enough to crush any rocks that might try to support it. What, then, holds it above the earth's surface? And what pushed it up there in the first place?

Mountains are largely composed of sedimentary rocks. Sedimentary rocks are rocks such as shale, limestone and sandstone that have been deposited as sediment in a shallow sea or water-filled trough. They occur in layers that are easily separated. This gives us the anomalous condition that there must have been a sea at some time in the past wherever there are mountains today. Beneath the sedimentary rocks there is a core of igneous rocks, mainly granite, which is seen in older mountain ranges after the sedimentary rocks have worn off.

The sedimentary rocks on the tops of young mountain ranges usually lie horizontally. Those on the flanks and lower down, as we find them on eroded old ranges, are often severely folded. Sometimes these folds take very complex patterns. This indicates that there was a horizontal thrust as the mountain was being raised. It is assumed that the mountains were raised by lateral pressure, that is, by a side thrust of the rocks alongside the mountain range. This lateral pressure could be caused by the cooling and shrinking of the earth. The surface rocks are cold and rigid. As the underlying rocks cool they would contract, leaving the shell too large. This shell would then fall in under its own weight, and the mountain range would be formed wherever it buckled in the process. This is the generally accepted theory of mountain formation.

There are some characteristics of mountains that should be noted.

Complicated Mountain History

Most older mountain ranges have a complicated history. They have been laid down as sediments under water, raised as mountains, partly eroded, then they have sunk below sea level and more sediments piled on them to great depths. After this, they have been raised as mountains again. In some cases this action has taken place several times.

There can be no doubt that it has occurred, for sedimentary rocks contain fossils of the plants and animals that inhabited the earth when they were laid down, and geologists can tell the age of the rocks by examining these fossils. In addition to this the old eroded surface is often easily seen under the newer sediments.

In some parts of the Alps the folding and faulting is very complicated. Some strata have been completely overturned, and older rocks now lie on top of young rocks. Recent studies have shown the tremendous amount of lateral motion necessary to cause all this folding. Geologists have decided that the earth's crust must have been shortened well over a hundred miles to account for it all in the Alps.

"Isostacy"

There is a condition on the earth that geologists call isostacy. By this they mean that movements are continually taking place to keep the same weight of rock on all parts of the earth's surface. Whenever a burden is added to any part of the surface, that part sinks and forces the hot underlying rocks out. These rocks in turn lift the part from which the burden was removed, restoring the balance. It is isostacy that enables sediments to pile up miles deep in shallow water to form the geosyncline, or sediment-filled trough, which eventually turns inside out to become a mountain range.

This presents a problem. If the trough where the Himalaya Mountains were formed was so weak that successive thin layers of sediment laid down there could force the trough to sink so that they were always being deposited in shallow water, what is holding the mountains five miles above the surface in the same place now?

If the rocks were very strong, strong enough to hold five miles of mountain in the air without bending, they might spread the load over a wide area just as a snowshoe carries a man. But mountains are formed in zones of weakness, where rocks are weaker than usual. In addition, they are folded and faulted when being raised, further weakening the rocks. Furthermore, the Ganges plain, to the south, contains a great depth of light sediments. The gravity anomaly there suggests that they are ten miles deep over the whole of this extensive plain. In order to hold up the Himalaya Mountains these rocks would have to be stronger than any known rock.

"Floating" Mountains?

Another possibility is that light rocks could be forced down into the heavier underlying rocks to form deep roots of the mountains. The whole mass could then float in the heavier base rock as an iceberg floats in water, with about one tenth of its mass above the surface. This would mean that light rocks have forced back heavier rocks to a very great depth without becoming denser themselves. If they are denser than the rocks that compose the mountains, and the pressure alone would make them denser, they must go deeper still. The estimated depth necessary for the roots of mountains is so great that it is puzzling geophysicists.

These are problems that scientists are studying.

The thickness of sedimentary rocks in mountains indicates that sediments are laid down to a depth of about twelve miles before mountains start to rise. They are laid down under water and there must be a certain amount of water trapped in them by the layers above.

It gets warmer at the rate of about one degree for every hundred feet that we go down into the earth, say fifty degrees per mile. If this rate continues to a depth of twelve miles, the temperature there should be 600 degrees plus the surface temperature or between 650 and 700 degrees.

Critical Pressure

Water boils at 212 degrees at sea level, but this increases with the pressure until a critical pressure of 194.6 atmospheres is reached, when it requires a temperature of 689 degrees to boil water. This is the critical temperature of water, and it boils at this temperature no matter how great further pressure may be.

It is rather interesting that the critical temperature of water is also the temperature at the greatest depth to which sediments are laid down in the earth. Let us suppose that the trapped water turns to steam when the bottom of the geosyncline reaches the point where the temperature of the rocks is the critical temperature of water. This would surely happen.

There would be a sudden increase in pressure. The increased pressure would increase the temperature and a hot pressure pocket would form at that point. Rocks there would melt, forming the igneous core of the mountain. The heat would turn more water to steam and the pressure would increase until it balanced the weight of the rock above. Then it would start to lift.

Explains Much

This would account for the Sierra Nevadas, which appear to have been pushed straight up with no side thrust. They are young mountains. Their folded rocks should reach the surface later on.

To get past the surface, the lower layers of the geosyncline would have to fold or telescope by an amount about equal to their greatest depth below the surface, so that we would still have folding and faulting, as with lateral pressure.

This would also account for the fact that land volcanoes and geysers are found along the flanks of mountains where the steam pressure has broken through to the surface. We would have no problem to explain the height of mountains, for they could be held up and still satisfy isostacy. It would account for the successive rise and fall of mountains as pressure builds up and escapes, with new folding building up on old folding each time this happened.

Taking all this into consideration, mountains are probably raised by steam pressure, just as volcanoes are.

Ladle In A Pot Of Gold

On A Refusal Of Aid Between Nations

Not that the earth is changing, O my God!
Not that the seasons totter in their walk,—
Not that the virulent ill of act and talk
Seethes ever as a winepress ever trod,—
Not therefore are we certain that the rod
Weighs in thine hand to smite thy world; though now
Beneath thine hand so many nations bow,
So many kings:—not therefore, O my God!—

But because Man is parcelled out in men
To-day; because, for any wrongful blow,
No man not stricken asks, "I would be told Why thou dost thus;" but his heart whispers then
"He is he, I am I." By this we know
That the earth falls asunder, being old.

Hundreds of folks along the Rue Brock will get a nice Christmas present next Tuesday night. A handsome package of muscular manhood, going by the name of Lord Athol Layton, a wrestler of renown. Complete with friend Gerald. Yes, he's coming here again to headline a three-bout pro mat card. Facing huge Hi Lee, who is a little taller even than his ludship, twice as rough and not a quarter as good-looking. Two big grapplers, one fast and clean and the other rougher than some city streets. It shou'd pack 'em in. Wee Willie Davis does the semi-final against Les Ryan, the Californian being around till late next week as his wife joins him in Buffalo this Christmas. Pat Flanagan and Al (Krusher) Korman go in the prelim. A good Christmas card.

The recent Canadian Press quizz on half-century stars started many arguments. Especially the one on the greatest hockey club in that period. Connie Smythe thinks it was Boston Bruins of 1940-41, while we think (rather reluctantly) that some of the old St. Pat's and the later Leafs rate high consideration. And Les Canadiens of other years. Baz O'Meara of the Montreal Star argues with Smythe that Ottawa Senators of 1921 were tops. Apart from Dit Clapper—greatest puckist to ever come out of this district—Baz doesn't rate those Bruins too highly. Of course, Dit can't be left off any all-time hockey squad. He's one of the half dozen best of 'em all.

Argument By O'Meara

O'Meara argues: "The Bruins of 1940-41 were Brimsek, no better than Benedict; Clapper, Hollett and Crawford, who couldn't rate as a trio with Gerard, Boucher and Cleghorn—only Clapper belongs in that company; they also had Des Smith, a good journeyman player, Bill Cowley who was good, but he was no Nighbor; Milt Schmidt was more in that class. Roy Conacher, Dumart and Bauer were good but if they were better than Darragh, Denneny and Broadbent we'd go broke betting against them. We think a previous Boston team that had Thmopson, Shore, Hitchman, Weiland, Clapper (right wing then) and Gainor, was better than the 1940-41 version of Bruins. Still it's all a matter of opinion and we could be wrong."

Belleville Rockets, currently leading the local IOOF-ers by one game, play the Oddfellows here Monday eve at 8.30 in Civic Arena, an OHA Junior "B" fixture. At least, we think that's how they stand, but last night's results around the loop may have changed things a trifle. Anyway, they're bunched up around top spot and fighting fiercely every game in this well-matched junior setup. The Rockets have been knocking 'em all off lately, though they barely edged Bun Kingdon's crew in Bella Villa last start. The clash here should be a streamlined and scrappy affair, drawing a hefty gallery.

IOOF-ers Looked Good

The Oddfellows didn't fool around last p.m. here, tearing in fast from the start to build up toward a 9-3 victory over Port Hope Panthers. Bob Wyatt and Brian Robinson continued their lamp-lighting habits in a classy showing, with Douglas, Stewart, Morrow, Armstrong and Wasson all working hard, too. Some swell local goaltending seen, and Wasson must have a pretty fair average in nine tilts to date. The Kingston crew all clicked okay in this effort, while the Panthers fought hard but didn't look their best, apart from a three-goal drive in the third chukker. Oshawa and Lindsay play tonight and this could further complicate the close race.

Nylons packed a lot of punch in Kingston last e'en to down the Petes 8-6 in a speedy, open struggle. Both sides were batting the black biscuit around plenty and 'twas a tough night for the guardians of the twine tepees. On points, the Petes are still tied for top spot with Eagles, but they've played and lost one more game than their local senior "B" rivals. Nylons are coming up fast and have 16 points to the 19 each held by the Jopling and Magee outfits. Belleville has 12, having beaten Queen's 8-4 in Bella Villa last night. In Kingston, the Petes lost out in overtime after looking better for more than half of the game. Penalties hurt the Petes' plenty, and so did that line of Partis-Gerow-Catlin, with Udall starring in goal. A real toughie to drop.

Grads Defeat Nurses 22-20, Neill's Triumph

A last-minute basket decided the last game of Friday night's girls' city league basketball doubleheader in favor of the Lindsay Grads over the Junior Nurses 22-20. The first game proved to be a walkaway for Neill's as they smeared the Normals 28-7.

Never was the scoring margin of the second game more than three. In the first half the Grads with Marg Owen, Ruth Beard, Shirley Meath and Lois Cullis scoring went up by only one point 10-9. The Nurses' points in the half were counted by Jean Bell, Fae Jones, Marjorie Flavelle and Mary Braund.

Jean Bell started to roll in the second half for the Nurses and they went ahead early in the fourth with Fae Jones and Mary Braund helping her. But the Grads matched them enough to stay within two or three points as Shirley Algar, Isobel Green, Marg Owen and Ruth Beard added up points. Two good foul shot attempts and a single basket in the last two minutes allowed the Grads to tie the score and go up the winning margin.

Nurses' Jean Bell was tops in the scoring with 10 points while Ruth Beard had six for the Grads.

Neill's had little trouble with the Normals. Dot Callan, Polly Stewart, Mickey Callan and Joan Dunk all contributed points in the first quarter as they blanked the Normalites 10-0. Normals settled down to a closer checking game in the second quarter and stayed close 4-3 with Amy Curtis scoring.

Neill's, with fast breaks kept up a strong offensive in the second half to equal the first half score of 14 points and at the same time held Normals to four by Carol Raper, Doris Reynolds and Verna Sine. The victors' second half scores were made by Dot Callan, Polly Stewart and Joan Dunk.

Dotty Callan edgegd Joan Dunk for the scoring honors by one with 10 points. Polly Stewart was close behind with seven. Amy Curtis' three were high for the Normals.

Lineup—first games

Normals (7)—Raper 2, Reynolds 1, Hollingsworth, Sine 1, Shunk, Curtis 3, Lane.

Neill's (28)—Poast, Anderson, D. Callan 10, Stewart 7, M. Callan 2, Floyd, Byers, Dunk 9, Freeman, Moyles, Smith.

Second game:

Grads (22)—Craine, Algar 4, Green 3, Owen 4, Beard 6, Meath 4, Cullis 1, Robertson, Gilson, Jordon Copp.

Nurses Jrs. (20)—Jex, Bell 10, Chestnut, Jones 4, Flavelle 1, Hammond, Stackhouse, Braund 5, Armitage.

Nylons Nose Out Petes, 8-6 In Wide-Open Senior Tussle

KINGSTON, Dec. 16—Kingston Nylons figuratively got up from the floor to beat the swift Petes by 8 to 6 in the Harty Arena last night in the season's most thrilling duel and thereby indicated that they have hit their stride and may break the monopoly that the Liftlock City teams have held on the two top rungs of the OHA Senior "B" group ladder. The jaunty visitors, who held a 6 to 1 lead until late in the middle period, faltered under heavy pressure and Nylons outscored them 2 to 0 during the remainder of that session, rapped in three more counters in the third to force a 6-6 deadlock and won the battle when the Catlin-Partis-Gerow line produced two goals in overtime.

The comeback staged by Nylons was one of the most amazing ever seen on local ice. The Petes outplayed them plenty and led by 3 to 1 at the end of the first period and they tacked on three more counters in the middle period before the locals quickened their pace and played rings around them during the rest of the route.

Penalties Hurt

Ten minor penalties were inflicted by Referee Ken McNaught and the Petes didn't enhance their chances when they absorbed seven of the sentences. A lot of other interferences were ignored. With Catlin, Partis and Gerow combining as of old and showing their best form of the season, these enforced rests taken by the Petes did them no good at all and they were a weary aggregation long before the firing was over.

Excitement was injected into the fray in third period when the visitors claimed a goal and debated the point with the adamant Ken McNaught. It was an interesting rhubarb while it lasted and it was stated later that the Petes were under the impression that McNaught had signalled the scoring of a goal, an allegation which the official denied.

The fans, 750 in number, got their money's worth in excitement and out of the ordinary entertainment. When the Nylons were apparently hopelessly defeated, their supporters suffered with them but when they launched that dynamic rally, the arena became a bedlam of noise which reached its highest points when Catlin scored the winning goal at the 4.10 mark in overtime and Partis made the verdict safe at 4.50.

Udall Shines

Goalkeeper Glynn Udall, shaky when the Petes were on the rampage, earned one of the stars. Udall scaled dizzy heights in effectiveness after Nylons opened the throttle wide and made the erstwhile pace setters look like a disorganized force. Harding, guarding the visitors' net, did his best work while his teammates were erected their lead but he faltered in the later stages when the pressure was severe and the shooting deadly.

Nylons superior teamplay was the deciding factor in the final analysis. The locals played positional hockey when the chips were on the line and threw the Peterborough machine out of gear. No less than 11 of the locals figured in the scoring summary but Catlin, Partis and Gerow were the top gunners of the night. Catlin and Partis each scored two goals and had as many assists.

Petes: Goal, Harding; defence, Millar and E. Leonard; centre, Wade; wings, Turner and Dugan; alts., G. Leonard, Tompkins, Fryia, Garvey, West, Collins, Horton and Mason.

Neighbors Give Party For Pair Wed 25 Years

MARMORA, Dec. 16 (ENS)—About 30 friends and neighbors gathered Friday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. George Brooks, Deloro, and tendered them a surprise party on the occasion of their 25th wedding anniversary. They spent a pleasant social evening and presented Mr. and Mrs. Brooks with a lovely gift of silver.

Mr. and Mrs. Brooks were "at home" to their family, who included Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Nobes and little son, Mr. Bob Brooks, Miss Joan Burke, and Mr. Sid Brooks, all of Peterborough. The family enjoyed a turkey dinner and presented their parents with a chest of silver.

Norwood Enters TVL

NORWOOD, Dec. 16 (ENS) — Charles Puffer has been elected president of the Norwood Hockey Club, entered in the Trent Valley League. Bruce Scott will manage the team, with Lloyd Fleming assistant, while Rod Webb was chosen coach, aided by Dave Hall and Gerald Martin. The financial committee consists of Bert Lockhead and Earl Hamblin. Equipment manager is Bud Webb.

Williams Signs Contract As Fish Expert

BRISTOL, Conn., Dec. 16 (AP)—The signing of Ted Williams, the noted baseballer to a long term contract as a consultant to Horton Bristol Mfg. Co., manufacturers of fishing equipment, was announced here Friday.

The new job as a so-called "fish professional" will not interfere with the hard-hitting Boston Red Sox outfielder's baseball career, it was emphasized by Williams and President Graham Treadway of the local company.

But, it was stressed that Ted signed with an eye to the future—"say in five years or so when he checks out of baseball as a player."

Technical Expert

Williams, whose bat earns him baseball's fattest salary cheque, is well known among fishermen as a technical expert in the design of equipment.

Specifically, explained Treadway, Williams — the American League's most valuable player in 1946 and 1949—will assist here in the design of tackles, the testing of Bristol Morton products, and help in promoting the company's conservation and youth programs.

Oddfellows Victors, 9 To 3 With Neat Junior Showing

Smitten by the stigma of a close defeat at Belleville Wednesday, Bun Kingdon's flying Oddfellows roared back at Civic Arena last night to smother Port Hope Panthers 9-3 and regain their position atop the junior "B" hockey loop with 11 points.

Bob Wyatt and Brian Robinson leading point-getters of the club, again led their mates, the former pulling the hat trick with three sparkling counters while the latter potted two and assisted on one in a fine display to give each a total of 13 points to date. Single markers were registered by Ray Douglas, who played a fine game last night, along with Bill Stewart, hard-working left-winger on the Robinson line, Armstrong and Jim Morrow, West and Dean Wasson each assisted and Brian Robinson each drew single assists.

Opened Fast

Play opened fairly fast in the first with Wyatt finding the range early as he whipped a close one past "Yo-Yo" Ashton near the crease from West. Near period's end, Brian Robinson poked a slick one in the corner as he circled the Panther net to catch the visitor's defence napping.

Port Hope battled harder in the second but the inspired Kingdon battlers continued to surge in this frame and rattled home five well-distributed tallies whilst keeping their own citadel air tight.

Six penalties in the first two stanzas hurt Panthers' chances but the visitors fought hard and were finally rewarded in the third when Medhurst earned a penalty shot on an alleged illegal check by Armstrong and drilled one close in behind brilliant Red Wasson.

Added a Pair

Panthers added two more in the final by Freeman and Downey on smart plays while Douglas and Brian Robinson each clicked for Links. Play roughened considerably in the final frame with seven miscues committed, including majors to Wasson and Goody for scrapping and referee Shannon was a busy man in the latter stages. Oddfellows all rated a star last night while for Panthers Downey and Campbell shone with Wilcox, Medhurst, Freeman, McKeen, Lawless, Flesch and Goody also good.

Port Hope: Goal, Ashton; defence, Harnden, Hanson; centre, Wilcox; wings, McKeen, Freeman; alternates, Campbell, Medhurst, Bigst, Downey, Lawless, J. Fisher, Pillsworth, Flesch, Goody.

IOOF: Goal, R. Wasson; defence, Armstrong, Clapper; centre, West; wings, Wyatt, Morrow; alts., Douglas, Floyd, Buckton, R. Robinson, G. Robinson, Stewart, Bigford, D. Wasson.

Referee: Bill Shannon, Marmora, linesman, Bill Romanyhi, Peterborough.

Here and There In Sport

By The Canadian Press

Eighty-six Canadian breds — the largest number in the race's history—have been nominated for the 92nd running of the King's Plate next spring.

Owners from five provinces are represented on the list, topped by E. P. Taylor, of Toronto, who has seven candidates eligible. Vince Sheridan of Toronto, whose McGill took the guineas in 1950, is not represented.

N. J. Speers' Whitter Stock Farm of Winnipeg heads the list of owners outside of Ontario with three candidates—Cymro, Scapa Blow and Gala Han. Other Winnipeg nominee are Stanley Zedd's Chopping and Battle River Stable's Tiny Wales.

Two Counver owners have nominated candidates. The Pacific farm has named Ladworth; Harry Weidman is represented by Wide Man.

The lone Alberta entry is Carhan Prince, owned by Edwin Albertson of Dalroy.

Russell Graul of Vercheres, Quebec, has pinned his hopes on Stiplass and Speedcop. Another Vercheres nominee is Rapid Stride, owned by J. O. Proulx.

A sentimental favorite among winter-book speculators is Carslits, owned by C. E. Hemstead, of Toronto, whose sire and dam—Acara and Paolita—both are former King's Plate winners.

Three other former winners have sired King's Plate eligibles for 1951. Bunty Lawless, the 1938 winner, has seven of his progeny on the list. Two sons of Archworth, the 1939 champion, have been named, and his successor, Willie the Kid, has fathered one nominee.

Boston's Ted Williams batted only .317 last season, but still repeated as the American League's "slugging" champion with a .647 percentage on 216 total bases in 334 trips to the plate.

Official statistics released Friday also certified 13 new league records, topped by a loop aggregate of 973 home runs, 90 more than the former mark of 883 set in 1940. In all, 67 major and league records were bettered or matched during the junior circuit's 1950 campaign.

For the second straight year, Boston's Vern Stephens shared in the runs batted in championship. Stephens and Red Sox teammate Walt Dropo drove across 144 runs last season. In 1949, Stephens and Williams tied for the honor at 159.

George Edmond, sports editor of the St. Paul Dispatch and Pioneer Press, said Friday he was reliably informed that Senator Edwin C. Johnson (Dem.-Colo.) would be named baseball commissioner to succeed Happy Chandler.

Johnson is president of the Western League.

High-scoring Dick Gamble of Quebec Aces has agreed to play one game for Montreal Canadiens of the National Hockey League under a amateur-professional lefid-lease scheme.

Gamble, top Quebec senior league scorer with 28 goals and 21 assists, will line up with the Habs tonight at Montreal against the New York Rangers.

Gamble will return to Aces Sunday afternoon when Quebec plays at Chicoutimi.

Jim Turnesa of Briarcliff, N. Y., took the lead Friday in the second day's play of Havana's $15,000 72-hole invitation golf tournament. His five under par 67—his second in two days—gave him a 134 to head the field at the halfway mark.

Tied for second, at 136, were Toney Penna, of Cincinnati, top man on opening day, and Lew Worsham of Oakmont, Pa.

Marlies Edge Dutchmen 5-4 To Take League Leadership

By The Canadian Press.

Toronto St. Michael's may get back into a tie for the top if they beat Hamilton Tigers tonight but for the time, Toronto Marlboros are the kingpins of the Ontario Hockey Association. Duke teams are atop both the OHA major and Junior A sections.

The Allan Cup champions took over sole possession of the major league lead Friday night with a 5-4 victory in Toronto over Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen. St. Mikes was idle.

It was the Marlboros seventh straight victory. And they had to come from behind to pull it out of the fire.

With five minutes left, Dutchies led 4-3. About 15 seconds later the count was 5-4. The Dukes' Al Buchanan and Bus Wycherley had each snapped in a goal.

Other Toronto goals were scored by Bobby Hassard, Wycherley and Red Johnson. The Dutchies goal-getters were Mickey Roth, Harvey Jacklin, Bingo Kampman and Don Obertoltzer.

Barrie Climbing

In the 10-team junior A division, Barrie Flyers climbed to within a half-game of the league-leading Marlboros, idle Friday night, by downing Toronto St. Mike's 7-5 in Barrie.

Real Chevrefils scored twice for Flyers while singles went to Chuch Wood, Don Emms, Leo Labine, Lionel Barber and Jerry Toppazzini. Bill Dineen led the collegians with two goals while Bob Schiller, Dan MacDonald and Willie Marshall picked up one each.

Hometown clubs won in every contest Friday night.

At Guelph the Biltmores helped break a four-way tie for fourth place by defeating Galt Black Hawks 7-2 and at St. Catharines the Teepees jumped from eighth to fifth place by topping the Stratford Kroehlers 4-2.

Ken Laufman and Herb Dickenson led the Guelph assault with a pair of goals apiece. Mid Houghton, Dean Prentice and Louis Fontinato scored the others. Johnny Sleaver and George Gosselin scored for Galt, both in the second period.

The Guelph and St. Kitts victories leave Windsor, Stratford and Galt tied for sixth place, one point back of the Teepees.

St. Kitts were paced by Skip Teal, with two counters, and Buddy Boone and Jim Robertson, who got one apiece. Bob Armstrong and Doug Williams scored for Stratford.

Sports College Does Research

By MEL SUFRIN,

Detroit Red Wings, doing everything possible to retain the National Hockey League championship they won last season, have turned to science in an attempt to get the best and the most from the players.

The Stanley Cup champions have asked Sports College, an athletic research and instruction service with headquarters in Toronto, to make a complete physical evaluation of the team and submit recommendations to help Detroit players develop the highest possible physical skill and condition.

Lloyd Percival, director of the college, announced today that an exhaustive report of the study made last week will reach the Red Wing management within a week.

The study was made at the request of Jack Adams, Detroit manager, who put his team at disposal of the Sports College research staff during a three-day period in which they were examined from every angle, on and off the ice.

"I've said all along that the average player isn't in top condition, and I believe that Lloyd and his Sports College are the people to help us do something about it," said Adams. "His organization is the only one I know collecting such information that has a background of hockey knowledge too."

Percival has high hopes for the success of the research. "Physical education experts have found that the average athlete hasn't even begun to approach his physical limits," he said. "The Detroit team has a fitness rating of 60, which is probably better than any other team in the league. However, I know this can be improved 25 per cent in six weeks."

Interesting Experiment

It will be interesting to watch how the experiment works out, although from recent performance there appears to be comparatively little room for improvement by the Wings. They have won their last five straight games two in a row over the league-leading Toronto Maple Leafs, and are only four points out of first place.

The idea of employing science to make the most of hockey ability is one that might well be tried by the Rangers and Bruins both of whom have faltered this season. The Canadiens and Black Hawks, who have been having trouble lately, might also take heed. The Leafs are reported to have hesitated when approached on the idea of physical evaluation.

Sports College would appear to be well equipped for such work. The organization which has gained widespread fame for its job of developing and instructing thousands of young athletes, spent six years gathering the technical information on which comprehensive tests are based.

$17,450 Damages In Car Accident

OWEN SOUND, Dec. 16 (CP) —Damages totalling $17,450 were assessed against Albert Playford, 35, of Owen Sound by Mr. Justice W. F. Schroeder at an Ontario Supreme Court sitting here on Thursday.

The damages arose out of a fatal highway accident near Chatsworth Oct. 1, 1949. Evidence was given that an automobile driven by Playford struck Mr. and Mrs. William George Johnson, both of Owen Sound, as they stood beside a ditched car in which they had been passengers.

Mrs. Johnson, 48, mother of seven children, died seven days after the accident. Her husband, 51, was in hospital for four months and is to receive bone-graft treatments for his legs. He is still unable to walk.

Justice Schroeder awarded Johnson $5,650 special and $7,000 general damages. A second assessment made under the fatal accidents act awarded him a further $2,500; his eldest son, George S. Johnson, $500, his youngest daughter, Linda, 7, $1,200 and another daughter Geraldine 14, $600.

Community Tree First In Years At Cobourg

COBOURG, Dec. 16 (ENS)— Cobourg's first community Christmas tree in many years was held last night in front of the town hall where a crowd of over two thousand people cheered the arrival of Santa Claus.

While the Kiwanis club for some years past has brought Santa to the town hall where presents to the children were given out, it is the first civic event in a considerable number of years. The tree was bright with coloured lights and after Santa had greeted the youngsters, he went into the town hall lobby where candies and fruit were handed out to the children.

Outside, beside the big Christmas tree, Christmas carols were sung led by members of the barbershop quartette. The affair was sponsored by the Cobourg Chamber of Commerce.

Sermons Of Little Value Unless They Inspire, Lead

By WILLIAM E. GILROY, D.D.

The story is well known of the man who was asked under whose preaching he had been converted. He replied that it hadn't been under anybody's preaching, but under his mother's practice.

The best witness to the truth of Christianity, and the power of the Gospel, is not found in sermons, though. As one who has preached a great many, I should be the first to contend that sermons are not to be undervalued. But the best sermons in the world are of little value unless they inspire and lead to Christian practice.

It is the evidence of the truth and power of the Gospel in daily life, and the evidence that men and women have been with Jesus, and have learned of Him, that is the greatest factor in extending the saving power and influence of the Gospel, in a world in which men and women need the Gospel more than anything else.

Yet the manifestation of the Christian religion in our lives, even of those who profess the Christian way, is not as everywhere evident as it ought to be. We, who call ourselves Christians, might well ask ourselves what there is in our lives, if anything, that marks us as in any way better, or happier, than non-professing, non-church-going, decently living neighbors.

Of course we ought to ask the question in no spirit of pharisaism or of assumed superiority. Humility is the essential and unfailing mark of the true Christian, who must always be measuring himself against the standard of some better thing, some further growth in grace to which he has not yet attained.

But if the Gospel, the presence of Christ in the soul, has any real meaning, it ought to bring into the daily life of the Christian some quality that others, no matter how outwardly correct their lives may be, do not possess. One must, of course, always remember the Parable of the Pharisee and the Publican, which means in a modern version that a sincere non-Christian, earnestly seeking to live a good life, may be actually nearer to Christ than many who profess His Name.

But allowing for this, the difference, I think, between the Christian and the non-Christian, whose life seems equally good, is one of atmosphere and horizon. The good man, who never goes to church, and takes no part in the life of the church, or in Christian fellowship, is cut off from a range of life and environment, that he ought to know, even if, knowing it, he decided to have nothing to do with it.

Religion in daily life would, I think, take on a new beauty and power if more professing Christians and non-Christians took into account in their lives the story of Jesus, as it is recorded in the four Gospels.

Enquiries among college students recently revealed widespread and amazing ignorance concerning the most outstanding details of the Gospel story. To know nothing of that story, which has had such part and influence in the world during twenty centuries, is to convict one's self of deep and essential ignorance, no matter how much knowledge one might otherwise possess.

The world's knowledge would be put to better use than much of it is if men cherished the knowledge of Christ above all other wisdom.

Wool Comes Cheap

WAIROA, NZ (CP). — High wool prices have provided livestock thieves with a new line of effort. They don't steal sheep any more; they just shear the fleece and leave the animals. One farmer found that 30 sheep had been shorn overnight in his mustering paddock.

PETERBOROUGH EXAMINER

VOL. CI. No. 141 — SATURDAY, DECEMBER 16, 1950

Assessment Low Compared To Property Sales

"Peterborough assessments are 'quite low' by comparison with property sales in the last five years," is an observation by Acting Chief Assessor J. E. Davis in a letter to the city council setting out his intention for re-assessment of the city.

"I believe that with our present staff we can re-assess the entire city in two years. My intentions are to re-assess the land in 1951 and the buildings in 1952. The new assessment on the land would not appear on the roll until we completed the buildings. Both new assessments would appear on the 1952 roll.

Added Services

"Many streets which have enjoyed added services and improvements in the last few years have had no increased assessments accordingly. Therefore, we have inequality throughout the city. This re-assessment requires a vast amount of research work as I have found numerous property deeds which do not agree with our registered plans.

"On examination of property sales transacted in the last five years,I find the assessment quite low by comparison. A re-assessment should remedy this and bring assessments into line with normal sale value."

"All buildings in Centre Ward, throughout the main commercial district, must be re-measured as numerous discrepancies now exist. Depreciation and obsolence allowances must be revised and brought up to date with existing conditions. The older type of buildings have been depreciated from time to time without consideration of their increased sale value and cost of replacement. Consequently, new buildings erected within the last ten years are bearing the brunt of the tax burden.

"I realize this report is quite brief and not too informative. If further information is considered necessary, I shall deem it a privilege to be of assistance to you."

Christmas Tree Sales Big Business

Selling Christmas trees is big business in Peterborough from reports of those offering spruce and balsam trees for the Yuletide season. Scattered throughout the city are groups selling trees varying from 100 in size to well over 500. The response is also reported good.

Prices depend upon the size and type of tree. Spruce are more plentiful than the balsam and therefore are averaging slightly less. These are selling from 50 cents for the small and up to six dollars for the trees used mainly in church and industrial Christmas parties. Balsam start off at $1 and rise to $2.

Most tree retailers in the city are delivering for nothing. In some cases the delivery fee of 25 cents has already been included in the price while others tack the extra on after delivery at its destination.

One dealer reported that most people this year favor the small tree. He suggested that this was probably because many people are living in apartments where quarters are crowded enough without having a eight-foot tree. Everyone wants a bushy, well-rounded tree, he added.

His trees cost 75 cents each in the bush. After cutting the trees himself, the farmer draws them to the road where the retailer must load them on the trucks for delivery to Peterborough.

Only one dealer reported that the trees were selling slowly and reasoned that many residents over the past weekend cut trees while out for a Sunday afternoon drive. He saw numerous cars passing his place with one and two trees throughout the afternoon.

A northender is reported to have sold close to 1,000 spruce and balsams, ranging from 75 cents to $2 each. Several said that other dealers have offered to buy out all the trees they have to help fill promised orders by this weekend.

This year the Y's Men's club has filled the vacant lot beside the YMCA building with Christmas trees as a winter project. The selling has been brisk there. Proceeds will further the facilities at the club's boys' camp on Clear Lake.

Three Arm Injuries

MARMORA, Dec. 16—(ENS)—Three residents of the village received arm injuries this week. The first, Michael Kouri, dislocated his shoulder and broke his arm as the result of a fall while playing at school on Monday. He was treated at the Belleville General Hospital and returned to home. The second accident occurred to Mrs. John Morrison on Friday when she fell and broke her arm, and last, Henry Wright, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ed Wright, suffered from a similar accident, a broken arm, on the same day.

Nurses Present The Magi's Gift

The beautiful medieval Christmas legend, "The Magi's Gift" was presented by the St. Joseph's School of Nursing at the nurses' residence Friday night. More than 200 attended.

"The Magi's Gift" is an operetta for Yuletide in two acts. The music and lyrics are from "50 Christmas Carols" by Edward Marzo. The setting is Christmas Eve in medieval England. A delightful medieval legend is the background of the first act followed by the beautiful nativity scene in the second act.

Miss Gwendolyn Chatterton, sang a solo, "In Old Judea" between the acts.

The members of the cast were: Shirley Lazier, Bernadine Moher, Elizabeth Nichols, Helen Fitzgerald, Ann Corkery, Jacqueline Molyneaux, Noreen Stevens, Jane Holand, Joan Gray, Marie Hogan, Rosanne Morrow, Jacqueline Rogers, Eiveen Boyce, Ilene O'Brien, all nurses and Joanne Tait, Gerard Byrne, Ann McMurray, B. Ayotte and Betty Gilbert of Immaculate Conception School.

The carollers were all preliminary students. The sailors' hornpipe was danced by Margaret Lamey and the Morris dancers were: Ruth Boyce, Eiveen Boyce, Catherine Farley, Rose Anne Morrow, Marie Hogan, Doris Calberry, Rose Quinn, Shirley Lazier, Aileen Graham, Ethel Jackett, Anita Lyons June Holland.

At the banquet table short addresses were given by the newly-elected officers and by the County Master, Bro. Gordon Trennum, and Deputy Master Ralph Langley.

A period of silence was observed for the late Bro. Ora Montgomery who died since the last meeting.

Runaway Horse Injures Youth

Unable to control a runaway horse Friday afternoon, 14-year-old John Westlake of Smith township made a desperate leap from the cutter in which he was riding. He suffered a badly-broken left arm and a three-inch cut in his head as a result of the fall.

He was taken to Civic Hospital after he walked home in a dazed condition, found nobody home, and had to telephone a neighbor for aid.

Friday afternoon he decided to hitch up a horse and go for a sleigh ride on the farm of his father, Charles H. Westlake, R.R. 2, Peterborough. But he made the mistake of hitching up a seven-year-old mare that had never been driven "single" before, hadn't worked much, and is said by Mr. Westlake to be "frisky as a colt."

Galloped Across Field

Frightened by the new experience of being in single harness the mare galloped away across the fields, completely out of control. Young Westlake was not strong enough to rein her in.

Finally he decided to make a jump for it. He landed clear of the speeding car but broke his arm and cut his head in the fall. When he reached home he found nobody there so he telephoned Mrs. Carmen English, a neighbor, for help. She was attending him when his brother Oswald and a friend arrived home.

They took him to Civic Hospital.

Oswald later found the frightened mare, half a mile away, hopelessly tangled in the woods. The loose reins had caught in some bushes and she was unable to get away.

The abandoned cutter was found some distance away. The mare had broken the shafts of the cutter, broken the traces, and as a finale to the wild ride had galloped into the woods where she got tangled up.

Daily Ritual In Attendance At Police Court Sessions

Every morning except Sunday, a small group of men gather on Water St.

They wait patiently until a few minutes before 10 a.m. and then troop up a steep flight of stairs and file into a large room and sit down on long benches.

The room is the city police court. The men are there every day to watch while the daily quota of drunks, traffic offenders, thieves, forgers, fighters and all the other varieties of law breakers are judged.

No matter how long and drawn-out the case, they sit through until court is adjourned and then leave.

The men are mostly elderly with no work to occupy their time. For some of them it is a difficult climb up the steep stairs to the court room and back down again.

One man is a cripple and it takes him some time to mount the steps supported by his cane. But he is there every day. The only time he missed was for about two weeks following a heart attack he had in the court room just as he was on his way out.

Another old chap with a cane is not quite so patient as the rest. He sits and listens to a case or two and then gets up, shuffles across the court room and down the stairs past the sergeant's office rather than down the court room stairs.

Some of them take a keen interest in every word that is said and apparently follow the sometimes involved arguments on points of law with appreciation and understanding. Some of the others cannot hear too well and it is a question how much they know of what is going on.

However, not all the regulars are idle oldsters. One younger man who operates a flourishing business appears every day for weeks at a stretch and then fails to show up for a time.

Some men who made their first appearance in the court room as accused men, keep coming back long after their cases were disposed of. They apparently found the whole process very interesting.

One man who became a regular attendant for some time was a defendant this week and was sentenced to two years less a day when he pleaded guilty.

One young man who had been a regular spectator for many months was called as a witness recently. Despite the hundreds of trials he had listened to was anything but a helpful witness.

These men do not perform their morning ritual unnoticed. Every once in a while they are recognized as an important part of the court. When a witness speaks in a low voice from nervousness, he is told by the magistrate, "Speak up the spectators in the back can't hear."

Turkey Prices Only Exception 1950 Increases

About the only thing the Christmas shopper can buy for less this year is a turkey.

With the Christmas rush now hitting its peak, shoppers are, as predicted a week ago, doing a lot of shopping along with their buying. Storekeepers and clerks say the buyer wants value for his money.

Turkeys are selling at about 10 cents a pound less this year than last. Toms sold for 73 cents a pound and hens for 79 in 1949. This year the price is down to 69 for hens and 65 for toms.

In appliance stores, the smaller types of electrical equipment, such as toasters, irons, electric kettles, etc., have a large turnover. Furniture stores are selling lamps and the odd table, but few large items.

Record stores, which offer certificates in various values as well as the actual records, are doing a landslide business.

Jewelry stores are selling more jewelry than anything else. Clocks, silver, and luxury items are taking a second spot to wrist watches and rhinestone jewelry.

In the men's wear stores, pyjamas, sweaters, shirts, ties and socks—the old reliables—continue to outsell other articles.

Women will be getting lots of slinky negligees this Christmas, as they have in other years. And the usual other types of lingerie—slips, etc.—are also popular. Silk stockings are still a good bet, as are sweaters.

Tobacco, pipes, cigarettes, boxes of cigars and cigarette lighters are selling well, as they have most years.

Hardware stores, offering everything from can-openers to children's toys, are mostly crowded, and owners say that people are buying a lot of kitchen ware.

Downtown, the storekeepers are smiling, the shoppers are searching doggedly for the last or second last gift, and there are only six more shopping days until C - - - - - - - s.

Taxi Passenger Injured In Crash

A taxi passenger, Yvonne White, 20, Lansdowne St., suffered a possible fractured pelvis when the cab in which she was riding met in head-on collision with another car as the two cars swerved to avoid a truck that went through a stop street without stopping.

Taxi driver Clifford Dalgleish, 50 Ware St., received a cut over his left eye and a chest injury. Driver of the other car, John Brook, 485 Aylmer St., received bruises on his forehead and knees.

Miss White's condition in St. Joseph's Hospital was reported today as unchanged.

About $650 damage was done to the Brook car and $850 to the Dalgleish car.

The two cars were travelling in opposite directions on Aylmer St. At Dalhousie St. the truck entered the intersection without stopping the drivers said. They both swung their cars and collided.

Traffic Officer Claire McGillen and Constable Donald Mackay investigated.

Baby Only Two Hours Old Rushed By Taxi From Apsley To Sick Children's Hospital

Ten minutes after midnight Friday morning a baby was born in Apsley. At 2.05 a.m. the same morning, she was in the city police station.

The baby was being rushed to the Sick Children's Hospital in Toronto for treatment for a minor back defect. The infant wrapped up warmly in blankets and carried in clothes basket was brought as far as Peterborough with her father and a nurse by an Apsley taxi.

The trip was interrupted at Peterborough because the driver of the Apsley taxi realized his insurance was only valid in the Apsley area. Constable Gordon Trennum called Stinson's taxi for a cab to complete the trip.

In a minute or two driver Gerald Turner had loaded the baby, the father and the nurse and was on his way. The rest of the trip to Toronto was made safely and by 10 o'clock the same morning the taxi had returned from Toronto, delivered the father and nurse to Apsley and returned to Peterborough.

Boy 6, Christmas Parcel For Family-Loving Couple

Something extra special is available for some family's Christmas in Peterborough or district. This extra special something is a six-year-old normal fun-loving boy who needs a home before Christmas. Fair hair and brown eyes, a friendly disposition and good marks at school are only a few of the recommendations that can be given for this lad. He has been in a foster home since he was three months old and it is only due to changes which have resulted in overcrowding in his present home that are forcing his foster parents to unwillingly give him up.

Because of this situation the Children's Aid Society is looking for a new home for this boy. Foster parents are wanted who would appreciate the added interest and happiness that a six-year-old would bring to their home.

This boy is at an adjustable age and because of being accustomed to living with three other children in his present foster home, he would have no difficulty in getting along with other children. He likes school and is particularly interested in farm animals. With this in mind, the Children's Aid Society is hoping that perhaps a farm home may be found for him.

So there it is—an opportunity to give and receive happiness this Christmas by providing a home for a homeless six-year-old.

Electric Power Consumption Jumps 3,300 HP

Electric power and gas consumption increased in the city last month as reported to the Utilities Commission by R. L. Dobbin, manager, but there was less water flowing through the taps.

The peak power load was up in November from 24,800 h.p. a year ago to 28,100 h.p. The increase was 3,300 h.p., and the kilowatt-hour consumption was 9,656,364, or 1,834,964 kwhrs. more than in Nov. 1949. The peak load increase was 11.3 per cent and consumption 12.5 per cent. His report of the substation fire was merely a recital of the facts as they are generally known.

Routine work completed in Nov. in the distribution system included a new power cable and pole set from Aylmer St. substation to Sherbrooke St., to feed the Bethune St. circuit. Poles were set for a new three-phase primary line across the canal on McFarlane St. to feed the east bank residences and plants.

Domestic Line

A new domestic line was built on Homewood Ave. from Walkerfield to Gordon Ave. Work was begun on foundations for the 3750 kva. unit substation on High St. The lighting circuit on George St. south was rebuilt.

Other work in November: 54 3-wire and 10 new 2-wire services were installed; 23 services were changed from 2 to 3 wire; 37 flat rate water heaters were connected; 47 new street lights were set; 25 old poles were replaced at various locations.

Gas department used in Nov. 47,140 gallons of propane, and made 6,926,000 cu. ft. of gas as compared with 4,993,000 cu. ft. in Nov. last year. The increase was 1,933,000 cu. ft. or 39 per cent more than a year ago. Average of propane per 1,000 cu. ft. of gas was 6.8 gallons.

"While the number of domestic consumers of gas decreased by 150 in the last year, the commercial and industrial consumption has greatly increased," Mr. Dobbin commented.

Down 129,000 Gallons

Total pumpage at the waterworks last month was 122,735,000 gals. and the daily consumption was down 129,000 gals.

New mains were completed as follows:

St. Catherines St., from Riverside Drive northerly to the existing main at Arndon Ave., 627 feet of 6-inch main.

Engleburn Place, easterly from Engleburn Ave., 295 ft. of 4-inch main.

Park St. from the end of the existing main south to Cameron St., 336 ft. of 8-inch main.

Steele St. from Riverside Drive to Cameron St., 433 ft. of 6-inch main.

Fifty-two new water services were laid in the month and one hydrant changed.

Unknown Car Smashes 30 Feet Bridge Fence

An unknown car sometime Friday night smashed into the iron fence at the east end of Hunter St. bridge on the south side, knocking down about 30 feet of the fence and two of a clump of trees a few feet farther east.

Skid marks showed the car slid in a circular path smashing the fence in passing, but it was difficult to see whether or not the car had been travelling east or west on Hunter St. No report of the accident was made to police.

Youth Rescued By Sam Wood Buckhorn Lake

Sam Woods, 65-year-old Buckhorn postmaster, is the talk of the village today. Late Friday afternoon he jumped into the icy waters of Buckhorn lake to rescue seven-year-old Billy Pearson from drowning.

Billy, son of Mr. and Mrs. Sherman Pearson, was playing with several chums as they returned home from school (S.S. No. 5 Harvey). He saw Mr. Woods car approach the Buckhorn bridge from the south and he moved over to the side to let it pass. Somehow he slipped between the steel railings and fell into the lake, 12 to 15 feet deep at that point.

Failed To Grab Rope

When the lad, still floundering in the water, was unable to grasp a tow rope, Mr. Woods took one end and jumped in to help him. The elderly postmaster securely tied the rope around the lad and Bert Calvert, another Buckhorn resident who was passing over the bridge at the time, pulled him to safety.

Three unidentified men in a truck then pulled Mr. Woods to safety.

The accident and rescue were on the west side of the dam, the up-river side. The swift current in the deep water there has prevented ice forming in the channel.

Billy was taken home and put to bed to prevent a chill and he was given medical attention by Dr. H. E. Gastle of Lakefield.

Mr. Woods, a lay preacher at the Buckhorn Presbyterian church, was on his way to sort the mail when he witnessed the accident. When the rescue was over he quietly went home, changed his clothes, and continued sorting the Christmas mail.

Though not in the best of health he apparently suffered no ill effects from his icy dunking, and was on the job as usual early today.

War Threat Causes Canada Make Big Changes In Armed Forces

By DOUGLAS HOW

OTTAWA, Dec. 16 — (CP) — The past year worked major upheavals in both the constitution and the concept of Canada's peacetime armed forces.

Manpower ceilings became academic. The celebrated nucleus theory was submerged and all but forgotten. The belief Canada would do well to protect herself gave way to a larger official belief that she must also be prepared to send forces to man the ramparts of freedom abroad.

It was the year extra-territoriality came into view at defence headquarters and all three forces were placed on active service so that servicemen could be retained as long as the government wanted them and sent where crisis needed them.

There were two main reasons behind this upheaval. Both stemmed from the same source—Russia.

Two Big Events

The original one was the Atlantic Pact and its movement towards integrated Western defence. The second, the far more dynamic one, was Korea.

Korea picked up the relatively slow movement towards Western military unity and turned it into a whirlwind of activity. Korea also made demands of its own that touched all three Canadian armed forces and changed them. The whole tempo and vision at defence headquarters and its subordinate commands and formations was revolutionized.

Korea was the key that changed it. A Cabinet that could see no alternative authorized the transformation.

More Recruiting

Recruiting was intensified From a leisurely pace that had brought 47,000 men into the three forces, it was gingered up to put the total beyond 62,000 at year's end. The manpower ceiling ahead was 69,000 but Cabinet indicated that was purely academic, that the drive was on and would stay on until crisis cooled.

New units were formed. The pace of production for new fighter planes, new warships was sharply moved ahead. A new government agency was formed to handle the tremendous construction job that lay ahead to build the barracks, the schools, the homes to handle the influx, to build radar stations, the hangars, the laboratories for defence.

The air force enlarged runway after runway, formed a third regular fighter squadron and prepared to make 1951 the year that will see its airpower really being to show. The navy started unpacking its mothball fleet and building towards a two-ocean fleet of some consequence.

Combat Division

The army, by year's end, had virtually a division of combat troops in uniform, far beyond Ottawa's wildest dreams even in early June.

The nucleus theory, the theory that Canada's forces should be small and compact and promarily an instructional cadre for mobilization, had largely vanished. In its stead was the new extra-territorial vision, backed by forces growing into significant size.

The army, because of Korea, had an 11,000-man special force ready for Korea or elsewhere. As 1950 was ending, one of its battalions was enroute to Korea, the other 10,000 men were in training at Fort Lewis, Wash.

Nobody could tell what 1951 would bring but the betting in Ottawa was that if the force didn't go to Korea it would go to Western Europe or some other overseas front to back Canada's Atlantic Pact or United Nations obligations.

For Canada became in 1950 the first UN country to form such a force specially to back its international obligations.

For home defence, the army trained its airborne brigade, a 5,000-man force specially trained for Arctic warfare. Big in its activities was the early-winter joint Canadian-American Arctic exercise Sweetbriar.

The navy, at year's end, had three destroyers off Korea, another three just home from a prolonged European cruise. It, too, was preparing to serve and was serving Canada at home and abroad High in its thinking was the mid-year appearance of one or more Russian submarines off the east coast.

The RCAF, its dominance at headquarters slightly ruffled by Korea, sent a transport squadron into the Korean airlift and prepared for a more important contribution to democracy's defence—dispatch of fighter squadrons to Europe starting early in 1951. It also was laying the groundwork for expansion of its coastal and anti-submarine operations.

Saved From Wife

TORONTO, Dec. 16 (CP) — James Roth, 18, who said he broke $230 worth of windows so he would be locked up away from his wife with whom he had quarrelled, had his wish fulfilled Friday. He got two months in jail.

Change Rules

OTTAWA, Dec. 16 (CP)—Canadians were informed Friday of altered rules for entering Austria. Canadian citizens now will be able to enter Austria without allied force permits so long as they are in possession of valid passports. However, they will still require occupational forces' travel permits—so-called grey cards—when travelling into or through the Soviet zone of Austria.

Dysart Township Remains Dry

HALIBURTON, Dec. 16 — The people of this district went to the polls Wednesday to decide whether or not they want government liquor stores in the community. The question was: "Are you in favour of the establishment of government stores for the sale of liquor?" and the answer by a slim majority was "No."

Clerk of Dysart Township S. A. Windsor reported 1,171 votes of which 60 per cent of 703 votes would have been required by the affirmative to have won the plebiscite. As it was the "wet" forces obtained only 646 votes or 55.1 per cent of te tothal vote cast —4.9 per cent below the winning figure.

Wednesday's vote was said to be about 60 per cent of the possible total vote. The weather was described as being favorable.

Cavan WI Donates Money For Shut-ins

CAVAN, Dec. 16 (ENS)— The Cavan Women's Institute held their December meeting at the home of Mrs. Milton Wright on Tuesday afternoon with a good attendance. The president, Mrs. Roy Ferren, was in the chair. Mrs Wm. Armitage acted as secretary in the absence of Mrs. Mervin Smith.

It was decided to make donations for the purpose of sending Christmas cheer to those who were shut in.

The Institute catered for the dance sponsored by the community hall management committee on Friday night and the receipts were $11.95. It was decided to cater for these dances which will be held fortnightly through the winter months.

The program was in charge of Mrs. A. Brinklow's group and the following numbers were given: a paper by Mrs. Brinklow on family relationship; a reading by Mrs. Gordon Staples, "Gifts Without the Giver"; Mrs. T. Wilcox gave a talk on the value of movies in child education, and Mrs Wm. Whitnell gave a reading on "The Films in Labrador."

Christmas carols were sung and the committee in charge served lunch.

Home Ownership Brings Many Direct Advantages

Did you ever enumerate the many forces which the ownership or the purchase of a new home sets into motion? Just what are the direct advantages to you when the family acquires its own place to live? Here are a few of them:

1. Financial Independence — More people have started on the road to financial independence through home ownership than in any other way.

2. Security—In times of stress the home is always something to fall back on.

3. Credit — Home ownership gives financial and credit rating in the business world because it is everywhere recognized as a fundamental principal of stability.

4. Social Background — The children of home-owning parents somehow seem to have a greater stake in the community.

Children Gain

5. Environment for Children —Your sons and daughters have the privilege of playing and spending recreation periods within the confines of land which is owned by the family and in which they have a personal interest. Improvements and additions can be made with no fear that your work will be wasted as is often the case when the family moves from a rented house.

6. Development of Responsibility—The home owner always feels a greater sense of responsibility for the preservation of his property; and, in any neighborhood where home ownership predominates, building values and the appearance of the community are always much better than in a rental area.

7. Expression of Individuality—The opportunity to express in the interior and exterior of your home those personal ideas of yours which individualize your property as having been developed according to your own taste is worth much in personal contentment and satisfaction.

Environment Security

8. Permanence of Environment—Old friends are always best, and it is pretty difficult to develop life-long attachments which make living more pleasant when we move from rented house to rented house in many different communities.

9. Independence — It is certainly a pleasure for the home owner to know that no one can raise his rent, order him to move, tell him how many pets he can have, restrict the size of his family, or comment in any way upon the development of the home.

10. Peace of Mind—We always live better when we know that come-what-may the paid-for house means always a roof over the family.

THE SECOND CROSSING — Pfc. Marvin Fulton of Davenport, Ia., holds a sign he will place on a mined bridge in Korea after last elements of retreating UN forces have crossed it. The sign mocks the triumphant one posted earlier by UN troops who seized the bridge during the advance into North Korea a few weeks ago.

Deanna Durbin Enjoying Visit To Paris

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD, Dec 16 (AP) —Looking through the week's mail

Winnipeg-born Deanna Durbin apparently has no plans to return to Hollywood after her forthcoming marriage. The songbird writes from Paris:

"I am living a life of leisure and my neck is stiff from sightseeing. And such sights! My first trip abroad, and it's really turned into a good one. Jessica (her daughter) is wonderful and is learning French faster than I.

"You know that I am planning to be married to Charles David somewhere before the end of this year. Then off to Germany, where Charles will direct a picture and I will do more sightseeing. Not to mention all the sauerkraut I'll eat. Ooh, it's so good". . .

Incisive Treatise

Charles I. Anderson of Burlingame, Calif., pens an incisive treatise of the people who write about movies:

"A 'think' magazine imagines its readers are panting for the news that movies are really a giant industry, although they seem so light and amusing on the screen. They make much of the 'ironic' facts that Woody Woodpecker's trivial doings cost $50 a second to produce that big banks invest in most independent productions. . . .

"Next we come to the picture magazines. Since their birth in 1936, they have sent photographers flying across the continent to photograph the backsides of old movie sets. . . .

"The writers of studio-locale fiction for the slick magazines imagine that Hollywood is peopled chiefly by handsome young directors, lovable young script girls and cruel, glamorous actresses who come between directors and script girls.

Same Stuff

"And then there are the movie historians and art critics who publish articles in literary journals and an occasional book. The aesthetes have a short list of films they keep saying the same things about: 'Birth of a Nation,' 'Intolerance,' 'Greed,' 'The Passion of Joan of Arc,' 'Nanook', 'Potemkin' and 'The Informer'.

'These may be fine films, but I think even their directors would have hesitated to make them had they known of the volumes of guff that were to follow."

Jumped Too Well

OTTAWA, Dec. 16 (CP)—Men of Canada's first airborne artillery battery jumped so well in their parachutes they've jumped right out of their regiment. Army headquarters said Friday the battery has been divorced from its parent regiment, the 1st Regiment, Royal Canadian Horse Artillery, and redesignated as the 1st Light Battery (Parachute), R.C.A.

Will Investigate

OTTAWA, Dec. 16 (CP) — A housewife appeared in suburban Eastview magistrate's court Friday, charged with striking her husband repeatedly over the head with the blunt end of an axe last Saturday. Mrs. Lilian Normoyle admitted hitting her husband over the head with the axe, sending him to hospital where 19 stitches were required to close multiple wounds in his scalp. Magistrate Austin O'Connor remanded the case one week pending further investigation of family conditions.

LASTING LEGHORN—Michael Lehnerer of Waukesha, Wis., holds a Leghorn hen which he says is 17 years old and still producing eggs. Usual life-span for hens is about five years, so this old bird has outlived her species more than a 200-year-old man would be outlasting his fellows.

Film Marriage Ends

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 16 (AP)— With no previous hint of a rift, the Barbara Stanwyck and Robert Taylor marriage broke up Friday. The film couple, married since 1939, issued a statement saying that "in the last few years because of professional requirements we have been separated just too often and too long. Our sincere and continual efforts to maintain our marriage have failed."

Ask For Spell

LAGOS, Nigeria, Dec. 16 (Reuters)—Some 20,000 striking West Africans here called in a "Juju-man" (medicine man) Friday to lay a curse on strike-breakers with his incantations. Most of the strikers are employees of the United Africa Company, the biggest European trading concern in West Africa. The men are demanding a 12½-per-cent cost-of-living allowance.

JOHN B HACHEY, of Tetreaultville, Que., who has previously converted a half-acre vacant lot into a park which boasts a wading pool and a pint-sized golf course, has recently completed his new project—a six-foot-high creche. He started the actual work, after weeks of planning early in September. His main problem was to find figures of the Holy Family and shepherds large enough for the out-door Nativity scene. It took 700 pounds of cement to cast the figures of 4 adults, the child Jesus, and 6 animals. The photo above shows Mr. Hachey putting the finishing touches on the creche outside his home in Tetreaultville.

Supreme Court Finds Negligence In Both Drivers

Both parties were negligent, ruled Justice R. I. Ferguson in giving judgment on a two-car collision August 20, 1949, between Joseph Torpey, Burnham St., and James Mahoney, Patterson St. The case was heard at the non-jury sittings of the Supreme Court.

Torpey, a salesman and plaintiff in the action, was judged 40 per cent responsible and awarded $600.54 damages; and Mahoney was judged 60 per cent responsible and awarded $66 damages on his counterclaim.

The accident occurred when Torpey ,driving his car south on the Keene Rd. near the 11th concession of Otonabee, collided with the westbound car owned by Mahoney but driven by a friend Iona Hartwick.

Torpey said he did not see the Mahoney vehicle which had partially pulled out of a side road, until less than 50 feet from it. The operation of the defendant's car was negligent, stated the plaintiff; the driver had no licence and had not driven before.

The defence conceded that Iona Hartwick had no driver's licence but denied that she was incompetent because she had some driving experience. There was plenty of room for a good driver to have got by their stalled vehicle without colliding.

Justice Ferguson found both negligent: Torpey for not keeping a proper lookout and Mahoney because his car stalled in front of the oncoming vehicle.

T. J. Carley, K.C., represented Torpey, and W. J. Arthur Fair, K.C., was legal counsel for Mahoney.

Author Given Prize

Historic Step

VANCOUVER, Dec. 16 (CP) — British Columbia took an historic step Thursday with elections of an East Indian-Canadian and a Japanese-Canadian to office. Dr. Masjiro Miyazaki won a village commission seat in Lillooet. At Mission City, Naranjan S. Grewall, sawmll manager, headed the poll in a seven-day fight for three seats.

50% Damages Awarded Three In Double Suits

"I can't believe that either one of these gentlemen could have kept a proper lookout or he would have seen the other's negligence."

That was how Supreme Court Justice R. I. Ferguson on Friday summed up the double action for damages resulting from a crash at Weller St. and Monaghan Rd. last January 22 between the cars of Dr. Herbert V. Dobson, Charlotte St., and Edward John Ferguson, Engleburn Ave.

Dr. Dobson sued Mr. Ferguson for damage caused his car in the smashup. Mr. Ferguson and his wife Flossie sued Dr. Dobson for damage to his car and injuries to her. She had suffered from dizzy spells and felt physically weak. Her right shoulder was sore and stiff.

The two cases were tried together. Justice Ferguson found the parties "equally responsible for the accident," and awarded 50 per cent damages to all three. Mrs. Ferguson got $250 and costs; Mr. Ferguson $150.10 and costs; and Dr. Dobson $282.82 and costs.

Mrs. Ferguson, a passenger in her husband's car, testified that she was injured when the Dobson auto struck theirs. She received bruises on her ribs, right arm and chest. Since the accident she had suffered from dizzy spells and felt physically weak. Her right shoulder was sore and stiff.

Dr. Dobson was going west on Weller when Mr. Ferguson was going north on Monaghan when they collided in the north-east quarter of the intersection. Both roads slope upward toward the intersection and the view is mutually screened by a wall at the corner.

Slow signs only were erected on both streets, 53 feet from the corner. Justice Ferguson agreed that it was "a bad intersection."

One of the eyewitnesses, [illegible]las Mortimer, of Engleburn Ave., commented that a person needed "four eyes" to be safe at that crossing.

Right Of Way

T. J. Carley, K.C., Dr. Dobson's counsel, said there was no disputing the fact that his client had the right of way. Dr. Dobson, he argued, had looked to the left and seen no car, then looked to the right; when he looked left a second second time he was in the intersection and Mr. Ferguson's car was about eight feet away and in front of him. The front of the doctor's car struck the side of the northbound vehicle.

Dr. Dobson was not speeding, said Mr. Carley, and he had a right to expect that under the circumstances Mr. Ferguson, approaching the intersection from the left, would yield the right of way.

He quoted several Supreme Court judgments, one as recent as a month ago, that laid particular stress on the duties encumbent on a driver who approached an intersection from the left.

Alex Elliott, K.C., said it was a fact that Dr. Dobson had the right of way, but a driver must still proceed at a proper speed and maintain a proper lookout.

"The old decisions are still applicable," said Mr. Elliott. "A driver entering with the right-of-way must still observe due care . . . [Judgment here] "is a question of fact rather than law."

The recent Supreme Court decision does not allow a driver with the right-of-way to rush through an intersection "regardless of circumstances," said Justice Ferguson in his judgment.

"It is only applicable if he enters an intersection without negligence on his part."

He ruled that both Dr. Dobson and Mr. Ferguson were guilty of contributory negligence.

Mr. Carley is considering an appeal.

New Royal Color Catches Eye At London Show

By MURIEL NARRAWAY

LONDON — (CP) — At a London display, "Two Hundred Years of Fashion" showing 153 dress designs of other eras, the coat and dress that caused most comment were worn by a member of the audience—Princess Margaret.

The Princess wore a new color, the audience found it difficult to describe.

"Burgundy-red," said a textile designer. "Liver-sausage pink," said a fashion writer.

"Copper red," was the verdict of a well-known fashion designer, who was given the last word. "And thank goodness for the change from that eternal royal blue."

The Queen and Princess Margaret were attending a display given by Mrs. Doris Langley Moore, London's authority on period costume. Well-know actresses of stage and screen displayed the fashions of two centuries, from gorgeous crinolines and sedate bustles, to the earliest tennis and cycling outfits and the uniform of the Edwardian suffragettes.

Today's popular double-purpose designs were seen in a mid-Victorian croquet dress of silver-grey silk, looped over a frilled petticoat of ankle-length and topped by a loose, hop-length scarlet jacket. Loosen the petticoat ribbons, remove the jacket and the result was an elegant full-length, low-necked ball-gown

Too Gay For Church

The present tartan rage also had its predecessor in the Victorian 1870s. A vivid scarlet and black tartan dress of the period was described by its owner, as: "A little too gay for churchgoing."

Mrs. Moore pointed to the first omission of gloves in the 18th century costume and the continued use of the parasol up to the beginning of the First World War.

The Queen is an up-to-date devotee of the parasol and carries one at all Royal garden parties. This year a number of the style-conscious guests carried gay, new parasol fashions.

"One of the strangest fashion changes," said Mrs. Moore, "is the fact that once silk was the luxury material, now wool is the most luxurious and expensive material of all."

"If the display proved anything," said Helen Williams of the Yorkshire Post, "it proved that dresses for gala occasions have always been beautiful, excepting perhaps the ugly chemise-styles of the mid-20s."

Friday Night Club Dinner Dance Christmas Event

Annual Christmas party and ladies' night of the YMCA Friday Night Club was an enjoyable event of last evening. Seventy-five guests were served dinner in the club supper room and entertained with a program and dancing.

Guest speaker at the dinner was Mr. Harry Baptie, personnel manager of Western Clock Company. His address was an amusing one, about tomostone epitaphs, and he used them to illustrate the trend of thinking in olden days. Those from New England graveyards which he read revealed considerabel frankness about the character of the departed one.

Gordon Minty contributed banjo selections and George Allis-ton played his accordian. Jim Abraham who arranged the entertainment was at the piano for a sing song led by Charles Rowe.

President Bill King extended welcome to the ladies. He introduced the members of his executive, Clare Dayman, vice-president; Douglas Buck, secretary; Trevor Lillico, treasurer; Donald Armdstrong, speakers, Charles Bain, food, Bill Bunker, membership; Ted Dawson, publicity, Jim Abraham, entertainment. He also introduced members of the YMCA staff and special guests.

Rose bowls and Christmas plants decorating the tables were presented by Y's Men's Club member Earl Spenceley who asked that they be given to the waitresses afterward. Waitresses were members of the YWCA Fridady Night Supper Club, Misses Betty Merrett, Margaret Forsythe, Kay Greer and Joan Marie Lang.

Winners of the door prizes were Mrs. Vern Pinn and Mr. Ronald Manley. The dance prizes went to Don Whittaker and Miss Lorna Mitchell, and to Ron Manley and Miss Bernice Greatrix and to Mr and Mrs. Verne Pinn.

Head table guests included Mr. and Mrs. Baptie, Mr. and Mrs. G. H. Roper Miss Helen Warner, and Mr. Donald Armstrong, Mr. Bill King and Miss Velma Powers, Mr. and Mrs. Jim Abraham, Messrs. Gordon Minty and George Allison.

Other guests were: Mr. and Mrs. Ron Watson, Mr. and Mrs. Charlie Forsythe Mr and Mrs. Fraser Wade Mr. and Mrs. Larry Blanchard, Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Burns, Mr. and Mrs. Verne Pinn.

Knox WA Receives Donation of Junior Groups

"Unto us is born a Saviour" was the theme with which president Miss Susan Summers opened the meeting of Knox WA on Thursday afternoon in the church parlors. Mrs. C. Weldon favored with the solo "Infant Holy." The lesson thoughts, read by Mrs. A. A. Sparks were on the theme "Christ is the world's one hope," and she followed the reading with prayer. Mrs. J. S. Londerville read a portion of scripture. Mrs. R. Goodfellow concluded the program with Christmas selections.

Mrs. W. McCracken, representing the Junior WA Groups gave in a fine donation to be partly used for new kitchen utensils, the rest for WA work.

Mrs. H. Clegg presided for the election of officers in which the president was re-elected with the following executive:

Honorary president, Mrs. H. G. Douglas; vice president, Mrs. H. Todd, Mrs. G. James, Mrs. E. Pearse and Mrs. C. Ross; secretary, Mrs. C. Gertley; treasurer, Mrs. G. Hutchinson; cent-a-day, Mrs. C. Weldon; press, Mrs. G. Morrison; flowers and cards, Mrs. F. A. Kidd; pianist, Mrs. R. E. Goodfellow.

It was decided to hold an evening meeting on January 10 when all WA groups will be together.

Hanging of Greens At YW Gives Festive Air

Completely decked for Christmas is the first floor of the YWCA and its gay and festive dress was put on Friday evening with little effort by the willing hands of workers from all clubs and departments.

Some 50 Y members taking part in this annual custom were rewarded with entertainment, a program, refreshments and dancing. Plans were made by a committee headed by Miss Helen Edmison with Misses Jean McIntyre, Jean Hammond and Esther Meiklejohn assisting, and Mr. Clare Dayman was master of ceremonies for the dance.

Carol singing, interspersed with readings by members of the senior drama group opened the evening. Singers were wearing choir gowns and the candles they carried were the only lights on the stage where the crib and manger stood. Miss Jean Hammond portrayed the figure of Mary in the creche. A recording of the Littlest Angel was played in absence of the member selected for this part.

The readings were about the various Christmas customs and each was enacted during the reading. Miss Lois Williamson was soloist, singing "Holy Night" and others in the choir were Neil O'Keefe, Jean Strasser, Janet Scott, Gwenyth Reed, Aileen Patton, Irene Campbell, Miss Esther Meiklejohn was pianist.

Tea at YW Honors Civic Students Receiving Awards

The 34 Civic Hospital probationary students were guests of honor in the YWCA Friday afternoon and entertained at tea following periods in the pool where they took part in novelty games, and in the gym for demonstrations.

Presentation of Red Cross swimming awards was made by the Red Cross convener of swimming Mrs. W. A. Hinds who was introduced by Miss Marjory Flavelle of the student group who also expressed appreciation to the Y for organizing weekly periods of recreation for them. She particularly thanked Miss Audrey Hustwitt, swimming director, and Miss Caroline Littlefield, physical director, for their interest.

Intermediate awards went to Misses Catherine Craig, Norma Armitage and Shirley Roberts. Senior awards were won by Misses Betty Berry, Alta Bullock, Frances Hannan, Carol Chestnut, Jeanne Bell, Mary Braund, Betty Taylor and Margo MacTaggart.

Tea refreshments were prepared by the students and they took turns in serving. Mrs. T. J. Carley, YW Board President, and Miss M. Macpherson, nurse in charge of students' health, poured the tea.

Representatives of the swim and gym committees were present and from the hospital staff, Miss A. L. Thomson, Mrs. T. Wilcox, Mrs. J. Schieder and Miss C. Wilson.

There Are Two Kinds of Love Grand Passion, Puppy Love

Dorothy Dix

How often can you fall in love? Not schoolboy and girl crushes, not passing fancies, not temporary infatuations, but real, genuine, blow-in-the-bottle love, or what have you?

Many people ask this question not only of others but also of their own hearts, and when they find that they are beginning to run a temperature for the second or third time over some member of the opposite sex and thrill at the sound of a footstep, they are just as surprised as if they had caught the measles or the whooping cough again. They are pitiably uncertain as to whether their symptons indicate that they have been stricken down with a fatal attack, or are merely the victims of a slight indisposition from which they will recover in a day or two and for which they will be none the worse.

Naturally when we speculate about how often one can fall in love we have to consider the type of love under discussion and also the temperament of the individual. Undoubtedly there are men and women who give all that they have of romance and affection to their first loves and thereafter have nothing left to give anyone. They are sentimental bankrupts. But it is equally true that there are millions of other men and women who can fall in love as often as the occasion requires and who, if the lips they love are not available, are just as happy kissing other lips that are near. Their hearts are transient hotels in which different guests continually come and go, and for whom there is always WELCOME on the doormat.

Two Kinds Of Love

As for love, there is the grand passion and there is puppy love. When you have either one you think you will never get over it. Undoubtedly those who experience the grand passion never love but once. If they marry the object of their affection, they are faithful unto death. If through misadventure or through death they lose their beloveds, they never cease to mourn them. If through sheer loneliness they try to recapture their vanished dream, they find that it cannot be done.

No love is so violent while it lasts as puppy love. None are so sure that their love is eternal and will outlast time and eternity as adolescents. None are so sure that the particular boy and girl who have momentarily caught their fancies are the only ones and that there will never be another. Yet with even fair luck most boys and girls do escape marrying their first, or even their second or third or fourth loves and to thank God for it.

As a matter of fact, and it is a fortunate thing for us that it is true, great lovers are as rare as great opera singers. Most of us are no more capable of experiencing the grand passion than we are of singing like Caruso. The best we can do ic to pipe along a trifle off key and to make our little loves comedies and novelties instead of tragedies.

Can Love More Than Once

Thus is becomes possible for us to love many times and each time sincerely, and there are many reasons for this. One is that we love different people for different reasons. When we are young, for instance, we are ensnared by beauty and gaiety. A boy falls in love with a girl because she has a pretty face, or golden hair, or blue eyes. A girl falls in love with a boy because he is tall, dark, handsome and romantic-looking. Boys and girls are sure they are meant for each other because their steps match in the dance. Rarely, if ever, do young people fal lin love because of each other's intelligence or characters.

But let these first loves come to grief and the boy and girl part and become older. When they fall in love again it is with an entirely different set of characteristics. Then what attracts them is what is under the woman's golden locks, what's behind the boy's keen line. It is comradeship, the liking to do the same things, having the same tastes, the ability to keep each other entertained and amused that makes them fall in love with each other.

Another reason why we can fall in love more than once is because we change ourselves. As we grow and develop and learn from experience our tastes alter so that those who once appealed to us appeal to us no longer. But we know what we want, and when we find it we set our hearts upon it with a fervor that no boy or girl can feel. And that is what so often makes a man's and woman's last love the best love of all.

Readers' Saturday Column by Mary Moore

QUESTION: (Mrs. Chas. D.'s letter cont'd. from two weeks ago.) . . . I would like to see in your column a recipe for Quince Jelly and Jam some day.

ANSWER: I had some quinces on hand to make up into jelly but wanted to be sure of exact quantities to give you, so this answer was delayed.

Quince Jelly

Six medium sized quinces were thoroughly washed, then cut up into eighths and each eighth cut in half crosswise. (All of the skin and all of the seeds are included to give the jelly good colour and gel power.) Add 5 cups water to the cut up fruit, and boil covered for 1 hour. Drain through jelly bag overnight. Measure juice. (I had 3 measuring cups full.) Bring juice to boiling point and add 2½ cups sugar and boil hard for about 20 minutes when two drops will form at edge of spoon and fall separately from spoon. Pour into sterile jelly glasses and cover with hot paraffin, adding a second coat when cold.

Quince Jam

Peel and core and chop quinces and cook in barely enough water to cover until tender. Add ¾ cup sugar for each cup of quinces. Boil up for 10 minutes, remove from heat and let stand 24 hours. Cook uncovered in oven of 325 deg. Fahr. for 4 hours, then pour into sterile jam jars and seal.

Mrs. Chas. D. might be interested in writing to Abbott Laboratories, North Chicago, Ill. for their new booklet containing Calorie Saving Recipes for Foods Sweetened Without Sugar—for the use of her friend who has diabetes.

QUESTION: Some weeks ago you gave three recipes for different meat loaves—one of which I mad and found quite excellent. I have unfortunately mislaid these recipes and would be very much obliged if you could possibly mail these to me.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: I hope the following three meat loaves are those you refer to. Recently I have printed six because ground beef is so economical, so I am choosing three I think are good. If these are not the three I hope other readers come to my rescue and send me what they think you are after.

Maybe you could describe the meat loaf to me in more detail.

Superior Meat Loaf

Two lbs. chuck beef or hamburg, ¼ cup ground suet, 2 finely minced small onions, 2 cups soft breadcrumbs, 1 tablespoon salt, 2 eggs, 2 tablespoons horseradish, 1 teaspoon dry mustard, 4 tablespoons minced green pepper, ¼ cup catsup. (If desired, salt may be reduced to 2 teaspoons). Mix all ingredients and press into buttered loaf pan. Bake at 400 one hour.

Veal Loaf (serves 8)

Have butcher grind 2 lbs. shoulder veal with ½ lb sausage meat or fresh pork; add 2 tablespoons each catsup and minced parsley, 1 grated onion, 1 egg, ½ cup dry breadcrumbs, ¼ cup hot milk, 1½ teaspoons salt, ¼ teaspoon pepper. Mix all ingredients and pack in loag pan and bake at 350 deg. Fahr. for 1 hour or at 300 deg. Fahr. for nearly 2 hours.

Beef Or Veal Loaf

Two lbs. ground steak or veal or 1 lb. of each, ½ lb. lean fresh pork, ¾ cup cracker crumbs, 2 slightly beaten eggs, ¾ cup either milk or hot water or thin tomato juice, ½ teaspoon pepper, ¾ tablespoon salt. Press into buttered loaf pan and bake 1 hour at 350.

If desired, ground onion may be added to above loaf and it may be baked at 300 deg. Fahr. for about 1½ to 1¾ hours.

Women's Success As Politicians Highlights of 1950

By KAY REX.

OTTAWA, Dec. 16 (CP). — Women stepped into the news on several fronts in 1950. They regained a lot of ground in the political field.

Satisfaction was evident on both sides of the fence when Hamilton's Mrs. Ellen Fairclough broke the all-male grip on the House of Commons and became the first woman member since Gladys Strum.

Election of the slim, good-natured Progressive Conservative in the Hamilton West by-election May 15, sparked Canadian women to fresh belief in their political powers.

This showed in the municipal elections at the year's end which saw some 20 women taking over a variety of posts in the government of their cities.

First Woman Mayor

Mrs. Marjorie Hamilton, a 51-year-old widow, became the first woman mayor of Barrie, after serving three years in an aldermanic post.

At least eight were elected to their city councils. In Ottawa a nationally-known welfare worker Dr. Charlotte Whitton, headed the poll for the capital's four-man board of control.

A new honor, "Mother of the Year" was given Mrs. Norman Wilson, better known as Senator Cairine Wilson, one of the two women in the Canadian Senate.

Mrs. Wilson was chosen for the title by the National Council of Women at a ceremony in New York the American mothers committee awarded her a gold pin.

"First Lady"

In more ways than one Mrs. Wilson is "First Lady of the Land". She's the first Canadian to hold the "Mother of the Year" title; the first woman to enter the Senate; the first Canadian woman to be named a delegate to the United Nations. Finally she is the first woman to be named president of the United Nations Society in Canada.

The mid-century mark was noted by most women's organizations at their conventions in 1950.

It was a gala year for the National Council, representing 500,000 women across Canada.

Theme of the council's 57th annual meeting at London, Ont., was "fofty years of progress of women."

Golden Jubilee

About the same time the 50-year-old Imperial Order Daughters of the Empire held its "golden jubilee" annual session at Montreal.

Biggest undertaking of the year for the IODE was its purchase of Queen Mary's needlepoint carpet on behalf of the people of Canada. The rug was bought for $100,000 and a national campaign launched by the Order to give the people of Canada an opportunity to pay for this royal treasure.

On the household front the 13,000-member Canadian Association of Consumers kept watch on the sharply rising cost of living, drawing the government's attention to irregularities as it saw the need.

For the benefit of its members the CAC surveyed the cause and effect of increased prices of milk, bread, meat and coffee. One of the most important resolutions passed at its third annual meeting was one urging Canada-wide adoption of federal grading of meat.

Her Dream To Form Society Rehabilitate Hard of Hearing

By RICHARD KLEINER

NEW YORK —(NEA)— It was a little lame doctor in Chicago who convinced Marie Hays Heiner to face the facts.

"Look," he said, "I'm lame and you're hard of hearing. You can't kid yourself: you're not going to get any better any you may get worse. Nobody ever died of deafness. So you've got to learn to live with it."

That was seven years after she had waked up one morning, unable to hear. In those seven years, she'd tried to get by, consulted countless doctors, lied to herself and prayed for a cure. But it took that doctor's frank talk to make her buy a hearing aid and rejoin the world of sound.

And now she wants to help other deafened persons rehabilitate themselves through a dream of hers, Hearing Anonymous. She says there are millions of hard of hearing who, through vanity or pride or fear, refuse to admit their handicap. Like alcoholics, they need the help and counsel of people who have been through the same thing.

"You know," she says, "there is quite a bit of similarity between being deaf and being an alcoholic. Both handicaps make you shun society. Both make you withdraw into youdself. Incidentally, there are an awful lot of deafened people who become alcoholics."

You'd never know Mrs. Heiner was deaf. The Cleveland, O., woman hears everything you say and speaks in a normal conversational tone. She's a vivacious, sparkling woman. She's a successful author, having written the story of her rehabilitation in a book called "Hearing is Believing."

Hundred of people wrote to her after the book was published. They were mostly hard of hearing persons who sought advice.

"They wrote me personal things they would never tell an agency or a doctor" she says. "I believe it's because they knew I'd been through it all myself and could understand. You know, being deaf is a frightening thing—perhaps you don't die of it, but you die a little bit."

Because of those letters, she reasoned that she could help people get on the right track by talking to them. And there are many other hard of hearing persons who have conquered their handicap and could also counsel the less fortunate.

"There should be a group, patterned after Alcoholics Anonymous," she says, "that could talk to men and women who lose their hearing. They'd talk to them honestly and tell them, as that doctor told me, to learn to live with their handicap. I think a Hearing Anonymous could bring thousands of people back into the world of sound."

She visions it as a collection of sympathetic people who could explain the facts of deafness and what to do about it. They might have to give advice on love affairs, too. Mrs. Heiner says, because many young deafened are afraid to wear hearing aids for fear of what their boy friends or girl friends might say.

She herself, was only 19 when she lost her hearing and thinks her youth and vanity may have had something to do with her reluctance to wear an aid. As she sees it, Hearing Anonymous would straighten the young deafened out with plain talk and the "ears of experience."

It's still just an idea, this Hearing Anonymous. But from the talks she's had with some other deafened people, she thinks it's an idea that would do a great deal of good.

M. H. HEINER: Like alcoholics, the deafened shun society, too.

NashCompanyDealers To Increase Prices

DETROIT, Dec. 16 (CP)—Nash Motors Friday night announced price increases for its 1951 models ranging from 3.8 to five per cent.

The Nash price increase was the second in less than three months and came less than 24 hours after Chrysler boosted prices on all its 1951 models. Earlier, General Motors and Ford took similar action.

The Nash increases, effective immediately, range from $62 to $98. Last Sept. 21, Nash raised its prices $29 to $98.

Chrysler, announcing its boosts Thursday night, made no estimate of the percentage. Increases on the four passenger automobiles it makes will run from $80 to $195 and on its Dodge trucks from $80 to $295.

Ford's boost was estimated at 5.7 per cent while General Motors said its increase was "something less than five per cent."

Lincoln Farmers Ask Price Controls Again

ST. CATHARINES, Dec. 16 (CP)—The Lincoln County Federation of Agriculture Friday urged the federal government to instigate price controls and a wage freeze based on the price and wage structure of 1947.

In a resolution passed at the annual meeting, the organized farmers of Lincoln county called upon the government to enact controls on industry, labor farm and natural products to counteract current price raises which are "rising in a spiral that was getting us nowhere."

New Defence Program Boosts Expenditures

OTTAWA, Dec. 16 (CP).—Canada's federal treasury expenditures, mostly under the impetus of a huge new defence program, rose to $209,100,000, an increase of more than $10,000,000 over the same month last year Finance Minister Abbott announced Friday.

The minister released the monthly statement of the comptroller of the treasury showing total revenues for November at $251,900,000 compared with $194,600,000 for November, 1949.

Expenditures for the month of November totalling $209,100,000 compared with $198,500,000 in the same month a year ago and Mr. Abbott said that it was "more than fully accounted for by an increase of $13,300,000 in expenditures for national defence."

OrderCanadianEnvoys UseCommercialPlanes

PRAGUE, Czechoslovakia, Dec. 16 (Reuters).—The Czech government Friday night was reported to have informed United States and Canadian embassies here that from now on diplomats of both countries must travel to Prague by commercial aircraft.

Observers said the inference was that U. S. diplomats have been banned from using the U.S. Air Force plane hithterto kept at the embassy's disposal in the American zone of Germany.

And Canadian legation members here can no longer use an RCAF plane which they have always used up until now.

Czechoslovakia's action apparently stemmed from the U.S. ban on Czech flights over the American zone of Germany to Zurich and Rome.

GOOD LOOKER AND CHAMPION, TOO — Here's the kind of cow all dairymen are trying to raise. Officially approved as "Excellent which makes her one of Canada's top Holsteins as far as her form and figure is concerned, she has just proven that she is no mere glamour girl by smashing Canadian, American and World production records. Owned by J. E. Houck, Brampton, and sold by Norman McConkey of Peterborough, she is named Re-Echo May Burke, and has just produced in a year a total of 14,126 quarts of milk (officially 35,314 lbs. milk and 1260 lbs. fat) or an average of 39 quarts a day. In doing so she established the following records: Canadian Champion for yearly milk production regardless of age or times milked daily; Champion of the Americas for yearly milk production over all ages on three times-a-day milking; World Champion milk producer in the over ten-year-old class on three times-a-day milking. Re-Echo started her record at eleven years of age. In addition her butterfat record is the largest ever made by a Holstein in Ontario and the third largest ever made in her class in Canada.

Holstein Sets World Record Bred By Norman McConkey

Norman W. McConkey of Lifloc Farm has a world milking record in the making as intimated in an advance report by John Powell of the Holstein-Friesian office, Brantford.

Mr. Powell was writing about the new world record set up by Re-Echo May Burke of the J. E. Houck herd, Brampton. Something of that story is published elsewhere in the Examiner today.

Further in the article Mr. Powell says: "Re-Echo is one of those great cows who pass along their good qualities to their progeny. A daughter, "Lifloc Macaber Re-Echo," owned by N. W. McConkey Peterborough, has just completed a 305-day record as a senior four-year-old of 28,005 lbs. of milk containing 1,008 lbs. of fat.

As soon as she calves to qualify this record it will become a world record for milk for her age on three times a day milking."

The Houck cow has a great multiple record including the largest yearly milk record ever made by a cow of any breed anywhere in the world at past ten years of age.

Bred by McConkey

It transpired this morning from fumbling memory that the Holstein cow Re-Echo May Burke (rated Excellent) which was featured in Canadian Press news Thursday as having toppled Canadian, American and world production records, was formerly owned by N. W. McConkey of Lifloc Farm, Peterborough.

In Friday's Examiner it was reported in the farm news column that Re-Echo, now 12 years old, had just completed a production record of 35,314 lbs. of milk and 1,260 lbs. butterfat, for an average test of 3.57 per cent fat.

Dairy and agricultural color was imparted to the story by the presence of 200 persons present at her final milking of a 365-day test at the farm of her present owner J. E. Houck of Brampton.

Among the records established by Re-Echo May Burke were: Largest yearly milk record ever made by a cow of any breed anywhere in the world at past 10 years of age; largest yearly milk record ever made in the Americas on three-times-a-day milking regardless of age; largest yearly milk record ever made in Canada regardless of age or times milked daily.

In addition, her production of butterfat was the largest ever made by a Holstein in Ontario and the third largest ever made in her class in Canada. Re-Echo is the only Canadian cow to produce over 30,000 lbs. of milk at past 10 years old, and her butterfat record is the largest ever made by a Canadian Holstein at past 10 years old. She started her record at 11 years of age.

Supervision of her record was in the hands of the Record of Performance Branch of the Dominion Department of Agriculture. During the year Re-Echo had 18 official butterfat tests. Her highest day's milk was 122 lbs. and on her last day she gave 67.5 lbs.

President W. A. Hodge of the Holstein-Friesian Association of Canada stated that one of the features of this record that was a source of satisfaction to all livestock men was that it was made by a cow classified "Excellent," the highest attainable rating for conformation. Correlation of type and production, the goal of all good cowmen, was well exemplified here. Only a handful of the top Holsteins of the Dominion have been made "Excellent."

Peterborough Area Winner

That information is quoted from the Brantford announcement. It was also mentioned that Re-Echo as a five-year-old was first prize aged cow and reserve grand champion at the East-Central Ontario championship show. That meant the area of which Peterborough is the centre, with the district Black and White shows held here annually in October for the last four years.

This event was transferred to Peterborough from Roseneath. There was no suggestion in the Brantford news that Re-Echo had been owned by Mr. McConkey, but her name stirred some vague memory which was finally clarified today by turning up the McConkey advertisement in this year's prize list for the ninth championship Holstein show which was held at Morrow Park October 18 of this year.

And on page 40 was the modest advertisement: "Lifloc Farm Holsteins, featuring Lifloc Macaber Re-Echo, milking as a four-year-old, she has produced almost 23,000 lbs. milk in eight months with an average test of 3.66 per cent.

"Her dam, Re-Echo, May Burgke, heading for a world's record. In 10 months she has out approximately 30,000 lbs. milk. This cow was sold by us to J. E. Houck & Son at Brampton, who has previously made 853 and 913 lbs. fat with her."

That page in the prize list provided the local connection which was missing from the Brampton account. Re-Echo was bred by R. Z. Morrow of Hilton, Northumberland County.

George M. Clemons, secretary-manager of the Holstein-Friesian Association of Canada, was chairman at the dinner given for the 200 persons honoring Re-Echo and the Houcks following the final milking. Among the speakers were C. D. Graham, Ontario Deputy Minister of Agriculture, W. A. Hodge, and Professor George Raithby of OAC.

Of special interest to the Holstein fraternity of this area and to Mr. McConkey's other friends is the fact that he owned Re-Echo and now has her dam Lifloc Macaber Re-Echo at his farm on Canal Road.

And Macaber Re-Echo is on the way to a world record for milk for her age on three-times-a day milking.

4 Labor Organizations Demand Prices Curbed

OTTAWA, Dec. 16 (CP).—Canada's four major labor organizations Friday night renewed demands that the government take immediate action to halt rising prices.

Following President Truman's announcement that immediate price control measures will be imposed in the United States, the unions issued a joint statement.

The statement came from the Trades and Labor Congress, the Canadian Congress of Labor, the Canadian and Catholic Confederation of Labor, and the Dominion joint legislative committee of the railway transportation brotherhoods.

WINDSOR, Ont., Dec. 16 (CP) —Two brothers, who live in different parts of Essex county, appeared in court Friday, charged with beating their wives on the same day. Ellwood Wilson of Harrow was given suspended sentence and Carter Wilson of Amherstburg was given a 10-day jail term. Evidence was that the assaults took place Dec. 8 in the homes of the two men.

Stock Markets Mark Time Over Defence

By FORBES RHUDE
Canadian Press Business Editor.

Stock markets marked time during the week. Like the rest of us, they operated in an unreal world where we talk in familiar terms as though they will continue to have meaning, while we know that tomorrow they may have no meaning.

Governments and people do not know whether a third world war is at hand; whether they should progressively prepare for something in the future which may not happen; or whether the something is upon us.

In this twilight period, business and industry hasn't known whether they face a predominately-civilian and partly-defence program, or an arms program of wartime proportions. There has been some complaint that war orders are being unduly delayed, if there are to be war orders.

Against such a background, stock markets can do little other than mark time until decisions are made.

Decisions Made Soon

But today it appeared that decisions will soon be coming faster, with President Truman's address Friday night only a moderate start.

Markets finished last week in good form and started this week optimistically. On Tuesday and Wednesday they were quiet, with conflicting currents, and dipped sharply Thursday. Yesterday continued the decline with, however, a heavy demand in New York for aircraft, textile and railway issues.

Statistically

Toronto Stock Exchange indices Friday showed the following changes from the preceding Friday: Industrials down .81 at 276.77; golds down .63 at 71.84; base metals down 1.10 at 152.29; western oils down .07 at 72.58.

Montreal averages showed banks off 0.19 at 31.82; utilities up 1.4 at 84.3; industrials up 1.9 at 181.5; combined up 1.7 at 149.1; papers up 14.13 at 614.51; golds up .01 at 53.05.

In New York The Associated Press average of 60 stocks was down 20 cents at $83.80.

75,100 Letters, Cards Stamped

Cards and letters are flowing into the local Post Office at a rate of 20,000 more a day than last year at this time. On Thursday the cancellation machine ran through a total of 75,100 cards and letters as compared with last year's total of 50,400. Wednesday's load through the machine was 54,400 in comparison with 1949's 32,600 for the same day. On December 16 last year the mail increased to 113,000 and this figure is expected to be exceeded this year.

The post office annex at the armouries' gun room was opened Thursday night to handle the incoming parcel mail. Two regular employees and four extra helpers were on staff to handle 2,000 parcels. Two shifts will be working there on 12-hour duty.

Altogether so far only 16 extra employees have been taken on out of the expected 195. Letter carriers will receive help from 28 Christmas helpers on Saturday and others will be hired to assist in the sorting.

On Thursday $3,700 in stamps and metered mail was reported by Hr. Stuart. The only available wicket was opened to help with the rush and another is required but there is no room.

Plan New Stamp Issued Feb. 1

OTTAWA, Dec. 16 (CP) — A new stamp issue is planned by the post office department to give recognition to Canada's commercial fishery resources.

Postmaster General Rinfret said Friday that the stamp will be issued Feb. 1. It will be a $1 postage stamp.

The central subject of the stamp depicts a typical fisherman hauling in his net in an open boat. This subject is surrounded by a wide border with a fishnet background upon which are illustrated 16 varieties of fisheries products that are important in Canada's economy. The stamp will be green in color.

The post office department has arranged to service first-day covers for collectors from Ottawa Feb. 1 Because of the value of the stamp, the department will not charge for putting the new stamps on self-addressed envelopes sent here by collectors. The only charge will be for the postage.

Battleship's Guns Halt Assault On U.N. Beachhead

TOKYO, Dec. 18—(AP)—A fiery bombardment by warships and field artillery today held at bay another Chinese Communist assault on the United Nations' tiny Hungnam beachhead in Northeast Korea. The United States battleship Missouri arrived off shore. Its 16-inch guns and one-ton shells were a welcome addition to the curtain of fire shielding hard-pressed units of the U.S. 10th Corps.

Maj.-Gen. Edward M. Almond, 10th Corps Commander, obviously was pleased by the intense firepower hurled at the masses of Chinese infantry pressing on Hungnam port from three sides.

"Things are going just the way we planned them," he said. "Now every time the Chinese Communists dig in, we hit them with artillery concentrations, mix them up and knock them out. That's something we have been unable to do before."

Can't Get Through

At no point on the port's defence arc had the Chinese been able to punch through. Observers said the Reds apparently had not sent many troops into bomb and shell-shattered Hamhung, industrial city six miles north-west of Hungnam. Hamhung was abandoned to the Reds Saturday.

An estimated 25,000 Chinese pressed against the beachhead rim. Another estimated 75,000 were moving up in the snow-mantled hills west and north-west of Hungnam.

Arrival of the Missouri increased the range and effectiveness of naval fire. The mighty Mo's guns have a range of 20 miles—far enough to reach the hills sheltering Chinese rear positions.

Credit Bombardment

Gen. MacArthur's war summary credited combined naval and ground bombardment with breaking up a pre-dawn assault against perimeter positions west of Hungnam—evidently an attack intended in great force.

However, U.S. 3rd division troops rose from their snowy foxholes along the seashore flats to repel charges of wildly-shouting Chinese in company strength Sunday night.

Field dispatches said the Chinese screamed "all right, all right" as they attacked by the light of their own green-and-red flares. The shouts were in high-pitched sing-song English.

And the riflemen mowed them down.

There was a lull in the fighting after daybreak.

A 10th corps spokesman said about 900 Reds were killed Sun-

Warns Allies Not Ready For New Assault

BRUSSELS, Dec. 18 (AP). — Frank Pace, United States Army Secretary, warned the North Atlantic allies today that they are "far from ready" to withstand a Communist assault on Western Europe.

Opening a two-day meeting of Atlantic defence and foreign ministers gathered to complete plans for a unified European army, Pace told the defence chiefs the U.S. will aid its partners' defence efforts only if it is "fully convinced" each country is doing all it can to help itself.

BRUSSELS—(Reuters)—The Atlantic Pact defence ministers tonight approved appointment of a United States supreme commander for the Pact forces, it was learned.

"The American people already have stepped up their preparedness and plan for even greater sacrifices in the next year. . . . In the U.S. all our efforts are being geared to expedite the organization of our military forces and the production of munitions.

"I know you share with us an appreciation of the urgency of the situation and the need for speed in your own efforts."

Not Ready Yet

Pace said that after 14 months of meetings the Atlantic Alliance "can show some real progress in strengthening our military and economic position to withstand a Communist assault on Western Europe, but we are far from ready even now.

Power Failure Delays Workers

TORONTO, Dec. 18—(CP)—A breakdown at a hydro transformer station cut off power for street cars for more than an hour today, stranding thousands of passengers on their way to work.

The breakdown came in the busy 7-8 a.m. period, and halted some 750 street cars. Only the line to suburban Long Branch was unaffected.

Taxi companies were swamped under a flood of calls from stranded workers. Toronto Transportation Commission officials estimated some 75,000 persons were late for work.

Power was restored temporarily at 8 a.m., but was cut off again 13 minutes later by a second failure at a TTC sub-station. All lines were back in operation at 8.50 a.m.

The original break was caused by a defective cable leading to an Ontario Hydro Commission transformer station. The resulting overload knocked out lines to five TTC sub-stations.

Mayor Reaume Asks For Recount Of Votes

WINDSOR, Dec. 18 (CP). — Mayor Arthur J. Reaume said today he will apply to a county judge for a recount of votes cast in Windsor's recent mayoralty election, which he lost by 38 votes to Thomas R. Brophey.

Mayor Reaume said that rumors are circulating about procedure at certain polls and said the recount would remove "any doubt" that the votes were counted "by competent and responsible persons."

Under procedure laid down in the Ontario Municipal Act, he must satisfy the judge that an error was made by one of the deputy returning officers before a recount will be allowed. Mayor Reaume will be liable for any costs assessed by the judge if he loses the recount.

'Divine Cure' Failure Cholera Kills Hundreds

NEW DELHI, Dec. 18—(AP)—The bodies of hundreds of dead and dying Indians today were reported strewn in roads around a village as cholera raged among seekers of a "divine all cure" medicine distributed by a 12-year-old cowherder.

Five hundred persons, it was reported, already are dead in the village of Rantali, in Eastern India. Several hundred more were said to be in a serious condition.

Hundreds of enthusiasts during the last six weeks have crowded into the little village to get the herbal medicine, which a young cowherder, Nepal Baba, said was given him by divine dispensation.

An official committee after an investigation said the medicine is not effective.

Cholera broke out among the pilgrims Friday. Infected persons travelling home began spreading the disease to neighboring states.

South Korean President Speeds Up Red Executions

SEOUL, Korea, Dec. 18 (CP)—President Syngman Rhee said today that "in view of the military situation and lack of prison facilities" he is ordering a speedup of Red trials and executions.

Rhee said 391 persons have been convicted and sentenced to death by the Seoul district court since Oct. 1. Of these 242 had been executed.

There were reports that children were executed as political offenders but a United Nations investigation, observed by Col. Frank E. White, D.S.O., of Winnipeg, a UN military observer, is said by Rhee to have found no basis for reports of such executions. White, who with 50 British and American soldiers watched the investigation, said:

"We found no child's body among the dead There was a very short woman about 4½ feet in height. She might have been mistaken for a little child."

Government spokesmen said about one-fifth of those executed were women.

They said the 391 were convicted of murder, arson, rape or military crimes of destruction.

Meanwhile, three American churchmen in Korea have appealed to the UN commission to stop what they described as mass executions of men, women and children by the South Korean government.

The protest was made by the Rev. William E. Shaw of Delaware, O., a Methodist, the Rev. George M. Carroll, a Roman Catholic priest from New York; and the Rev. Patrick O'Connor of St. Columbus Mission, Omaha, Neb., correspondent for the National Catholic News Service.

Committee Offers Go To Peiping

Pearson Announces Latest Move To Obtain Cease-Fire

LAKE SUCCESS, Dec. 18 — (AP) — The United Nations cease-fire committee which includes L. B. Pearson of Canada announced today it had offered to go to Peiping for direct Korean peace talks with Chou En-lai, foreign minister of Communist China.

The disclosure was made in the General Assembly's 60-nation political committee by Mr. Pearson, Canada's External Affairs Minister.

He read a cable, which the three-man committee had sent to Peiping last Saturday. The cease-fire committee offered to meet Chou either in Peiping or at any other place designated by him.

The cable was sent, Mr. Pearson said, after the cease-fire committee had consulted unofficially with Red China's envoy here, Gen. Wu Hsiu-chuan, and discovered that he had no authority to negotiate peace.

No Reply Received

Mr. Pearson said no reply has yet been received from Peiping.

"We want to meet you at your earliest convenience to discuss cease-fire arrangements, either here or elsewhere," the telegram said.

Mr. Pearson asked the political committee to bear with the cease-fire group a little longer while it continues its efforts.

Immediately after the Pearson declaration, Sweden's Rickard Sandler proposed that the political committee postpone all further business until the cease-fire body is ready to deliver a final report.

Soviet foreign minister Jakob A. Malik, however, insisted that the committee go ahead with debate on his own complaint, which charges the United States with aggression against Formosa. At the same time he repeated his previous statement that there could be no end to the Korean hostilities until foreign troops (U.N. troops) were withdrawn.

The cease-fire group met Sunday to frame their report and hear Rau detail his conversations Saturday night with Red China's representative, Wu Hsiu-chuan.

Rau dined with Wu just three hours after the Chinese Communist had denounced the U.N.'s plan for a cease-fire in Korea as an American trap to get a breathing spell for a military build-up.

Complete Surrender

Wu also told a jammed press conference that his government might be willing to advise its so-called volunteers in Korea to come home, but indicated this would only be done after complete surrender by the U.N. to all Chinese Communist demands in Asia.

These include U.N. membership, withdrawal of American troops from Korea and the

BELLEVILLE, Dec. 18 (CP). — The Revenue Department has charged the Canada Talc Co., one of the British Commonwealth's biggest suppliers of talc to cosmetic manufacturers, two of its top officers and an auditor with income tax fraud involving $120,000 over a six year period.

Summoned to appear in court here Tuesday are E. S. James, president of the company, Roy Taylor, a principal stockholder, and E. J. S. Wallwork, a chartered accountant. All are of Belleville.

Although the charges will be ready Tuesday the prosecution is not expected to be started until January.

Canada Talc operates a large plant near Madoc, 23 miles north of here. Raw talc is processed from the mine and supplied to more than 25 cosmetic manufacturers.

Conspiracy Charges

The three men are all charged with conspiracy to defraud the government and with making false entries in company books and records with intent to defraud.

The Revenue Department charges the company from 1942 to 1948 made false entries to reduce the company's tax assessments. A general charge was laid against the company itself. It alleges several violations of the War Income Tax Act.

George Bagwell of Toronto has been appointed special crown prosecutor. Senator Salter Hayden has been retained to defend James and Taylor. Joseph Sedgwick of Toronto is to defend Wallwork.

Believed Dead Man Revives

EDMONTON, Dec. 18 (CP). — An unidentified Edmonton man came to life in an ambulance en route to a mortuary Friday and is recovering in hospital today.

He was pronounced dead after a doctor game him a stimulant and perceived no immediate results. There was no pulse or noticeable heart beat.

The stimulant apparently took effect after the man was placed in the ambulance. The ambulance attendants detected the flicker of life and reversed their course, taking the man back to hospital.

No other details were known. The ambulance firm, the hospital and doctor refused to discuss the matter. The man's name, age and ailment remained a mystery. His next-of-kin were "upset and indignant" about the publicity given the case.

Dr. Max Cantor, Alberta's chief coroner, said the case was not rare.

About the man in question, he said he believed his heart was beating so slightly that it would give no pulse and it would not be possible to detect the heart beat.

Freeze Sale of 1951 Models General Motors Announces

DETROIT, Dec. 18—(AP)—General Motors Corporation today froze the sale of 1951 model Chevrolet, Pontiac and Cadillac passenger cars all affected by the government's price rollback order of last Saturday. G.M. told dealers any Pontiacs, Chevrolets or Cadillacs received on or after today will remain the property of G.M. on a consignment basis and not to be sold until released by the Corporation.

The G.M. order said the action was taken "pending an examination of the discriminatory order of the Economic Stabilization Agency affecting passenger car prices, including the possible effect of this order on wages."

General Motors already has introduced 1951 model Chevrolets and Pontiacs, and originally announced they would carry price tags around five per cent higher than 1950 models. The 1951 Cadillacs have not been introduced but GM had said prices would be boosted.

Not Affected

The federal price order of Saturday, however, required that auto firms withdraw price increases made after Dec. 1.

Buicks and Oldsmobiles—other GM autos—are not affected by today's General Motors freeze. Their 1951 models have not been introduced.

GM previously had announced that it expected to roll back price increases announced since Dec. 1, as ordered by the E.S.A. Today's order, while it would not violate the order, would have the effect of stopping sales pending government decision on a protest from the auto industry that the rollback directive is unfair and discriminatory.

Have Resettling Plan For B.C. Doukhobors

NELSON, B.C., Dec. 18 (CP)—Resettlement of Canada's 3,000 unpredictable Sons of Freedom, possibly in a foreign land, was recommended Sunday by the consultative committee of Doukhobors.

The organization, with a definite aim—to end 50 years of strife in a manner fair to both Canada and the uncompromising sect—has some tentative ideas on relocation, but it's not ready to make them public.

The committee revealed it has asked 10 countries, thus are unnamed, whether they would welcome the Sons of Freedom. But the fire-raiding radical Doukhobors, although respecting the laws in recent months, still aren't considered good risks.

Nine of the countries haven't bothered answer. The 10th replied —but the answer was "no."

Relocation should be at an "early date," the committee stressed, be it in Canada or another country.

This move would be "in the interest of the whole country," the committee said, adding that resettlement would be specifically designed to promote the peace and security of the orthodox group as well as for the welfare of the Sons of Freedom.

Find Fatalities Hit New Low

By The Canadian Press

Five fatalities were reported in Eastern Canada during the weekend. Despite bad driving conditions in many parts of Ontario, Quebec and the Maritimes, only two persons were killed in traffic accidents.

Three of the five deaths were in Ontario.

Mrs. Pauline Nesker, 34, and her eight-year-old daughter, Brenda, died in their beds when intense heat and smoke foiled firemen's efforts to save them from an apartment fire in west-end Toronto.

William F. Monkhouse, 54, of Mount Vernon, Ont., died in hospital at Paris of burns suffered last Thursday when a hot-water heater exploded in a garage. Mr. Monkhouse had gone there to see about repairs to an automobile.

Francis John Burnett, 38, was fatally injured in Halifax when struck by an automobile during a storm.

Gerard Dufour, 25, fell beneath the wheels of an automobile at La Malbaie, Que., and died within a few minutes. Police said he leaped from the car, driven by another youth, as it went into a skid.

Stalin Re-elected To Regional Soviet

MOSCOW, Dec. 18 — (AP) — Prime Minister Stalin was re-elected to the Moscow Regional Soviet in Sunday's elections. He received 31,452 votes out of a total of 31,452.

This was the first result reported from local elections throughout the Soviet Union. Stalin was a candidate for seats in three regional Soviets and 30 city Soviets throughout the Union. The results in these places will be similar to that in Moscow.

Pravda, commenting, said it was a great demonstration of unity.

Scores of Police On Duty Hunting For Mad Sniper

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 18 (AP) —Scores of police, working around the clock, today hunted a mysterious "mad" sniper who has killed one person and wounded six others in the city's residential Oak Lane section during the last six weeks.

The manhunt, described as the greatest in Philadelphia's history, began late Saturday night after a 28-year-old housewife was slain by a gunman police believe responsible for six other shootings in the area.

"There's no doubt a maniac is on the loose," said one police officer. "Only a madman could have committed these acts."

Mrs. Claire Cohen, wife of a junior high school teacher and mother of two small children, was killed by a bulle fired through a closed window of a kitchen while she was washing dishes.

Police said the killer apparently fired from a terrace across the street from the house.

Sunday night the dimly-lighted OakLane area, on the northwestern edge of the city, was a deserted region.

Residents of the middle-class neighborhood stayed inside while 130 policemen and 50 auxiliaries patrolled the streets.

Hundreds Of Quebec Cases May Be Affected By 5-4 Ruling Of Justices

Verdict Final, No Appeal To Privy Council; Justice Rand Criticizes Attitude of Police Toward These Christians

OTTAWA, Dec. 18—(CP)—The Supreme Court of Canada, in a judgment that may have widespread repercussions in Quebec, today acquitted Aime Boucher of St. Joseph de Beauce, Quebec, of a charge of seditious libel arising out of the distribution of a Jehovah's Witness pamphlet. The five-to-four decision of the Court may mean that the cases against hundreds of Jehovah's Witnesses in Quebec will be dropped. Most of those charged, like Boucher, have appealed against charges of seditious libel.

The Witnesses were arrested for distributing a pamphlet entitled "Quebec' burning hate for God and Christ and freedom is the shame of all Canada." This occurred about four years ago.

Five of the justices ruled the pamphlet contained no seditious libel and held that Boucher, who had been sentenced to one month's imprisonment in a Quebec court in 1946, should be acquitted.

In favor of the acquittal were Mr. Justices Patrick Kerwin, I. C. Rand, R. L. Kellock, Wilfred Estey and C. H. Locke.

Favor New Trial

Against outright acquittal and in favor of a new trial were Chief Justice Thibaudeau Rinfret, Mr. Justices Robert Taschereau, John Cartwright, and Gerald Fauteux.

The court's verdict in the case is final. There can be no appeal to the Privy Council in London on criminal matters.

Boucher's appeal was handled by Glen How, a Toronto lawyer. He asked for an acquittal on the ground that the pamphlet distributed by Boucher did not constitute seditious libel; it merely alleged acts of violence and persecution against Jehovah's Witnesses which were "known to be true."

Lucien Gendron of Montreal represented the Quebec Attorney-General in the case. He argued that the pamphlet "might have created public disorder" since it was calculated to "promote conflict among the Jehovah's Wit-

Supreme Court Orders New Lizotti Trial

OTTAWA, Dec. 13—(CP)—The Supreme Court of Canada today ordered a new trial for Roger Lizotte, of St. Gerard De Magella, Que., convicted of murdering Gerard Beaumont, of St. Gerard De Magella, June 15, 1947.

Mr. Justice John Cartwright ordered the new trial on several grounds including the illegal admission of rebuttal evidence by the Crown and errors by the trial judge in his instructions to the jury.

Lizotte was tried at Quebec City before Mr. Justice Noel Belleau in 1948.

He was sentenced to be hanged Aug. 19, 1949. He appealed to the Quebec Appeal Court, and that appeal was dismissed. Then an appeal was taken to the Supreme Court of Canada.

CPR Announces Changes In Pension Plan

MONTREAL, Dec. 18 (CP). — Changes in the Canadian Pacific Railway's pension plan providing increased minimum pensions, giving employees the option of retiring between the ages of 60 and 65, and increasing the rate of employee contribution from three to four per cent, were announced today. The announcement was made by L. B. Unwin, the company's vice-president of finance and chairman of the pension committee.

Recommended by a pension committee of company and employee representatives and approved by the board of directors, the new rules will increase the minimum pension for employees already retired from $30 to $35 monthly, in addition to those under age 70 will be continued.

Minimum pensions will be increased to $40 monthly for retirements after Jan. 1, 1951, and they will be increased to $50 for retirements after July 1, 1951, and $60 monthly for retirements after Jan. 1, 1952. Proportionate increases in the minimum allowance have also been made for non-contributors.

Under the amended pension rules, any Canadian Pacific employee may voluntarily retire without medical examination between the ages of 60 and 65 if he has 35 years of service.

Boy 3 Saves 11 In Blaze

TORONTO, Dec. 18 —(CP)— Three-year-old Ernest Davidson Jr., was credited with saving 11 persons today when flames swept through a downtown Shuter Street rooming-house.

The boy scrambled up a smoke-filled stairway and awakened his caretaker father, Ernest Davidson, 25. Davidson aroused 10 overnight guests who leaped from second-storey windows as flames spread up the stairs. Two suffered minor injuries.

The blaze broke out when an oil furnace exploded, waking the boy as he slept in a basement bedroom with his sister Gail, 1.

Shouting "Daddy, Daddy," he ran to his father's ground-floor room and shook him awake. Davidson turned in a house alarm and kicked in a basement window to rescue Gail.

US Export Ban Causes Chaos In Hong Kong

HONG KONG, Dec. 18 (Reuters). — The United States' ban on exports to Hong Kong as part of a plan to prevent goods reaching Communist China has caused economic chaos in this Crown Colony during its first week's operation.

Official and private sources estimate the colony will suffer losses of millions of dollars if no relaxation is granted. They fear widespread unemployment and resultant labor troubles.

Industrial sources said the ban in its present blanket form would affect most of the 87,000 Chinese workers in Hong Kong's registered industries as well as tens of thousands in smaller firms.

U.S. Freezes Chinese Assets Orders Planes, Ships Barred From Ports Now

Will Reconsider Action If Communists Act Under UN Principles, State Department Announces To Reds

WASHINGTON, Dec. 18—(AP)—The United States slapped economic sanctions on Communist China Saturday night, freezing all its assets in this country and barring U.S. ships and planes from going there. The State Department said the freeze on transactions is to prevent Chinese funds in the United States from being used against the United Nations in Korea. The new ship-movement restriction, effective immediately, draws tighter the Commerce Department's ban on U.S. cargoes to Red China.

In addition to barring the vessels and aircraft from all ports and cities controlled by Communist China, the order prohibits them from loading or unloading cargo any place in the world if officials of the ship companies or airlines have reason to believe any of the goods are destined directly or indirectly for China.

U. S. ships previously had been prohibited from carrying any war-useful goods from port to port if they were to find their way to Red China—or any other Russian satellite. Previous orders also have placed rigid controls on any kind of shipments from the United States to China or British Hong Kong and Portuguese Macao, important ports at China's door.

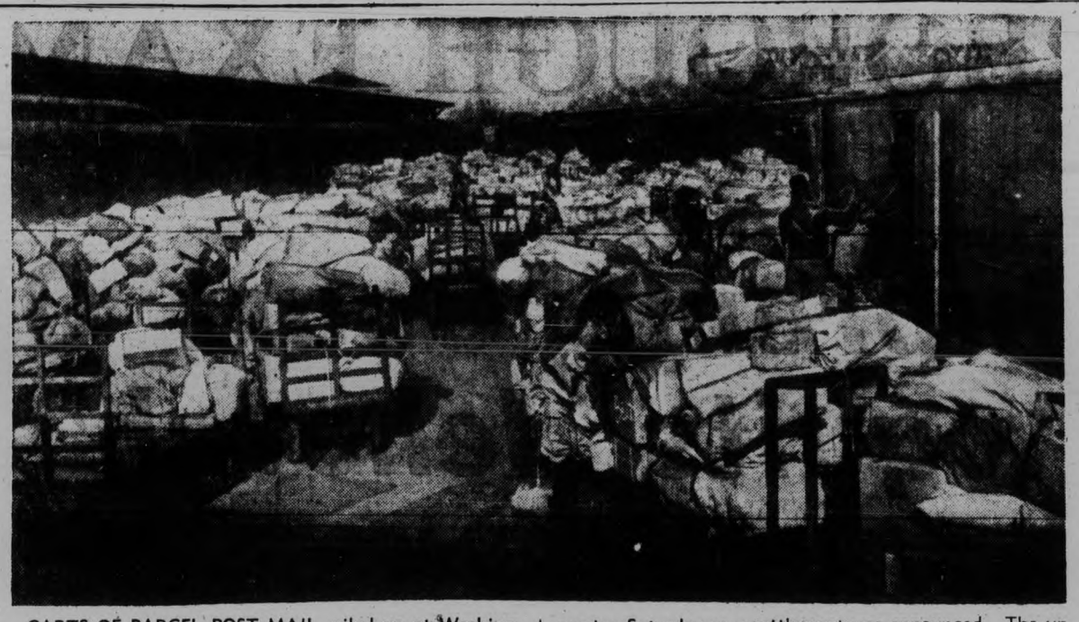
Affects Korea Too

The new action on Communist China assets in the United States applies also to North Koreans, but the State Department said this step was purely administrative; North Korean holdings here are negligible.

A treasury official estimated that Chinese assets in the United States might total some $200,000,000, primarily in short-term holdings, such as bank deposits, short-term bonds and notes. There was no immediate information on real estate and business holdings.

A substantial part of the funds is believed to be in the hands of Chnese Natonalst sympathzers, who are not affected by the freeze.

The State Department made it clear that the government's actions are a result of China's undeclared war in Korea. If the Chinese withdraw "and act in conformity with UN principles, this government will be prepared promptly to consider removing restrictions and restoring normal trade relations," the department announcement said.



CARTS OF PARCEL POST MAIL, piled up at Washington's Union Station as a result of a railroad yardmen's wildcat walkout, which crippled service in the terminal, started moving Saturday as a settlement was announced. The unauthorized strike kept passenger trains from reaching the station.

Find Skiing Good On Bethany Hills

Only a handful of ski enthusiasts enjoyed Sunday skiing at Bethany under what they described as "amazing ski conditions." While club officials completed work on the grounds, 30 Peterborough and Toronto skiers zipped down the snow-packed slalom trail. Flags were set up and exhibition competition held.

The snow was reported five inches deep, three inches of packed snow and two inches of fresh, fluffy snow. The golf courses were described as only fair by a number of skiers who practised Sunday afternoon on the small slopes.

Skiing at Kemp's hill on the Warsaw road was poor. Instructors planned a uniform method of instruction there on Saturday but there was just enough snow near the north fence for a small group.

Another group of skiers tried the court house hill and found the going sticky.

CHRISTMAS SWINDLE

A Simcoe St. woman informed the Examiner today that she had been victimized Saturday by a man selling Christmas trees in the market square. The man had a truckload of trees as well as a number displayed. The woman said she paid the man $1 for a tree and an extra 25 cents to deliver it. But that's the last she saw of the man, her money, and the tree. He told her that the truckload of trees was for Canada Packers' employees, but when she checked with the company they know nothing of it.

Police Force Gets Attention

LONDON, Ont., Dec. 18 (CP)—Restoration of "public confidence" in the police force by the retention of older men in the service was demanded today by Mayor-elect Allan J. Rush, as he outlined a broad program of civic activity at the inaugural of the 1951 City Council.

The new Mayor, who scored a smashing election victory only five months after his discharge from city police after 16 years of service said:

"One of the first problems to receive attention in the year before us is that of the Police Department. In my opinion, public confidence must be restored in our police force and this can best be done by taking steps which will asure that the older men are retained in the department."

Other problems included: Civil defence, traffic, annexation, post service pensions for civic employees; expansion of sewers and sewage disposal facilities: a more stable and abundant water supply through the construction of Fanshawe Dam; further grants from Federal and Provincial governments to lift the burden of hospitalization, unemplovment relief, and education off real estate.

"We must . . . speed up our efforts and translate our plans as rapidly and as effectively as possible.

"Our goal is the maintenance of peace through implementation of strong security measures and every peace-loving man and woman will urge us to get on with our task and will rejoice in the successful conclusion of our work."

As the meeting began, it was generally agreed that the toughest problem the ministers face is either coaxing or forcing the Germans to be rearmed. High diplomatic sources here agree that the Atlantic pact leaders are ready to find a tough solution for it.

Ready To Get Tough

Both the United States and Britain are reported prepared to lay down the law, if necessary, to the West German Republic, to overcome German objections to their rearmament.

The Germans, who are not represented at the 12-power conference, have objected to joining an international army unless invited to do so on an equal basis with the other Atlantic pact members.

Defence Minister Brooke Claxton, who is representing Canada at the meetings, said Sunday that the Dominion likely will line up with Britain and the U.S. and approve the plan to admit West German troops to the international army.

Canada and the other pact countries already have agreed in principle on German participation.

In an interview, the Canadian defence minister stressed that the Dominion's part in the over-all Atlantic defence program will tend to material rather than manpower contributions.

A report from Ottawa Saturday said there is a good possibility Canada will send an air fighter wing of three squadrons to Europe. The squadrons would be equipped with F-86 Sabre jets—the world's fastest with a top speed of 670 miles an hour.

nesses and other religious groups" in Quebec.

Mr. Gendron declared that the pamphlet by alleging persecution of Jehovah's Witnesses in Quebec without police intervention, came within a definition of seditious libel given by a 19th century authority on criminal law.

Libel Defined

Seditious libel was defined as an attempt to "bring into hatred or contempt or to excite disaffection against the person of His Majesty or successors or the government and constitution of the United Kingdom . . . otherwise than by lawful means. . ."

The appeal for Boucher's acquittal was launched after the Supreme Court had ordered a new trial for the accused.

In his reasons for ordering the acquittal, Mr. Justice Rand recalled some of the background of the case. He said that the witnesses in Quebec had been assaulted and beaten. Their Bibles and publications were torn up and destroyed. Their homes were invaded and their property taken. In hundreds they were charged with public offences and held to exorbitant bail.

Raps Police

Mr. Justice Rand added:

"The police are declared to have exhibited an attitude of animosity toward them and to have treated them as the criminals in provoking by their action of Christian profession and teaching, the violence to which they have been subjected; and public officials and members of the Roman Catholic clergy are said not only to have witnessed these outrages but to have been privy to some of the prosecutions.

"The document charged that the Roman Catholic Church in Quebec was in some objectionable relation to the administration of justice and that the force behind the prosecutions was that of the priests of that church."

Mr. Justice Rand said there were passages in the pamphlet that did offend. But freedom in thought and speech and disagreement in ideas and beliefs, on every conceivable subject, "are the essence of our life."

Aroused at Wrong

The writing in the pamphlet was "undoubtedly made under an aroused sense of wrong to the Witnesses; but it is beyond dispute that its end and object was the removal of what they considered iniquitous treatment."

"Here are conscientious professing followers of Christ who claim to have been denied the right to worship in their own homes and their own manner and to have been jailed for obeying the injunction to 'teach all nations. . .'

"Whether, in like circumstances both groups of the Christian church would show greater forebearance and earnestness in the appeal to Christian charity to have done with such abuses, may be doubtful."

Chief Justice Rinfret said Boucher should undergo a new trial because there had been "mis-direction and non-direction" at his original trial.

Dangerous Fallacy

"I would not like to part this appeal, however, without stating that to interpret freedom as licence is a dangerous fallacy," said the chief justice.

"Obviously pure criticism, or expression of opinion, however severe or extreme, is, I might almost say, to be invited. But, as was said elsewhere, 'there must be a point where restriction on individual freedom of expression is justified and required on the grounds of reason, or on the grounds of democratic process and the necessities of the present situation.

"It should not be understood from this court—the court of last resort in criminal matters in Canada—that persons subject to Canadian jurisdiction can insist on their alleged unrestricted right to say what they please and when they please, utterly irrespective of the evil results which are often inevitable."

Prices Level Off From Early Gains

TORONTO, Dec. 18 — (CP) — Prices levelled off from early gains as the session progressed on the Toronto Stock Exchange today.

In continuation of Saturday's advance prices climbed at the opening until gains ranged to more than a point and then settled there.

Steels and papers lead industrials ahead with a solid array of advances. Algoma steels was a feature, jumping $3 at first and then steadying at a $2 rise. Utilities, agricultures, liquors, refining oils, textiles and manufacturing companies showed a majority of gains in groupings.

Quemont paced based metals higher with an 87-cent gain. Consolidate Smelters, International Nickel, Labrador, Noranda and United Keno Hill were leading issues ahead.

Western oils advances ranged to 35 cents.

Golds tended to gain in mixed dealings. Hollinger, Kerr Addison advanced in the senior group and among junior producers Campbel, Conwest, East Malartic and Sullivan were ahead.

day by marine and navy air strikes and naval gunfire within a 60-mile radium of Hungnam.

Rake By Heavy Fire

The approaches to the beachhead were raked by two U.S. heavy cruisers, and destroyers stepped up the bombardment with five-inch guns. A navy summary said the fire had made a "no man's land" of the defence perimeter's outer fringes.

The beachhead is the Allies' last major position north of parallel 38, the old boundary between north and south Korea.

MacArthur's Monday summary told of intensified guerrilla activity, and said these raids evidently are co-ordinated. The hit-run North Koreans, mostly remnants of the once-crushed Korean Red army, probably are directed by radio, MacArthur added.

Allied planes smashed at Red bases and communications throughout North Korea. By midday Monday, U.S. fifth air force pilots reported more than 300 Red troops killed or wounded. Fighter planes strafed and fire-bombed 11 towns.

B-29 Superforts, grounded by snowstorms Saturday, hit two major Red communications centres Sunday, Wonsan on the east coast and Chinnampo on the west coast. B-26 light bombers blasted three trains in the Kunu area of northwest Korea Sunday.

But the day's most spectacular aerial action was the first combat test of the fastest American jet fighter. An F-86 Sabre flown by Lt.-Col. Bruce H. Hinton of Stockton, Calif., sent a Russian-built MIG-15 jet spinning to earth in flames near Sinuiju, in extreme northwest Korea.

The new jets arrived in Korea Friday.

Selling Beer By Keg After 8-Year Absence

TORONTO Dec. 18 (CP)—Beer by the keg returned to Ontario today after eight years' absence.

Keg beer went on sale at Brewers' Warehouses—but the colorful old oak keg was gone. In its place consumers found steel drums.

Only the 3½-gallon size was available. Sale of the 6¼-gallon keg, also scheduled to appear today, has been delayed due to a shortage of containers, officials said.

The smaller keg retailed at $6.25, with a $1.50 refund on the container. Price of the large keg will be $12.50, with a $3 refund.

So far, only the smaller breweries have taken advantage of the bulk-sales ruling announced recently.

Russia Says France-UK Violate Pact

Re-Arming Germany Breaks Agreement Signed At Potsdam

LONDON, Dec. 18—(CP)—Russia warned Saturday that rearming West Germany would violate Soviet pacts with Britain and France.

Less than 24 hours later, Britain shrugged off Russia's protest as "a patently tactical device timed to coincide" with today's meeting of the Atlantic pact foreign ministers. They are expected to approve a plan to bring up to 150,000 West German troops into the Western European defenses against Communist aggression.

A Foreign Office spokesman repeated that the Atlantic Defence Treaty is not aimed at any specific power, "but only against the policy of aggression which the governments of the United Kingdom and the USSR are equally pledged to resist."

Russia protested Sunday in notes to Britain and France that German rearmaments violates the Potsdam Agreement of 1945 and Russian treaties with both countries. Britain's response included a charge that Russia already had armed Eastern Germany.

In Paris, French diplomats, Sunday night prepared a note to Russia, charging Mescow with responsibility for West German rearmament.

Need Germans

Well informed French officials said use of German military units is necessary to help defend the West against the overwhelming military machine which exists east of the Iron Curtain.

Earlier, Foreign Minister Robert Schuman denied that the use of German military units constitutes a violation of the Franco-Russian Treaty.

Schuman said it is "just and logical" that Germany should make some sacrifices for the common defence.

The Soviet note to Britain said German rearmament would violate the Anglo-Russian treaty of Alliance of 1942 as well as the Potsdam Agreement. The note to France said rearming West Germany would be counter to the 1944 Franco-Soviet pact. This treaty calls for mutual assistance between the two nations against any future aggression.

Civil Defence Rehearsal Held

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 18—(AP)—The Pennsylvania wing of the Civil Air Patrol Sunday held a full-dress rehearsal of co-ordinated civil defence in the event of an atomic bombing.

For more than eight hours the city was given a first-hand view of how such an emergency could be handled.

The "attack" began with the bombing of northeast airport, the Philadelphia naval base and much of the city's industry.

A radioed signal from Maj.-Gen. Norman D. Cota, Philadelphia exectutive director of civil defence, brought waiting C.A.P. plans from Pennsylvania bases with emergency equipment, medical supplies, doctors, nurses and other relief personnel.

Approximately 800 relief personnel began setting up first-aid stations, communications centres, field kitchens and other mobile equipment as the planes discharged theeir passengers and cargo.

Mobile power plants were set up to serve the "disaster area" with electricity.

"Wounded" were evacuated in "mercy planes" to South Philadelphia, where mobile hospital units had been set up.

Appoint Hanley To State Post

ALBANY, N.Y., Dec. 18—(AP)—New York's outgoing lieutenant-governor, Joe R. Hanley, was appointed Saturday at Governor Thomas E. Dewey's direction to a newly created $16,000 a year state post.

The 74 year old lieutenant-governor, author of the explosive "Hanley letter," will become special counsel to the New York State division of veterans' affairs when his term expires at New Year's.

Appointment of Hanley provided a sequel to the "Hanley letter," which created a furore in the recent, bitter state-wide political campaign.

During the campaign, Dewey had promised Hanley a state post if the Republican lieutenant-governor were defeated Nov. 7 in his bid for U. S. Senate seat. Hanley lost to the incumbent, Herbert H. Lehman, Democratic and Liberal party nominee.

In his controversial letter Sept. 5, Hanley wrote to representative W. Kingsland Macy (Rep. N.Y.) that he had "an iron-clad, unbreakable arrangement" for a state job, apparently if he were defeated for the senate.

The Democrats charged that the letter was evidence that Dewey had bought off Hanley not to run for governor, but to run for the senate instead.

Emergency Landings

PITTSBURG, Dec. 18—(AP)—Three airliners landed on a runway lighted by smudge pots at Pittsburgh's airport Sunday night during a power failure which darkened the field two hours. The Allegheny county airport's control radio was silent. Circling planes were guided by an emergency radio set-up.

Revoke Charter Broke Bylaws

WASHINGTON, Dec. 18—(CP)—The International Association of Fire Fighters said Saturday it revoked the charter of Local 113 at Toronto for failure to abide by the constitution and bylaws of the parent organization.

The local, the Toronto Fire Fighters Association, announced Friday night that it had lost its charter for refusing to retain as an active member a man who now works for the Ontario Fire Marshal's department.

Capt. Don Dunlop, president of the Toronto organization, said then that the local had refused to recognize Capt. Edward Bevis as an active member after he retired from the Toronto fire department and became administrator of the Ontario Fire Departments Act.

"We take the position that in thta capacity he has joined the side of management and should not be a member of our union. In effect, we have lost our char ter because we refuse to keep management in our union," he said.

Tree Damage Heavy

ALBANY, N.Y., Dec. 18—(AP)—Enough trees were blown down in New York state's big storm Nov. 25 to supply every pulp mill in the state for two years and to build the equivalent of 4,000 five-room frame houses. That's the estimate made by the state conservation department.

U.S. Administration Handicap

A recent survey taken in the United States showed that most persons questioned considered Communist or Communist sympathizers in office the greatest present threat to the welfare of that country. While not inclined to place much faith in the worth of such surveys generally, we think this one has reached a fairly accurate appraisal of public opinion in the United States. And from that state of public opinion there has developed a lesser danger to the nation's welfare—a handicap imposed on the Administration when it seeks to secure able citizens for difficult posts.

* * *

The latest instance of this followed the appointment of Mrs. Anna Rosenberg as Assistant Secretary of Defence. Mrs. Rosenberg is a personnel expert, very highly rated in her profession. She is regarded as having special qualifications for dealing with the difficult problem of manpower mobilization. A determined effort to keep her out of the post, however, is being made by a Ralph De Sola, apparently a comparatively unknown person until he began his campaign.

* * *

Mr. De Sola contends that he had been introduced to Mrs. Rosenberg fifteen years ago, and that he had been told by somebody that she was a Communist. Subsequently, he had seen her at several meetings of a Communist-front organization. Mr. De Sola, at that time, was himself a member of the Communist party, by his own admission, and so was his wife. He claims, however, that he is no longer a member. His wife, incidentally, does not support his story about Mrs. Rosenberg.

* * *

Secretary of Defence George C. Marshall is a cautious man, of proven patriotism. He chose Mrs. Rosenberg. The Senate Armed Services Committee has several members as careful to guard against Communists in office as any in the nation. That committee unanimously recommended confirmation of the appointment. Yet despite these expressions of confidence, a section of the United States press has blared out Mr. De Sola's charges and supported his cause.

It is difficult to see what could be done about this sort of thing. It has happened before and it will undoubtedly happen again. Yet it greatly handicaps the Administration, for able men and women of spotless reputations might well hesitate before accepting an appointment which would leave them open to attacks of this nature.

Impostor At Church Parties

Toronto police have warned church officials that a gentleman with a diamond ring is gate-crashing Toronto church parties. This seems an odd sort of thing for anybody to do. It is not that church parties are dull and stodgy affairs; not at all; we have been to many church socials where people were having the time of their lives. It is not that the food would be unattractive even to a well-dressed gentleman with a diamond ring; we have had many savoury dishes of scalloped potatoes and cold ham at church dinners.

The strange thing about his intrusion into church teas is this. Church people are generally so hospitable that they welcome every stranger in their midst and no one really could be called (especially by the church people) an intruder, especially in a church. But the Toronto police use an even harsher term. They call him an impostor. How can anybody be an impostor at a church? Even an infidel is welcomed, a blashphemer received in hope of reforming him, the hungry are fed and the naked are turned not away. What was the matter with this fellow? He was personable, clean, well-dressed, and obviously affluent—we do not forget his diamond ring. Ah, he stole purses.

That makes him an impostor. He does not go to church dinners because he is a good churchman, because he is a blasphemer in need of redemption, because he is hungry, lonely, naked or craves scalloped potatoes. No. He snatches purses, and, he who steals purses in churches does not steal trash, so Toronto police believe. He steals the church's reputation.

So let all good people beware of a six-foot stranger with reddish-gray hair, good clothes and a diamond ring. He is an impostor.

What? No Homework?

An experiment conducted by an American educator, Dr. James V. McGill, seems to show that homework has no value, at least in certain studies. Dr. McGill matched 185 pairs of pupils in classes in American history and economics; half were given homework and half were not. The result, in his own words was this: "This experiment tends to show that in the field of social studies it makes no difference whether or not homework is assigned and done; it hardly seems profitable to use all this time for this purpose."

This is extremely interesting, and we hope that other experiments, on at least an equal scale, will be carried out in order to discover just where homework produces improvement, and where it does not. We have always assumed that pupils in their upper grades lacked time in school hours to do all the reading and practical work necessary to cover the lessons laid down in the curriculum; we have also assumed that work done alone had a certain value in teaching pupils to find out things and master problems by themselves. We are quite ready to be contradicted on these points, and would indeed be happy if the burden of homework which children—particularly of high school years—are expected to carry could be lightened. We have a shrewd suspicion, however, that it will be impossible to get rid of homework entirely if pupils are really going to learn their lessons.

The point at which scientific experiment ceases to carry any weight in such processes as learning has yet to be determined. After all, learning is a personal thing. Some children learn more rapidly than others; some never really learn at all—they memorize, and forget what they have memorized as soon as it is no longer needed. History bristles with cases of people who have become unusually learned, without formal schooling and without anything which could be described as a pedagogical method being applied to them. They learned simply because they wanted to. In our day, the belief in learning as a thing which is good in itself, and the desire for learning for its own sake, are in eclipse. Learning without homework may be possible; homework for its own sake is detestable; but the final decision must always be made after examining the results of any system of education. What sort of people does it turn out? That is the only thing that matters.

What People Read, And Why

At this time of year the news magazine Time attempts a survey and an evaluation of the year's writing; it is always well done and full of interest, even though we find some of the judgements inacceptable. But this year there are one or two matters of fact, not of opinion, which we find of special interest. The first is a statement reprinted from a trade magazine called Retail Bookseller, which says that "The truth is that the public really doesn't want books worth buying so much as books that everybody is talking about". This statement, from people who should know, combines with some earlier statistics which were made available two months ago, to give us an unflattering picture of ourselves; those statistics showed that the people of Canada and the U.S.A. read far less than the people of Britain and the countries of northern Europe.

Why don't we read? Probably because we are so rich. For we are rich, by European standards. We can afford not only many of the luxuries which make life soft—good plumbing, easy heating, prepared foods, cars, etc.—but we can afford costly entertainments, as well. Time suggests that "the weary, lazy public" wants "good books at a low price."

This is a point which we have often raised in these columns. European books are much cheaper than ours, because they are published in paper covers. Perhaps the North American public would read more if novels—which are rarely read more than once—did not cost from $2.50 to $4.00 apiece. One novel which sold very well this year was The Cardinal by Henry Morton Robinson; it appeared in two forms, one bound in cloth and the other—much cheaper—in paper; the paper-bound edition outsold the other three to one.

In Britain the success of the Penguin books has shown that there is a big public for good books at low prices. Perhaps the North American public, wealthy and luxurious though it is in its habits of living, could be wooed to read more if reading did not cost so much.

NOTE AND COMMENT

Since Britain has dispensed with Marshall Aid a surprising number of cartoons have appeared in which John Bull is represented as throwing away a crutch. We often wonder how cartoonists achieve their wonderful unanimity of thinking. It is as mysterious as the way in which jokes which appeared in Punch last year keep popping up in The New Yorker this year, and vice versa. Maybe the whole matter should be put under a special committee of U.N.

Musical Notes

By PETER PIPER

WITH the approach of Christmas we are haunted by the Ghost of Christmas Past: a host of memories flit by, snapshots from the album of memory. Waking up in the early morning, while it was still dark, to feel the bulging Christmas stocking; the happy gathering of many friends and relatives; the turkey and the Christmas pudding. Amongst all these memories music plays an all-important part; for indeed Christmas without music is almost unthinkable. Was not the first Christmas ushered in to music by the angelic choir? The birth of Christ has inspired music-makers of all types, from Bach to the artless peasant. I cannot help thinking at this time of the Christmases spent years ago in my boyhood in England. The white Christmas (so besmirched by Tin Pan Alley) was alas a rarity. For some days before Christmas the Waits used to come round singing carols. Tea was over, the blinds drawn, and there would be a sound of thin children's voices in the cold air. "Christians, awake" was the melody. After about two and a half lines the singing broke up in disorder. They had started on too high a note and they had to start all over again. The second attempt proving more successful there was a knock at the door, and two or three rather timid little boys claimed a few coppers. This may have happened two or three times in one evening.

◇ ◇ ◇

THEN followed a visit from one of the local church choirs singing tolerable four part harmony and collecting for a local charity. Likewise the local Salvation Army band, struggling manfully with the difficulty of playing four part harmony with only three players—the tenor part being absent. Then we would gather round the piano and sing carols ourselves until it was time to go to bed. On Christmas Day itself everybody joined heartily in the singing of the Christmas hymns and carols as we do here for the most part. Those in search of perfection could tune in to the annual broadcast from King's College Chapel, Cambridge. These happy memories of the past are tinged with a certain melancholy inasmuch as they recall "the touch of a vanished hand", and yet how poor we would be without them. As I leave you to reminisce for yourselves, in the words of an old carol "I wish you the comfort and tidings of joy" in this Christmastide.

◇ ◇ ◇

DO we progress musically? If so, what is progress? I think that we are limited by our environment, and are too apt to think of musical history as a gradual movement towards the conquest of sound. Everything in the history of this country points to remarkable progress from very crude beginnings and the promise of further progress beyond our wildest dreams, tempered only by the fear of the atom bomb. Beethoven is considered superior to Mozart as a jet plane is superior to an ordinary plane. This belief was widely held in the nineteenth century in Europe, especially in England. One has only to read Parry to find that this idea of progress colours his whole thought, and yet Parry was one of the most thoughtful of nineteenth century writers on music. There are other views on history which can be equaly well applied to music. The history of the Jews from the remotest ages down to the present day has been one of continually recurring catastrophes, waves of persecution, conquest, mass deportation, pogroms and so on. Might not the history of music be interpreted in this light? The Greeks in their history look back to a Golden Age which makes modern Greece look very shabby and decadent. Could not the age of Byrd and Palestrina be so described?

◇ ◇ ◇

I REMEMBER reading a fascinating little history of music that reversed the normal order of time, starting at the present day and working back to the remotest age. It certainly gave a new idea of musical progress—in reverse. The turgidity of Wagner was succeeded by the terseness of Beethoven, who in turn gave way to the clarity and discipline of Mozart and Haydn, and so on. Some modern writers have propounded the theory that time is like an enormous circle: everything has taken place before, like a continuous performance at the movies, when one says "This is where I came in": but this interesting debating point is not likely to worry serious historians unduly.

◇ ◇ ◇

I WAS much interested by a remark of a visiting artist recently concerning her "musical parentage", which she traced three or four generations back. It included some of the finest performers on her instrument. I have a friend who has an even more distinguished musical genealogy. He can trace it back to Mozart, and it includes such figures as Sullivan, Goss, Attwood, Stainer, Moscheles Zingarelli, Weber, Albrechtsberger (Beethoven's teacher of counterpoint), Salieri, and others, a sort of apostolic succession. It is interesting to speculate how much of the original tradition of a master like Mozart, for example, is preserved by pupils of the third and fourth generation. The original influence is, I fear, discernable only at first hand: I knew a pupil of Liszt. He was a Silesian Count, a retired diplomatist of the old school who had also been a concert pianist. When I knew him he was in his late seventies. He had a particular "method" of playing the piano which he tried to teach me, but I am afraid that I was not a very apt pupil. I cannot say whether this method derived from Liszt. I should have asked him, I suppose, but it never occurred to me at the time.

◇ ◇ ◇

IN contrast to the imposing musical "family tree" of some musicians Elgar was almost entirely self-taught, and some, like Mozart, received their musical education from their fathers—though I should point out that Mozart's father was a sound musician himself and had published a book on violin technique which was in advance of anything else of its nature at the time. It has been republished recently in an English translation. Haydn obtained his musical education in an unusual way. Coming of poor parents he paid for his lessons with the famous teacher Porpora by becoming his valet. Perhaps my friends in the teaching profession might like to see this idea revived!

"YOO HOO-OO---ANYBODY HOME?"

Awkum, Bawkum, Curious Kawum

By ROBERT M. HAMILTON
(In The Ottawa Citizen)

THE man in the seat next to mine in the parlor car was about 50 years old, he seemed to be asleep, and I could faintly detect the evidence of what might have been an extra last one for the road. When the train gave its first reluctant heave he opened his eyes and watched the station, then the Rideau Canal, then the bridges, go past.

"It's a long, dull trip to Toronto on this day train," he complained, partly to the window, partly to me. When I agreed with him he turned and we started talking. "Every time I travel on a train I remember that children's rhyme, 'Engine, engine number nine.' Do you know the one?" he asked. Stumped for the moment, I tried to recall the lines, but he said them first, slurring the words slightly:

Engine, engine, number nine,
Running on Chicago line;
At the lake at half-past eight,
Back once more at half-past four,
O-u-t spells out goes he.

"That's not the way we learned it as kids," I said. "In Ottawa we said, 'Running east and running west, running to the cuckoo's nest'."

"Different places had different words. That one I learned in Perth, back around 1909." Then he told me his father had been a railroad telegraph operator, and he himself had lived as a child all over Eastern Ontario. Perth, Carleton Place, Ottawa, and as far south as Brantford. "Remember all those crazy children's rhymes?" he asked me. "Whatever happened to them all?"

"You mean those rhymes that went like 'Starlight, star bright, first star I've seen tonight'; and, 'Twenty-fourth of May, the Queen's birthday'?" I asked him, at the same time thinking, anything to relieve the monotony of this long dull trip.

"Sure, something like those. The boys and girls still say those, though. I mean the crazy ones that never got into the books. Like the ones we used to say in Carleton Place when we counted the kids out:

Inty, minty, figetty feg;
El, del, domen, egg,
Urky, purky, stone and rock;
Ann, dan, tush."

◇ ◇ ◇

I TOLD him I vaguely remembered verses of that kind. I racked my brains but all I could recall were faint echoes of what seemed to be gibberish. Then he told me another one he had known in Carleton Place. It went something like this:

Intery mintery cutery corn
Apple seed and apple thorn,
Wire, briar, limber lock,
Three geese, sitting in a flock,
One flew east, and one flew west,
And one flew over the cuckoo's nest.

Then the fog in my mind broke and I remembered one and recited:

Awkum bamkum, curious kawkum,
Ellikum bellikum bony bus,
If you'd a been where I'd a been,
You'd a been out.

He smiled broadly and said that was the kind he meant. At the same time I was glancing at the occupants of the nearest chairs, and was relieved to see them reading their newspapers. Then I remembered another one we used to say in Ottawa to kids coming to school with a new haircut:

Johnny on the wood-pile,
Johnny on the fence;
Johnny got your hair cut,
Fifteen cents.

That one led us to a discussion of the price of a haircut. But only for a moment. He remembered a rhyme he used to shout at the negroes in Brantford:

Nigger, nigger, never die,
Black face and shiny eye.
Teapot nose and turned-up toes,
That's the way the nigger goes.

After that the silly rhymes came up quick and shining from under the dust of scores of years of forgetfulness. As the train crawled along past Smiths Falls my companion recited, "Cowardly, cowardly custard, Eat a barrel of mustard"; and, "Bert, Bert lost his shirt", etc. Then we remembered some of the naughty ones we used to shout up and down the muddy lanes out of earshot of our elders. "Green-eyed greedy-gut"; and "Cry baby cripsy"; and "Tattle-tale, tattle-tale, Hanging on the bull's tail." He told one his mother used to say to tease him when he asked some question she didn't want to answer, "I'll tell you a story about Jack and Marory, And now my story's begun. I'll tell you another about Jack and his brother. And now my story is done." I remembered that one, but my mother used to say Jack McGory. My companion then recited one that was popular during the First World War:

Kaiser Bill went up the hill,
To see the boys in France.
Kaiser Bill came down the hill
With bullets in his pants.

"I don't think the kids say rhymes like those now," he mused. 'The radio, and the comic books, and the movies have killed them, I guess." Just then the dining-car steward came through the car calling, and I asked my companion to come along and eat. He said he had eaten so much at the convention in the Chateau he didn't care if he never saw food again.

◇ ◇ ◇

WHEN I got back from the diner, he was fast asleep, and he stayed that way for another hour. When he woke up, somewhere the other side of Belleville, he started right off talking on the same subject. Some of the best rhymes, he said, were those that the Protestants and Catholics used to shout at one another. He was on different sides in different places. His father had been a Catholic, and his mother was an Anglican. His playmates in Carleton Place were more numerous than the Catholics, and also bigger. So he strung along with them and shouted at the Irish kids:

Teeter, totter, holy water,
Sprinkle the Catholics every one;
Take them to battle and shoot them like cattle,
And let them lie under the Protestant drum.

Then when he moved to Perth he got in with a bunch of tough Irish boys. So he used to shout with them at the Orange kids:

Here's a needle, here's a thread,
To sew a pig's tail to an Orangeman's head.

Another vigorous little verse they taunted the Orangeman with was:

Up the long ladder,
Down the short rope,
To hell with King Billy!
Three cheers for the Pope!

Soon after this my companion fell asleep again. I heard no more rhymes, because he slept to the end of the trip. In what seemed no time at all after that the train was at the outskirts of Toronto. The trip had not been nearly as dull as I had expected. I have often wondered since then, what ever happened to all those crazy children's rhymes of yesteryear? Do the kids still chant any of them?

Bible Message

(From the Authorized Version)

And, behold, there was a man in Jerusalem, whose name was Simeon; and the same man was just and devout, waiting for the consolation of Israel: and the Holy Ghost was upon him. And it was revealed unto him by the Holy Ghost, that he should not see death, before he had seen the Lord's Christ.

And he came by the Spirit into the temple: and when the parents brought in the child Jesus, to do for him after the custom of the law, then took he him up in his arms, and blessed God, and said, Lord, now lettest thou thy servant depart in peace, according to thy word: for mine eyes have seen thy salvation, which thou hast prepared before the face of all people; a light to lighten the Gentiles, and the glory of thy people Israel. (Luke 2: 25-32.)

If there be therefore any consolation in Christ, if any comfort of love, if any fellowship of the Spirit, if any bowels and mercies, fulfil ye my joy, that ye be like-minded, having the same love, being of one accord, of one mind....

Wherefore, my beloved, as ye have always obeyed, not as in my presence only, but now much more in my absence, work out your own salvation with fear and trembling. For it is God which worketh in you both to will and to do of his good pleasure. (Phil. 2: 1, 2, 12, 13.)

Pope To Place Gilded Bricks At Holy Door

VATICAN CITY, Dec. 18 — (Reuters)—Pope Pius, with a silver trowel and mortar, will place three gilded bricks on the threshold of the holy door of St. Peter's tomb on Christmas Eve, to close the greatest Holy Year in the history of the Roman Catholic Church.

Since the door was opened a year ago the record number of between 3,000,000 and 4,000,000 pilgrims have poured into Rome from all over the world.

They came to gain the plenary indulgence—full remittance of punishment for past sins—offered to all who visited the four main basilicas of the city during the jubilee year.

As Christmas approaches the city is filling with thousands of last-minute pilgrims come to watch the final ceremony of the walling up of the holy door.

They will crowd the basilica and portico of St. Peter's when the Pope, bearing a lighed candle, passes the last time through the holy door.

Three cardinals legate will at the same time close the holy doors of each of the other three main basilicas in Rome—Saint Mary Major, St. John Lateran and St. Paul's without the walls.

Final Ceremony

After praying at the tomb of St. Peter, the Pope with his scarlet-clad bodyguard and high church dignitaries will move to the end of the church where he will remove his jewelled mitre and lead cardinals, bishops and other clergy through the holy door.

The Pope will bless with holy water a pile of bricks and mortar lying by the threshold. Then he will tie a linen apron around his waist, over his damask robes, and kneel to begin the walling up of the holy door.

He will scoop mortar three times out of a silver trough and spread it along the threshold. In the mortar he will imbed medals of the Holy Year and set three gilded bricks on top.

As he places the bricks his voice will be heard through a microphone by Catholics all over the world, intoning the final words of the Holy Year:

"In the faith and by the authority of Jesus Christ, only Son of the living God, who did say to the chief of the Apostles, 'Thou art Peter, and upon this rock I will build my church,' we lay this first stone towards the closing of the holy gate, which is not to be opened again till next jubilee."

Corpses Mummify

STELLENBOSCH, South Africa (CP). — The Stellenbosch Divisional Council rejected land offered by the government for a graveyard at Faure, near Capetown, because the preponderance of clay and granite there will tend to mummify corpses.

Busy Norway

OSLO (CP). — Norway has a labor shortage. At the end of September, Norwegian State Employment agencies reported 4,300 more unfilled jobs than at the same time in 1949.

Warkworth WMS Instal Officers

WARKWORTH, Dec. 18 (ENS) —The Women's Missionary Society of St. Paul's United Church met on Thursday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Clarence Massey.

Mrs. George Bowen and Mrs. Harry Kelly were conveners for the candle-lighting service and were assisted with readings by Mrs. Doug. Rowe and Mrs. Grant Allen in acknowledgment of Christ's gifts of Joy, Love, Light, Peace and Hope, each candle lighting being followed by the singing of a carol on that special theme. This was followed with prayer by Mrs. Bowen.

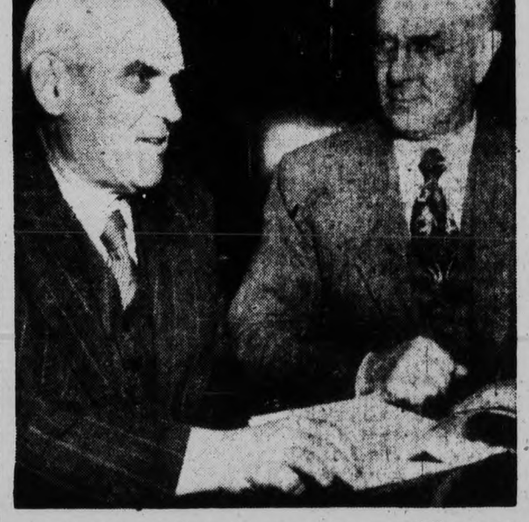
Mrs. H. G. Lester, president of the W.M.S. conducted the business meeting. The treasurer gave an encouraging report, showing that the allocation for the year had been achieved. Missionary Monthlies were distributed by Mrs. Greenly. A letter of greetings from the Presbyterial Stewardship Secretary was read expressing their thanks for the amount received. Mrs. D. H. Evans reported five sick calls made.

The president thanked the officers for their co-operation during the past year and the Rev. H. G. Lester conducted the installation of the following officers for the year 1951:

President, Mrs. H. G. Lester; 1st vice president, Mrs. W. G. Allen; 2nd vice president, Mrs. D. S. Thompson; recording and press secretary, Mrs. J. E. Bound; corresponding secretary, Mrs. S. Brenton; secretary of Christian stewardship and finance, Mrs. J. H. Buttars; temperance secretary, Mrs. W. B. Baker; com. friendship secretary, Mrs. Harry Kelly; literature secretary, Mrs. J. A. Greenly; supply secretary, Mrs. W. Barringer; pianist, Mrs. C. W. Massey; assistant pianist, Mrs. G. Hancock.

After discussion it was decided to hold afternoon meetings on the first Thursday of the month, to have the programs for the year planned by two ladies each month as arranged.

The hostess and lunch committee served tea and cake and Mrs. W. H. Harper thanked Mrs. Massey for her hospitality.



CANADIAN TRADE MINISTER C. D. HOWE and US Commerce Secretary Sawyer are shown here as they conferred in Washington on the supply problems which have arisen through the American and Canadian defence efforts. Howe's biggest problem was to persuade Sawyer to arrange an increase in shipments of American steel to Canada.

Jockey Culmone Injured In Spill

MIAMI, Fla., Rec. 18 (CP).—Jockey Joe Culmone, the country's leading rider who was injured in a spill at Tropical Park Saturday, will return to the saddle today.

Culmone was discharged from hospital Sunday after spending the night there under observation.

Dr. John E. Dees, who examined the 19-year-old Sicilian-born jockey, said Culmone had a contusion on the head, a bad bruise on his left hip and suffered from mild shock.

Culmone and apprentice jockey Larry Wilson tumbled from their mounts at the three furlongs pole when Culmone's mount, New Wonder, fell. Wilson's horse, The Gink, went down while attempting to sidestep them. Wilson had only a superficial muscular bruise on his left hip, Dr. Hees reported.

A patrol judge said it appeared that The Gink stepped on the heels of Pucketeer, ridden by Ken Church of Windsor, and New Wonder fell over his as the two-year-olds raced to the turn.

Kinsmen Edge Oshawa

LINDSAY, Dec. 18 (CP). — Scoring all their goals in the first period, Lindsay Kinsmen came from behind to defeat Oshawa Bees 5-3 in an OHA junior "B" game here Saturday night. Geo. Bradin put Oshawa in front in the first, and Bob Haxton and Ted Degray made it 3-0 in the second. Herb Baker lead the third-period onslaught with two goals and an assist. Bruce Hall, Don Sonclair and Doug Powell scored the singletons.

BIRD HAVENS

More than 70 bird sanctuaries have been established by the dominion government under the Migratory Birds Convention Act.

THE MONTREAL YMHA Blues, last season's Dominion basketball champs, will face tough opposition this weekend against the Lincoln College cage artists in the Metropolis. One of the giants with the Lincoln six, ace centre Conrad Gaskins, 6' 3" cage wizard, is shown above.

SPORTS SHOW WINDOW

By CEC. PERDUE, Sports Editor

Two of the best OHA junior "B" teams in this grouping tee off on each other tonight at 8.30 in Civic Arena. We mean Belleville Rockets and the local Oddfellows. One can't say yet that they are the two best in the bunch—as it's a hot race to date—but they're certainly among them, fighting it out for the top of the heap with almost every game these nights seeing a different squad on the canary's perch. Speedy action and a close count are likely to be seen this e'en, and the game should draw a good-sized gallery as the approach of Christmas makes winter seem more realistic.

* * * * * *

Our recent criticism of the parks department's decision to have but five outdoor hockey and skating rinks in the city this winter has met with quite a bit of approval, from what we hear. A lot of folks feel that it is definitely too small a number to take care of the youngsters in this centre of 37,000. We had more rinks when Peterborough was smaller. It is quite unlikely we'll have another extra mild first half of the winter as we did a year ago, when the department rather prematurely closed up 10 rinks after a cost of more than $2,000. Certainly not a large sum in civic spending. Winter then came in earnest.

* * * * * *

Need More, Not Less

It may be that the recent cutting-down decision (hastily made, it strikes us) cannot be reversed or amended now—but we hope so. Outdoor skating and hockey seldom start till right after Christmas, and many kids get presents at this time of skates, sticks, etc. Civic Arena can't begin to accommodate all the girls and boys wanting to skate and play hockey here. This city is growing from month to month, and our recreational facilities should be keeping pace with that growth, instead of going in the other direction. Let's not make any more mistakes like the Memorial Centre one, for the love of Michael!

* * * * * *

While the local Eagles and Petes are presently leading the OHA senior "B" pack, their lead isn't too comfortable. Kingston Nylons are coming up fast and, within the week, could pass either or both. Belleville Redmen could do that in less than two weeks. Queen's have bolstered and should be tougher from here in, though they've been tough enough at times so far. Gananoque inter-locking games will count, too, in the standing. The Petes are away this eve and have a home game Friday, while Eagles are at home on Wednesday. No Christmas to New Year week holiday for the senior puckists—they'll be at it hard every few nights.

* * * * * *

Cool, Clear Water, Eh?

Belleville columnist continues to lambaste ice conditions in the Jock Harty Arena in Kingston. Though he says a new Kingston arena will be available about the end of January and, meantime, figures there is no point in protesting games played there under poor hockey circumstances. The Harty Arena has a real large surface and was a good rink in its day—but it's pretty old now. Peterborough teams from time to time, especially in playoffs, have hollered blue murder at the mushy surface there (which worked a hardship on both home and visiting clubs) but nothing ever came of the kicks.

* * * * * *

Scribe Carver says: "We do not know the whys and wherefores of the ice situation there but it couldn't be much worse for visiting senior teams. The surface Wednesday was a watery, sticky mess a few minutes before game time and Coach Walter Bent could scarcely be blamed had he refused to allow his team to play on such a sheet of ice. In a last-minute effort to clean up the mess, the arena lads were sent out there with brooms and whatnot to sweep the surface clean of its excess aqua pura. Apparently, the surface had been used to the last possible minute and then flooded in preparation for the senior OHA game." He speaks in this vein for half a column.

Curling News

By HERB MARTIN

As we understand it, there will be no curling on Wednesday, Thursday, Friday and Saturday evenings of this week. The ice will be occupied by the skating club—but there will be a men's bonspiel on Saturday afternoon. And speaking about bonspiels—don't forget The Examiner Trophy bonspiel on Boxing Day, Tuesday, Dec. 26. The committee would like 28 rinks but they must be of schedule calibre.

We have been asked to make this announcement: Will all those who have sold tickets on the turkey draw, please see to it that the stubs are deposited in the box by Wednesday evening. The box is situated just inside the second door, and to the right.

Mrs. R. Morgan, convener of Saturday bonspiels, advises that there will be no more Family Hour 'spiels until Saturday, Jan. 6.

The winners of Saturday's bonspiel were: H. Bantie, K. Bissett, R. Best and R. Williamson.

The winning skips Saturday night were D. Bell and C. Giroux.

Bill Vaughan says: "My guess is that, if radio couldn't kill radio, television can't either."

Remember When—

Joe Louis began training eight years ago today for the 20th defence of his world heavyweight boxing crown. It was a second fight against Buddy Baer and a second knockout victory for the Brown Bomber on Jan. 9. Louis is still fighting as an ex-champ since he lost the title to Ezzard Charles.

St. Catharines Team Pulls Out Of OMHA

ST. CATHARINES, Dec. 18 — (CP)—The St. Catharines Juvenile A team today withdrew from the Ontario Minor Hockey Association.

An announcement at Stratford by Herbert Parker, Association President, followed a decision by the Lions Club here to discontinue supporting the team.

Playing under the name of St. Catharines Lions, since 1942 the team won eight Ontario Juvenile A. titles and three times captured the all-Ontario Juvenile championship.

As a feeder farm for St. Kitt's OHA junior "A" squads, they brought many NHL and AHL scouts to this city and in previous seasons were forced to make entry into OHA junior "B" groupings, in order to complete schedules.

This season, the parent OMHA ruled they could only do as a purely exhibition affair. This reduced the Lions' attraction and gates, but did not cause retirement of sponsorship. What their sponsors succinctly termed as "indoctrination of professional ideas and ethics" in the team personnel, plus the continued rising costs of operation, resulted in the abandonment by the service club.

Since Lions first took over, annual costs have risen fivefold.

Lindsay Wallops Bowmanville 13-0

LINDSAY, Dec. 18.—Lindsay B-J Muskies chalked up their most one-sided win of the season here when they walloped Bowmanville Imperials 13-0, in a Lakeshore Intermediate "A" hockey game.

Referee Pete Nigh handed out 33 penalties, for a total of 90 minutes.

Lindsay went two up in the first and sewed up the game with six goals in the second period when Bowmanville played shorthanded for 15 minutes. Jack Lewis and Mike Burns with three goals each, led the scoring parade.

Here And There In Sports . . .

By The Canadian Press

The National League has officially crowned Stan Musial of St. Louis as the circuit's batting champion for 1950, making him the first lefthanded swinger ever to capture the honor four times.

The 30-year-old first baseman-outfielder won with a mark of .346, the lowest average of his four winning years. It was six points more than the .340 figure posted by Johnny Hopp, the Pittsburgh first baseman who was traded to New York Yankees near the end of the season.

Stan (The Man) succeeds Jackie Robinson, who won the 1949 race with a .342 average. Musial first won the batting title in 1943 with a .357 average. He was tops again in '46 with .355, and first in '48 with .376.

Two National League immortals, Honus Wagner of Pittsburgh and Rogers Hornsby of St. Louis and Boston are the only others with more batting titles than Musial. Both were righthanders. Wagner won the crown eight times while Hornsby was first seven times.

Tommy Manastersky, football and hockey star, signed a contract Sunday with the National Hockey League's Montreal Canadiens.

The versatile 20-year-old athlete, recently named Montreal's "athlete of the year" belonged to Montreal Royals of the Quebec Senior Hockey League.

A star with the Montreal Alouettes of the Big Four Football Conference, Manastersky was loaned to the Habitants on a three game, lend-lease agreement earlier this week and played such a good game in New York last Wednesday that bosses of the professional hockey club signed him up.

Gerry McNamee, 16, of Vancouver Saturday night set two Canadian junior swimming records during time trials at Vancouver.

He covered 1,500 yards in 18 minutes 24:1 seconds, cutting about 26½ seconds off the old 18-minute, 50:3 second mark set by Doug Gibson of Toronto.

McNamee splashed through the junior mile in 21 minutes, 44:2 seconds, slicing more than a minute off the old record held by Jim Portelance of Ocean Falls, B. C. Portelance's time was 22:-54.4.

Lethbridge Maple Leafs left Sunday for Europe where they will represent Canada in the 1951 world amateur championships after an extensive exhibition tour on the continent.

The party of 18 will arrive in Halifax Dec. 22 and board the liner "Scythia" that night. They'll dock in London New Year's Day spending Christmas somewhere on the Atlantic.

Their first exhibition game will be in Nottingham Jan. 2.

Welterweight champion Ray (Sugar) Robinson loosed a furious two-fisted attack to whip France's Jean Walczack in a one-sided 10-round bout at Geneva Saturday night.

It was Robinson's third European non-title victory in three weeks. He had previously knocked out Jean Stock of France and Belgian's Luc Van Dam.

The competition was stubborn and the decision close, but Hill Prince finally hit the winner's circle at Hollywood Park Saturday with victory in the $50,000 Sunset Handicap.

A rousing run to the wire pitted the United States champion three-year-old colt, Hill Prince, and the leading three-year-old filly of 1950, in an exciting duel, and the Virginia colt in first by three quarters of a length.

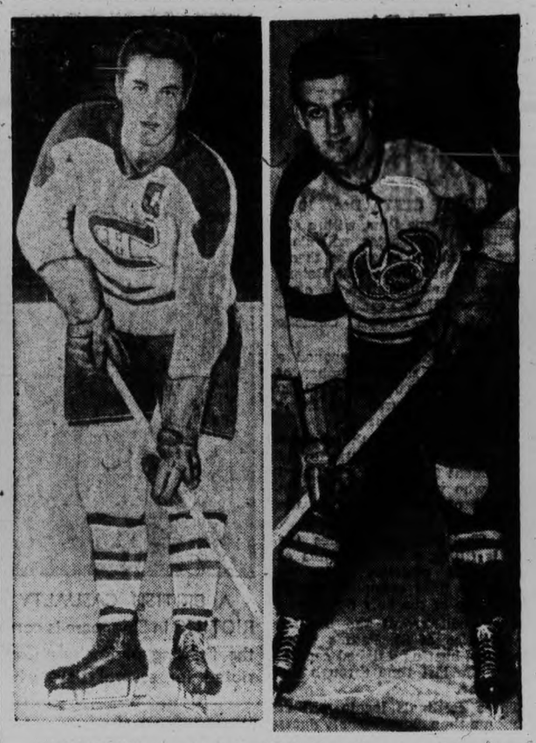
Weekend Stars

By The Canadian Press.

Vern Kaiser and Floyd Curry, who scored twice each as Canadiens swamped Chicago Black Hawks 7-3 Sunday.

Fleming Mackell and Cal Gardner, Toronto, who picked up a goal and an assist apiece as the Leafs outscored Boston Bruins 4-2 Sunday.

Ray Powell, Chicago, a newcomer to the Hawks, whose third-period goal gave Chicago a 3-2 decision over Toronto Saturday.



DICK IRVIN, coach of the NHL Canadiens in a desperate move to inject some sort of a winning combination into his club has called to these two top juniors to perform for the Canucks. . Jean Beliveau, the hotshot centre of Quebec Citadels, is leading scorer in the Junior League, and Bernie Geoffrion, right, of Nationale, is a close second.

Barons Trip Bisons Now 2 Games Ahead

By The Canadian Press.

Cleveland Barons picked up a single point on Cincinnati Mohawks Sunday night to step two full games ahead of the Ohio team at the top of the American Hockey League's western division.

The Barons downed Buffalo Bisons 4-2 while Cincinnati played to a 1-1 overtime tie with Pittsburgh Hornets.

Indianapolis Capitals defeated Providence Reds 5-3.

The Barons now have 39 points to 35 for Cincinnati. Buffalo's loss robbed the Bisons of a chance to take over the eastern division's first place from the idle Hershey Bears. The Bears still lead Buffalo by a single point.

St. Mikes Edge Hamilton In 2-1 Triumph

By The Canadian Press.

Toronto Marlboros Juniors have a five point edge on the field but the senior Marlies are partnered atop the major series as a result of the weekend games in the Ontario Hockey Association.

There was only one game in the major division, Toronto St. Michael's Monarchs won 2-1 on Saturday over Hamilton Tigers in a tight checking contest in Toronto. The victory closed the two-point gap between St. Mike's and their city rivals. Hamilton and Kitchener are tied for third and last, nine points back of the leaders.

Gord Hannigan and Bill McCracken got the goals which gave Toronto club revenge for two successive clawings in their last meetings with the Tigers. Centre John Conick got the only Hamilton marker.

The Junior Marlies picked up four easy points with victories Saturday and Sunday over the luckless Waterloo Hurricanes. In the 4-1 triumph at Waterloo, Bob Cooper, Eric Nesterenko, Ron Stewart and Parker MacDonald clicked for Dukes with Paul Oliver notching the Hurricanes' lone marker.

22nd Defeat

In the Sunday contest—afterpiece of a doubleheader—Waterloo took an 8-0 shellacking for its 22nd defeat in 23 tries. Stewart and Nesterenko each bagged two and Chuck Lumsden, Gus Karrys, and Dan Windley pit the light once each.

In the first half of the twin bill Guelph Biltmores and Toronto St. Michael's battled to a 6-6 draw. Whirling Ken Laufman sparked the Guelph offensive with three goals and two assists. Ron Murphy had two and Aldo Guidolin who went in unmolested to score. Tommy Fyles and Bill Lee each got two for St. Mike's with Jack Weldrake and Danny MacDonald scoring singletons.

The second place Barrie Flyers got a 5-1 lacing from the unpredictable Black Hawks in Galt Saturday. George Gosselin, Ken Wharram, Pete Conacher, Tony Poeta and Jack Carruthers were Hawks' goal scorers with Gerry Toppazzini counting for Barrie.

Galt opened up in the second period and poured four goals past Barrie goalie Lorne Howes without reply. The victory put the Hawks in a fifth-place tie with Windsor.

The Spitfires beat Oshawa Generals 5-4 in Oshawa Saturday The Windsor boys built up a 4-1 lead and then played it close to the belt. Larry Thibeault, Elmer Skov, Koneczny, Jimmy Anderson and Len Zorica scored for Windsor. Alex Delvecchio paced Oshawa with two goals and Lou Jankowski and Don McBeth added singletons.

Belleville Redmen Drop Queen's 8-4

BELLEVILLE, Dec. 18.—In an OHA Senior fixture in the Belleville Memorial Arena Saturday night, the Belleville Redmen regained their winning form by defeating the Queen's Combines 8-4. The win was the locals' first in their last three outings.

Johnny Green was the top point-getter for the winners with a goal and three assists. Brian Mulvihill score one goal and was credited with a pair of assists, while Doug Bastedo tallied twice. Lou Schmidt, Vern Goyer, Peter Jones and Jack Wardaugh also scored. Bud Ohlke netted two of the visitors' four goals, while Don Murray and playing coach Johnny Carr-Harris got the others.

Hockey's Big Seven

By The Canadian Press.

Max Bentley of Toronto continues to pace the National Hockey League's individual scoring race, but several of his team-mates are keeping close on his heels.

Bentley now has 11 goals and 21 assists—tops in that department—for 32 points, three more than Ted Kennedy of the Leafs who has a 9 and 20 mark. In third place is Tod Sloan of Toronto who has 16 goals, the league mark to date, and 11 assists for 27 points.

There were no shutouts recorded in weekend games, and Turk Broda, of Toronto, continues to head the other goalies with five shutouts. Ted Lindsay of Detroit and Gus Mortson of Toronto lead the penalty parade with 58 minutes each.

Hawks Upset Leafs 3-2 But Bow To Canadiens 7-3

By The Canadian Press

Apple-cheeked Harry Lumley should be the first to admit that being a netminder in the National Hockey League certainly has its ups and downs.

The jovial native of Owen Sound rose to spectacular heights at Toronto Saturday night as Chicago Black Hawks tripped up the league-leading Maple Leafs 3-2. That made Lumley somewhat of a hero.

But at Chicago Sunday night, he allowed the puck to get by him seven times in a 7-3 rout by Montreal Canadiens and, in the eyes of at least one Chicago fan, that made Lumley somewhat of a bum.

After Montreal's sixth goal, the fan heckled Lumley who promptly went over to the screen to argue with the customer. Fans in the section tossed papers at and booed the protesting fan.

Get Best Gains

The revived Canadiens and the red-hot Detroit Red Wings recorded the best gain of weekend action among the loop's six teams. Each picked up a victory and a tie in two starts.

The Wings downed Boston Bruins 4-1 at Boston Saturday and managed a 3-3 tie with New York Rangers at New York Sunday; on Saturday, Canadiens were held to a 1-1 draw by Rangers at home. In the other game Sunday, the Leafs polished off the faltering Bruins 4-2 at Boston.

Result of weekend action left Toronto at the top of the heap with 42 points, three in the van of the second-place Wings. Chicago holds third place with 28 points, two ahead of Canadiens. Boston follows with 21 points and Rangers are last with 20.

Rookie Vern Kaiser and Floyd Curry each scored twice for the unpredictable Montrealers in deflating the Hawks before a Chicago crowd of 9,918. Singletons were potted by Ken Mosdell, Maurice Richard and Mackay.

Another Blow

The already injury-riddled Hawks, who had six regulars missing from their lineup for both weekend games, lost defenceman Doug McCaig in the second period. He was taken to hospital with possible fractured ribs after crashing into the Chicago goal post.

Gus Bodnar, Lee Fogolin and Jim Conacher tallied for Chicago.

Saturday the Hawks had five rookies up from Milwaukee Seagulls of the United States Hockey League. Two of the rookies helped in tripping the Leafs. Polish-born Eddie Leier and Ray Powell each connected for a goal, along with Jim Conacher.

The Leafs pumped 34 drives at Lumley from various angles, and only two, fired by Sid Smith and Cal Gardner, got past him. Meanwhile, lanky Al Rollins in the Leafs' net handled 20 shots.

At Boston Sunday, the Leafs scored three times in the first period and coasted to their sixth victory of the campaign over the Bruins. Turk Broda replaced Rollins in the nets and had more work on the evening's play than his counterpart, Jack Gelineau.

Fleming Mackell, Max Bentley, Gus Mortson and Gardner hit the target for the Leafs while Dave Creighton and rookie Lowe connected for the Bruins.

Bruins Fade

Against Detroit Saturday, the Bruins got away to a 1-0 lead on a first-period goal by veteran Milt Schmidt but wilted in the middle frame when the Wings iced the decision by clicking three times. Defencemen accounted for three of the Wings' tallies—Leo Reise, Red Kelly and Bob Goldhan. The fourth went to Gordie Howe.

At New York Sunday it was captain Sid Abel's third-period tally that saved Detroit from a loss to the tie-minded Rangers who in 29 games this season have picked up 12 draws.

Howe opened the scoring with an unassisted goal in the opening period, and he was in the penalty box for cross-checking as Reggie Sinclair knotted the count for New York.

The Rangers went ahead on second period goals by Nick Mickoski and Buddy O'Connor while holding Detroit to a single reply by Metro Prystai.

A Montreal crowd of 14,158 saw Rangers battle Canadiens to a stalemate Saturday. Bernie Geoffrion, one of three players called from Quebec amateur leagues on a lend-lease basis, scored for the homesters and Sinclair for New York.

California Weather Causes Much Trouble For Tourists

By JACK SCOTT

California done me wrong.

There I was gamboling down the shore and into the waves with the sand pipers, cavorting about the beach like a mad, overweight elf, flying kites, running about in shorts and occasionally leaping to the typewriter to sing some delirious praise of the people and the place and life in general.

Next thing I know I'm lying on my back staring feverishly up into the faces of my loved ones, a medicine man is making small murmuring sounds over me, and, finally, an announcement: Temperature, 103; Diagnosis, A slight case of pneumonia.

This was California's answer to my song of delight and an abrupt end to our love affair.

So, for the past ten days, I have been swaddled and horizontal with what seemed to be an elephant sitting on my chest and subsisting almost entirely on sulfa and penicillin. (Me, not the elephant; I was too sick to notice what the elephant ate.)

The doctor assured me, when I had passed what he dramatically called "the crisis," that California often has this effect on visitors, sometimes fatally.

"You come down here and you say "My! It's just like summer! and you don't realize how damp it is," he said. "I meet a lot of tourists this way. A couple have even stayed on permanently in Forest Lawn."

I am convalescing now, acting my age as I ought to have done in the first place, and wearing an ensemble suitable for seal spearing in Aklavik. The heck with the sun. I am putting my faith from now on in the calendar.

In A Fog

I suppose I've been as sick as this before, but I don't ever recall putting in a time of such plain, unvarnished misery and confusion.

At one point, all hopped up with injections, I must have got a little delirious because I couldn't shake the idea that I was somehow in a submerged submarine.

The fogs had rolled in from the open Pacific and engulfed our trailer, which is set up temporarily on a lonely shelf of the beach. The mists swirled soggily about the trailer windows for all the world as if we were six fathoms under the sea. The caravan never seemed so cramped and strange.

Since one of the two "rooms" had to be converted into a temporary informary this meant that my three gals were confined to the other cubicle, which is about eight feet square. One day when the doctor came and brought along his nurse (for laughs, I suppose) I was sure it was all just a bad dream.

I had just been joking with my wife, in a fevered sort of way, about the submarine idea, but somehow I'd got the idea that it was the doctor with whom I'd been sharing the joke. He was a precise, but pleasant man with a crisp bedside manner.

After I had bared my tenderloin so that he could give me my injected lunch of penicillin I smiled and said, "It looks as if we'll never get out alive. I feel that I ought to read something aloud by Rupert Brook." (They always do this in the movies when men are trapped in a submarine and I thought it was a pretty good joke. It might have been, too, if the doctor had been in on the joke.)

"The main things is just to rest," the doctor said, looking at me with open alarm. "And drink lots of juices."

"How's our oxygen holding out?" I said with a brave laugh.

The doctor looked at his nurse quizzically and said, "This stuff sure has some queer effects sometimes."

When he was about to take his departure, I chuckled wanly and said, "Going up through the torpedo tube?" He and the nurse left shaking their heads solemnly. My wife had overheard some of this and tried to explain to the doctor that I was joking. "Hhe thinks he's in a submerged submarine," my wife whispered.

"Call me if he takes a turn for the worse," the doctor staid.

Little Helper

One of the contributing factors to the last week's despair was the determination of our 10-year-old daughter to make like Florence Nightingale.

For a young lady whose nursing training was hitherto limited to putting plints on dolls I was clearly a wonderful subject, capable of almost no resistance except weakly rolling my eyes.

More than once I darkly contemplated infanticide as my little girl advanced, briskly brandishing her thermometer and prepared to take my pulse until my hand turned the color of sharksin.

I learned to lie with one large ear tuned for my daughter's decision that "It's time for Daddy's sponge bath," my cue to begin moaning and muttering, "No bath, no bath."

I like to think now that only a life of clean living and stout devotion to the Boy Scout's oath kept me from perishing after some of those baths.

Still, all's well that ends well. After a couple of days of convalescence we are pushing on north to San Francisco, Oregon and Washington and home.

You can count on Daddy being a sedate and well-bundled up character from here in.

War Measure Recoils On Lord Woolton

LONDON —(CP) — Lord Woolton, chairman of the Conservative party, and former food minister, believes it is high time the Labor government scrapped many of the legislative controls introduced as wartime emergency measures.

Discussing the question in the House of Lords, the erstwhile minister provoked a roar of laughter when he told of having been the victim recently of an outmoded regulation introduced by himself in 1941. It involved confiscation by the customs authorities of five pounds of sugar sent by a generous friend from overseas.

In sugar-rationed Britain the restriction had been imposed during the war because of the serious shipping situation at the time. It forbade acceptance of more than five pounds of any food in gift parcels.

Such regulations, Lord Woolton argued, now are unnecessary.

When a customs official was told of the incident he said Lord Woolton could have his sugar back, provided he gave satisfactory assurance it was sent to him as an unsolicited gift.

Last summer, after a West Indies firm advertised its product in the British Isles, customs officers launched a drive against shipments of sugar parcels. The authorities claimed the parcels were paid for and as such were not unsolicited gifts.

Fenelon Falls Legion Sponsors Santa Parade

FENELON FALLS, Dec. 18 — Hundreds of children saw their first Santa Claus parade on Saturday afternoon, sponsored by the newly organized Fenelon Falls branch of the Canadian Legion.

Coming from Lindsay for the event, Premier Frost played second fiddle to Santa Claus, who handed out presents to upward of 700 youngsters. Self-propelled 25-pound guns and a pipe band were part of the 75float parade arranged by the Legion with the co-operation of local merchants. A chef cooked turkey and chicken on one float, tossing slices to onlookers at intervals.

Parcels posted in Canada for delivery within Canada may be insured up to $50 without fee.

400 Children Attend St. Paul's Party

Four hundred children and approximately 150 mothers were entertained at the two St. Paul's Christmas parties. At the junior event for children up to 8 years, teachers and friends provided the paper hat favors. Supper was served at tables in the upstairs auditorium and also in the beginners' room, where Spencer Tucker entertained the primary department with two solos, "Frosty, the Snow Man" and "Chocolate Ice Cream Cone." He was accompanied on the piano by his mother, Mrs. Allen Tucker. Two films, "Christmas Carols" and "Santa's Little Helpers," were shown. Candy canes and gifts were distributed by Santa Claus.

Mrs. J. H. Rosenburgh and Mrs. Laura Howson, in charge of serving, were assisted by 35 mothers and teachers. The arrangements were made by Junior Superintendent Max Kaye, assisted by Miss Helen Davidson, Miss Mildred Rowan and Mrs. Lionel Monk, departmental heads.

The guests were welcomed by the Rev. and Mrs. C. G. Boyd, James Anderson Jr. of St. Paul's and Mrs. Stuart Finnie, cradle roll superintendent.

On Friday the senior Sunday School, after a carol sing-song, enjoyed a delicious buffet supper. The following mothers, Mrs. L. J. Mercer, Mrs. H. Ward, Mrs. W. Smillie, Mrs. W. C. Steinkrauss, Mrs. Wallace Caldwell, Mrs. Robt. McAdam, Mrs. R. K. Tedford, Mrs. C. G. Law, Mrs. P. Hawthorne, Mrs. Leighton Ross and Mrs. Jack Morrow, were assisted by the staff in serving and Mrs. Douglas Hill was the convener.

Christmas trees provided the setting for the following program, for which Superintendent Jim Davidson was master of ceremonies. The recitations given were:

"The Christmas Story from Luke's Gospel," by Barbara Davis and Lois Findlay; "When Father Carved the Duck," by Margaret Hawthorne; "Ranchman's Ride," by Allan Law; "While Shepherds Watched," by Beverly Wilson; "Nearing Christmas," by Bill Watters; "The Child That Came," by Carol Grant; "Why," by Mary Lou Davidson, and "The Plaint of the Camel," by Yvonne Smith.

Other enjoyable selections consisted of piano solos, "Slavic March" and "While Shepherds Watched," by Doug Rishor; "Violet Waltz," by Alene Mann; "O Little Town of Bethlehem," given by David Buckley; "Evening Prayer," from Richard Ward, and "Troika," by pianist Max Clark.

Mrs. Gwen Craw's choral group of 56 members sang "The Bell Carol," "Mary and Joseph," "Infant Holy" and "Deck the Hall." The Rev. Bill Moorehead played two violin selections, "Jesus, Joy of Man's Desiring" and "Melody in F." "Rudolph, the Red Nosed Reindeer" was sung by Miss Dorothy Walker's class of 12-year-old girls, and Lennie Minty sang "Away in a Manger."

The Rev. C. G. Boyd praised and commended all assisting with the supper and program. A film, "Christmas Carols," and community singing of "Hark the Herald Angels Sing," "While Shepherds Watched" and "Jingle Bells" preceded the arrival of Santa Claus, who distributed candy and gifts. Harry Lockington was projectionist and Bert Ross operated the lantern. White gifts, donated by all the pupils, are to be used to augment the Christmas cheer baskets sent to the shut-ins of the congregation.

In his first bid for public office Republican Kohler was elected governor of Wisconsin. On Jan. 1 he will succeed Gov. Oscar Rennebohm, also a Republican, who did not run for re-election.

When Kohler is inaugurated he will be the second son of a former governor to take over the chief executive's post. His father, the late Walter J. Kohler, served as governor of Wisconsin in 1929-30.

Helmet A Trap

CHICAGO, Dec. 18—(AP)—Michael Lynn, Jr., 4, wore a snug leather helmet Sunday as he played in the cold on the front steps of his parents' house amid some piled lumber. But Mitchael fell. His head was wedged between the lumber and a step, and the helmet jammed over his face. His mother found him dead of suffocation.

3-Game Suspension For Abusive Language

TORONTO, Dec. 18 (CP) — Automatic three-game suspension for players or club officials "using foul or abusive language" before, during or after games has been announced by the Ontario Hockey Association executive.

The ruling went into effect Friday. It applies only to first offences, second offences being referred to the executive for penalty.

The executive said it "will not tolerate or deal lightly with any person who is guilty of cheapening the game by demeaning himself and his club in any areas where hockey is played."

The executive expressed "great concern" over the "increasing amount of foul and abusive language used by certain players and officials during O. H. A. games."

Follow These Rules —FOR SAFE WINTER DRIVING

Slippery road surfaces, unfavourable weather conditions, and early darkness, combine with thoughtless driving to make the late Fall and Winter months the most dangerous period of the year.

For your own safety and the safety of other road users—pedestrians and motorists—observe the following suggestions:

1. On wet, snowy or icy road surfaces drive at reduced speed.
2. When stopping, apply brakes lightly and intermittently. Jamming on the brakes may bring about a skid.
3. Keep windshield and windows free of snow and ice outside, and fog and frost inside.
4. Be sure that brakes, steering mechanism and tires are in safe condition to help offset the extra hazards of Winter driving.

Linda Darnell Leaving For New Studio

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 18 (AP)—Linda Darnell is leaving 20th Century-Fox, after spending 11 of her 26 years there.

The deal has not been concluded yet, but both parties have agreed that Miss Darnell's present contract will be over when option time arrives in February. Then she will probably sign a new deal to make only one picture a year at the studio. The remainder of her time will be her own.

I saw the dark-haired Dallas beauty on the set of her last picture under the present deal—"The Guy Who Sank the Navy." (The "Guy" is Paul Douglas and don't ask me what the title means.) Linda seemed both a little bit happy and a little bit sad about her parting with the studio.

Not Too Happy

"As you probably know," she remarked, "I haven't been too happy at the studio for some time. I can understand their problem. I am costing them a lot of money ($5,000 a week) and they have to keep me busy in three pictures a year.

"The trouble is that there aren't that many good roles. They might find one good role for me, but the other two would be stinkers."

Her sadness comes at leaving the lot where she grew up.

"The worst thing will be giving up my dressing room in the Stars' Building," she sighed. "It took me seven years before they gave me a place there."

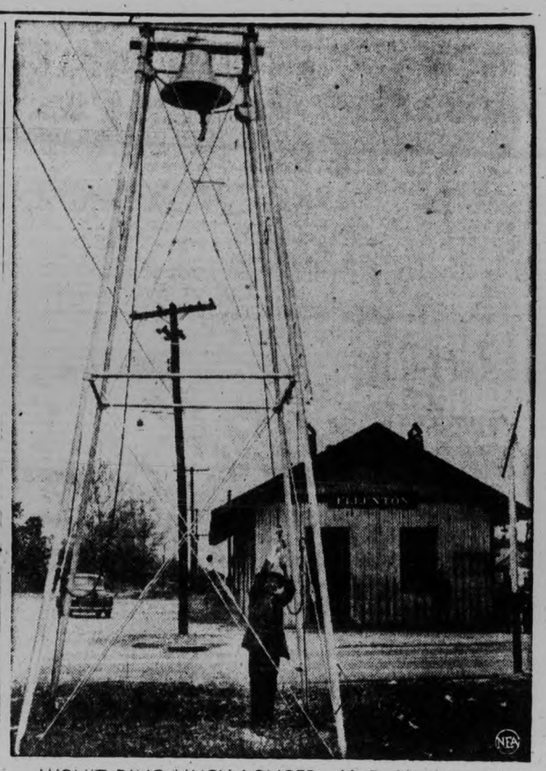
But Linda feels that the parting will be the best thing for her career.

"For 11 years I've had things decided for me," she said. "In all that time I've never been in suspension, largely because I could usually get to the top man and explain why I didn't want to do certain pictures.

Own Decisions

"Now I want to make my own decisions. There is a certain satisfaction in it. I will be able to do pictures that I have my heart in. And if I make a mistake, it will be my own. No one else will have to take the blame."

Linda added that a studio begins to take a star for granted after too long an association. It is no secret that she was disappointed when the starring role in "David and Bathsheba" went to Susan Hayward. This was the old situation of a studio making big plans for a new player on its contract while overlooking its regulars.



WON'T RING MUCH LONGER—H. R. Harden, railway station agent at Ellenton, SC, is usually first man at the ropes of the community bell. Soon it will toll the last rites for a town engulfed by the atomic age for H-bomb experiments.

FIRST VICTIM OF THE H-BOMB—from the air, Ellenton sprawls on both sides of the Charleston and West Carolina Railroad. Schoolhouse (top centre) which has just got a $30,000 addition, will disappear with the rest of four South Carolina towns when the H-bomb plant is built.

Secrets of Atomic Reactor Revealed For First Time

By HOWARD BLAKESLEE

NEW YORK, Dec. 18 (AP)—The secrets of an atomic reactor are disclosed for the first time in an official description of the water boiler, an atomic teapot, at Los Alamos, New Mexico.

The description was authorized by an agreement among Canada, the United States and Britain to make public scientific discoveries that have no military value.

This reactor is the smallest yet built. Its centre, the water boiler, is a hollow sphere of stainless steel about the size of a basketball. The ball is covered by a layer of beryllium oxide, a metal.

This little teapot is buried at the centre of a cube of graphite, the stuff that makes the lead in pencils. The graphite is five feet in diameter.

Enclosing the graphite are three successive boxes of cadmium, and finally a box of concrete five feet thick. All this forms a cube 15 feet on a side.

"Tea" Mixture

The tea in this case is a mixture of ordinary water and about 12 pounds of dissolved uranium. Nearly two pounds of this is uranium-235, the kind whose atoms split.

These uranium-235 atoms are splitting all the time, but not in large numbers. In the water, those that split emit particles called neutrons, which split other atoms of uranium. This splitting builds up so fast that, if unrestrained, the heat from the splits would melt the steel, beryllium, and probably the graphite and lead.

Splitting is controlled by two rods of cadmium metal, sticking into the water. Cadmium absorbs so many neutrons that not enough are left to start a chain reaction of splitting.

Producing neutrons is the entire purpose of the boiler. They are used for scientific experiments.

They pass out through the steel as nearly as a knife through cheese. There are holes in the concrete and the other shields to let them out in beams, which can emerge into the open air, or be stopped wherever wanted inside the reactor, by plugging the holes.

This reactor has been running five years on the original charge of 12 pounds of uranium.

Canada Answers UN Appeal Forms Special Brigade For Korea

By H. L. JONES.

OTTAWA, Dec. 18— (CP). — Canada in 1950 embarked on the greatest peacetime military program in her history, an effort sparked by the crisis in Korea.

It all happened in a short six months. In June, North Korean Communists invaded South Korea and the United Nations intervened. By December, acting in conjunction with her UN partners, Canada had sent three destroyers, a squadron of transport planes, and a battalion of troops to the far Pacific.

At home she raised a special army brigade of 10,000 men to meet international obligations in Korea or elsewhere and set a precedent by labelling it as an international peace-enforcement force.

Higher Taxes

Canadians were told in effect that the peacetime economy of the last five years was over. Higher taxes were forecast to meet the staggering $1,000,000,000 defence budget necessary to pay for these military moves and for boosted production of jet fighters, naval ships and other weapons of war.

In mid-December the government announced that Canada's 63,000 servicemen would get pay increases retroactive to December 1, ranging from $14 a month upward and averaging $19 for other ranks and $33 for officers.

Sailors and airmen serving in Korea were given extra allowances retroactive to July 5. The government announced foreign allowances "to be paid to sailors, soldiers and airmen serving with Canadian units abroad." The allowances will not be made to officers. They will range from $9 to $16.50 a month.

Sacrifices Necessary

Cabinet ministers told the people they would be expected to make sacrifices for some time to come. They were necessary if world Communism was to be stemmed in Korea and wherever else it might try to advance. They were necessary if a third world war was to be averted.

Cabinet sessions in Ottawa were frequent and long as the Korean war ran hot, then cold, then hot again as Chinese Communists entered the fray near the close of the year.

Within a few weeks of the Korean outbreak the government announced the dispatching of the destroyers Cayuga, Athabaskan, and Sioux from the West Coast to join UN naval forces in Korean waters.

Send RCAF

A short time later—in July—Canada sent No. 426 Transport Squadron of the RCAF from Montreal to join the Korean airlift flying supplies from McChord Field at Tacoma, Wash., to Tokyo. The Canadian end of the lift has since been built up to a dozen big North Star transport planes and given authority to fly right into Korea if necessary.

Early in August, Prime Minister St. Laurent, in a historic broadcast to the nation, announced formation through voluntary enlistment of a special Army Brigade of 10,000 men. It was to be the first such international force of its kind. In a few weeks the necessary manpower was raised, and Brig. J. M. (Rocky) Rockingham, veteran Second World War commander of the Highland Brigade, was chosen to lead it.

The next step was the dispatching of 345-man force of the special brigade to Pusan as an advance party to prepare for the arrival of Canadian combat troops. For many weeks it was not known if a combat force actually would be sent, but late in November the 2nd Battalion of the Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry was detached from the special brigade and dispatched to the Far East.

Winter Training

The rest of the special brigade, built up to full strength again with formation of a 3rd Battalion of the Patricia's, went into winter training at Fort Lewis, Wash. It was slated to be ready by February for whatever job might be given it. Whether it goes to Korea or Europe will depend on the turn of international events, especially events in Korea, where in December, U.N. forces were fighting a defensive action against large Chinese Communist forces.

All these moves were approved at a special session of parliament in September. There the government came under heavy and persistent opposition fire for what was described as "dilatory" and "ineffective' action in answering the U.N. call for aid in Korea.

But External Affairs Minister Pearson, between hops to critical U.N. sessions in New York, said Canada had nothing to be ashamed of. In fact in setting up the special brigade as a international peace-enforcement force, Canada had "started something important."

". . . the year and a half ahead is the dangerous period," he told the Commons. "If we can get through that period, we may then have time to settle our problems even with those people behind the Iron Curtain."

Looney Larceny: 1950

Crooks Want Bigger Things Locomotives or Brick Walls

By M. G. PATTINGTON

NEW YORK, Dec. 16 (NEA)—A policeman's lot may be an unhappy one, but the lot of a crook can be positively pitiful. At least it was for a collection of looney larcenists in 1950.

VICTIM of one of 1950's looney larcenists was Dorothy Barstone of St. Louis, Mo. A bandit took her stocking.

One robber filched some homing pigeons from a San Bernardino, Calif., loft. So they promptly flew back home. A would-be stick-up artist in Detroit whipped out his gun to impress a store cashier. But all he succeeded in doing was to shoot himself in the foot.

A London thief was making his getaway. He jumped into a taxi—only it wasn't a taxi at all. It was a police car. Three young robbers in Chicago made off with $27 from a grocery store. One of them forgot his bicycle in his rush to get away. The bike was worth more than $27.

Some burglars out in Spokane, Wash., were anxious to enter a laundry, for nefarious purposes. They broke through a window and were apparently so badly cut that all they swiped was some bandages from a first aid kit.

Down in Texas, a burglar tried some large-scale larceny in Houston and this is what happened: he tried to open a cash register, but couldn't; he tried to open a cigarette machine, but couldn't; he tried to open a soft drink machine, but couldn't; he tried to drive away in a trailer truck, which jackknifed; he gave it up as a bad night.

Thieves this year had some looney ideas about what constitutes legitimate loot for a light-fingered larcenist. Among stolen goods were a five-ton street weeping machine, a locomotive and a brick wall.

The street sweeper vanished in Alhambra, Calif. But a track of sweepings left a trail for police to follow. The railroad locomotive was taken in Louisville, Ky., where the man arrested for the crime said, "I need it to carry a message from Gen. MacArthur to President Truman." And in Kansas City, Mo., a man told police some crooks had carted away the entire back brick wall of his garage. They left his car.

This has been a tough year for police, too. Cops in Amarillo, Tex., arrested twins, but in court the two men refused to tell which was which on charges of robbery. They even fooled their own lawyer.

A San Antonio, Tex., policeman was investigating a burglary at a home. The watchdog bit him three times. In St. Joseph, Mo., the sheriff's office was broken into and the cornerstone to the old jail taken.

There's no accounting for tastes and some of 1950's criminals had odd cravings in loot. A St. Louis, Mo., man stole a stocking off a pretty blonde's leg, while she was in it. In Long Beach, Calif., a "friendship" club reported to police that a file was stolen, which contained the names, addresses, telephone numbers and physical specifications of several hundred lonely women.

A Buffalo, NY, salesman bought two burglar alarms for his home. Before he could get them installed, they were stolen. Angry burglars who found only $1 in an office left with the electric-eye alarm that was supposed to have kept them out.

Some foot-pads in London broke into a hotel and broke out again with 4,800 cigarettes, 140 bottle of liquor, a radio and the hotel watchdog. A Newark, NJ, pawnshop was robbed of $15,000 in cash and the proprietor's pants.

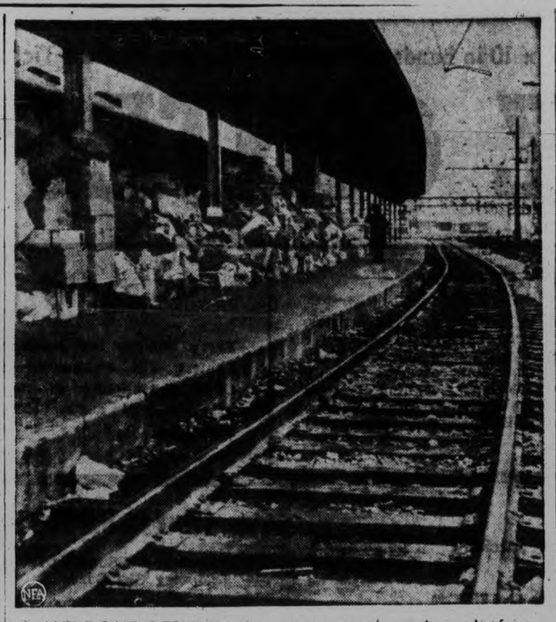
As for alibis, 1950's crop of crooks had some whoppers. A burglar in Washington, DC, explained his crime was merely to raise money so he could pay his attorney so he could be kept out of the jug. And a man in Knoxville Tenn., was arrested for stealing a 100-pound sack of flour. "Somebody must have put it on my back," he said.

Planning Campaign

MONTREAL, Dec. 18 (CP). — Delegates from nine Canadian provinces met in Montreal Saturday to complete plans for a national fund campaign to fight poliomyelitis. The two-day conference, first national meeting of the Canadian Foundation for Poiomyelitis, decided to hold its campaign Jan. 7-10. The founda tion raised $300,000 last year.

Loot Store of $6,000

OTTAWA, Dec. 18 (CP). — Safecrackers gained entry to the Landriault hardware store on the outskirts of Ottawa sometime early Sunday, blew off the door of the safe and escaped with $6,000 in cash. Police said it was evident that "expert cracksmen" did the job and it was possible that it was the same gang which recently broke into the Hull, Que. post office and escaped with $20,000.



WILDCAT RESULT—An empty track and a platform loaded with sacks of Christmas mail are results of a wildcat strike by railroad trainmen. This scene at the Washington terminal was duplicated in other cities as workers defied a US court order to return to their jobs. Christmas mail and vital war freight were held up.

On motion of Councillors Argue and Wright the Reeve was instructed to declare December 26, (Boxing Day) a public holiday for the township.

Rearmament Costs Shade Britain's Economic Advance

By ALAN HARVEY

LONDON, Dec. 18 — (CP) — Britain in 1950 began to pay her way as a trading country, but rising raw-material prices and a full-blooded rearmament program permitted little relief from austerity.

Domestically, an increasing cost of living became the main concern.

In the first six months of the year, the country's economic climate changed radically and remarkably. Almost without anybody noticing it, "boom" began to replace "crisis" in talk of Britain's economic position. From January to June, the sterling area's gold and dollar reserves—so low the previous autumn that Britain drastically devalued the pound sterling—rose by £262,000,000 ($786,000,000 at the present rate of exchange).

Britain herself accounted for only £36,000,000 of the increase. The rest was provided by Marshall aid and increasing sterling-area sales to the dollar countries. These commodities sold at booming prices, prompting economists to warn that the increase might only be temporary. But production in Britain was up nine per cent and the country seemed ready to reap the benefits of post-war efforts.

Rush To Re-Arm

Then came Korea. The United Nations decision to try to halt aggression meant bigger arms programs in the free countries, stockpiling of strategic commodities, principally by the United States, sent prices soaring. Britain decided that rearmament and the dollar-export drive—now finally gaining real momentum — must share priority. But there were many difficulties. At the year's end, some manufacturers complained they could not obtain materials for dollar industries because of the switch to war production. Diversion of manpower posed similar problems.

The rise in gold and dollar reserves led to the announcement, Dec. 14, that Marshall aid to Britain will be suspended Jan. 1 instead of running to 1952. If Britain's position should take a turn for the worse, however, they may be resumed.

The suspension followed meetings in London of the new Chancellor of the Exchequer, Hugh Gaitskell, with Marshall aid officials. Gaitskell replaced Sir Stafford Cripps who resigned for health reasons.

Demands From Canada

The improved balance-of-payments position also brought demands from Canada for more British dollar purchases there, and food contracts announced in December indicated a change in the policy of slashing dollar imports embarked on in 1948 and 1949 when the payments crisis was at its peak. But official opinion discouraged speculation that sterling revaluation and free convertibility might be at hand.

For the individual consumer, the year started brightly. The political stalemate produced by the February general election was followed by a number of new freedoms. Gasoline, soap, canned meats, biscuits and other groceries came off the ration. The points system of rationing was abolished. Restaurants were allowed to remove the five-shilling (about 75 cents) limit on meals. The range of tax-free "utility" clothing and furniture was improved and extended.

Darker Picture

But the picture darkened in the closing months of 1950. Food Minister Maurice Webb, who last spring and summer spoke of improving the country's larder, noted that since then he had been confronted with demands for higher prices from practically all Britain's suppliers. There were strong hints that some of the control's removed early in the year, particularly those on fish, might be restored. The official cost-of-living index rose by two points. Reduced spending was reported on luxury items.

Housing ranked as the No. 2 domestic worry. The Conservatives promised if elected to set a target of 300,000 houses a year, but the Labor government stuck to its figure of 200,000.

Modernization and extension of industrial plants proceeded according to plan, despite record exports and growing defence needs. The nationalized colliery, gas and electricity industries embarked on ambitious long-term plans of development; but in the early winter months a threatening coal shortage forced Britain —once the world's greatest coal-exporting country—to announce coal would be imported from the United States.

The nationalization of the iron and steel industry became assured in 1950 but will not take effect until 1951. Among privately-owned industries, the chemicals trade published plans for a 70-per-cent increase in output capacity within five years. Socialist plans to nationalize such further industries as insurance, sugar, minerals and cement apparently have been shelved.

The government - sponsored "wage freeze," which served to curb wage increases during its three years of operation, was finally abandoned after months of pressure, and adjustments took place in several industries. The policy of dividend limitation, never legally binding, was less rigidly in force.

Christmas is man's bulwark against the darkness of tyranny—a bulwark standing firm and bringing to the world strength, hope and compassion.

As we celebrate Christmas this year, let us once again affirm our faith in mankind, and let us rededicate ourselves to the great task of perpetuating a better world—a world reflecting the faith that is Christmas, with its eternal message of

Taxi Driver Good Samaritan

TORONTO, Dec. 18 (CP) — Taxi driver Frank Morrow, 29, "missing" for 14 hours, returned home Saturday, playing good Samaritan to a would-be bandit who drank too much and fell asleep before he got around to staging his holdup.

Morrow said he was forced drive 55 miles from Toronto to Elmira by a youth who indicated he had a gun and who warned the cabbie to do as he was told "if you want to see your children again."

But the youth passed out from the effects of liquor. Morrow stopped at an Elmira store, got the help of two citizens and searched the "bandit." He had no gun.

Morrow thought it over—he came from a good family; he had too much to drink and decided not to press charges.

He drove the boy home—on the understanding he'll pay the $30 cab fare at the rate of $5 a week.

Reds Sabotaged Contract-Union

WINDSOR, Ont., Dec. 18 (CP) —Ford Facts, publication of local 200 of the United Automobile Workers (CIO), says in its current issue that Communists "deliberately sabotaged" the union's chances of reaching its recent wage agreement with Ford Motor Company of Canada.

In an article written by George Burt, Canadian director of the UAW, the union paper blamed Communists for a series of wildcat strikes during negotiations.

The story replied to an article in the Canadian Tribune, Labor-Progressive (Communist) party paper, written by Cyril Prince. Prince, ousted from the UAW several years ago, said local 200 leaders tried to sign a five-year agreement with Ford of Canada but were blocked by the militancy of the rank and file.

"The negotiating committee followed completely the policy laid down by the policy committee and accepted by the membership," Burt said. The policy committee turned down a company offer of a five-year contract and agreement was finally reached on increases of 10 cents hourly.

UAW Asks Ottawa For Price Controls

TORONTO, Dec. 18 (CP)—Immediate price controls, but with no freeze on wages until "equity" has been reached, was demanded of the federal government by delegates representing Canadian members of the United Automobile Workers (CIO-CCL) at a weekend meeting here. The UAW claims 60,000 Canadian members.

The delegates, meeting as district council No. 26, said the purchasing power of workers in automobiles and parts had increased only $1.07 a week from April 1946 to August 1950.

"The claim that workers have caused inflation by raising wages is a myth," the council report said. "Workers in many industries have less purchasing power than they had in 1946. In the meantime, real profits in Canadian industry have skyrocketed."

Elect Victor Sifton Institute President

TORONTO, Dec. 18 (CP)—Victor Sifton, publisher of The Winnipeg Free Press, has been elected president of the Canadian Institute of International Affairs, it was announced Sunday.

The institute is a non-profit-making organization which encourages the study and discussion of international affairs through its information and library services, publications and meetings.

Mr. Sifton succeeds R. M. Fowler, president of the Canadian Pulp and Paper Association.

Asks For Recount

WINDSOR, Dec. 18 (CP). — Mayor Louis Chappus of LaSalle is contesting his one-vote defeat in the December 4 election and has filed court papers for a recount. In the election Mayor Chappus polled 310 votes and lost out by one vote to Herbert Runstedler polled 311 votes. Mayor Chappus said he has asked for the recount "to clear the matter in the minds of the residents of LaSalle."

Urge Rental Controls

QUEBEC, Dec. 18 (CP). — The Canadian Council of Provincial Employee Associations has sent telegrams to the Premiers of six provinces including Ontario urging them "to immediately to take step to carry on rental controls without interruption as asked by organized labor throughout Canada.

Elected Chairman

MONTREAL, Dec. 18 (CP). — Samuel Bronfman, Montreal industrialist, Sunday was unanimously elected chairman of a Canada-wide National Conference for Israel, under auspices of the Zionist organization of Canada. It was expected the conference will be held here shortly.

Short Of Space Railways See Record Rush

Space is a problem for railway ticket sellers this week. Both the CNR and CPR reported today that train reservations for the Christmas weekend are almost sold out.

The two railways expect a Christmas rush bigger than last year, and their express companies report heavier shipments of parcels than in 1949.

No special trains will run out of the city Christmas weekend, but during this week, two specials are running through Port Hope. One leaves Port Hope at 10:35 a.m. for Montreal and the other leaves Montreal at 9:15 a.m., arriving in Port Hope at 3 p.m. Both started today.

There will be extra cars on all trains running out of the city during the Christmas weekend.

Express Heavier

Express offices of both railways report heavier shipments of express so far this year than last. Christmas express shipping usually runs three to six times more than normal, and on the CPR at least, one extra express car will run each day.

Both express companies will deliver perishable goods Christmas Day, but other parcels will be held over until Boxing Day By the middle of the week, expressmen say, the Christmas express rush should hit its peak, and it will taper off after two heavy days.

The bus lines will run extra buses if they are needed, but no specials have been definitely scheduled for the Christmas weekend. No reservations can be made, and for the bus lines it will be a case of first come, first seated.

OPTIMISTS' CHRISTMAS HAMPER party, held on Sunday, collected a great deal of food for distribution to needy city families by the Salvation Army and the City Welfare department. "Contribution were not as heavy as last year," said president Stewart Gardiner," but there is still time to collect more, we hope." Shown in foreground group Above are Major Cyril Everitt, Douglas Whelan and Paul Reid, both of radio station CHEX, Major H. Everitt, Sr., and Aubrey Braund. In rear group are John Pierce, Mr. Gardiner, Jack Dawson and Arthur Metheral, City Welfare Officer.

Three Charged After Battle In Street, Cell

Charges of causing a disturbance were laid today against three men in police court following a fight on George St. shortly after midnight Saturday night. One of the men, Hector McMahon, 5 Maniece Ave., was also charged with carrying an offensive weapon in the form of a hunting knife.

Douglas Hayton, 251 Engleburn Ave., pleaded guilty to the charge of causing a disturbance and was fined $10 and costs. McMahon pleaded guilty to the disturbance charge and was fined $10 and costs. On the offensive weapon charge, he was remanded to Tuesday for trial.

The third man, Ralph Dionne, R.R. 4, Peterborough, pleaded not guilty to the charge and his case was adjourned to Tuesday.

Hid Under Car

Two constables, Andre Dalton and Robert Menzies, were called to the fight near Hunter St. As they arrived they saw two men fighting. Hayton broke away and ran along George St. to Hunter and east on Hunter St. where he crawled under a car in front of the deserted Regent Theatre.

Constable Menzies jumped from from the moving police truck and gave chase while Constable Dalton drove on in the truck to head him off. They fished him out from under the car.

When they returned to the scene of the fight, they saw McMahon there holding his face where he had been cut. The constables went into a nearby restaurant and there arrested Dionne.

Battle In Cells

While all three were put in the police truck, they started to argue and when being brought into the police station, McMahon tried to get at Dionne to hit him. When put in the cell a fight started again and police took Dionne out and put him in the woman's cell for his own protection.

Police said when they searched McMahon before putting him in the cell, they found a hunting knife stuck in his belt.

Two Tons of Food Donated At Optimist's Hamper Show

More than 1,200 people attended the annual Optimist club hamper show at the Brock St. arena Sunday afternoon to help needy families at Christmas. An array of out-of-town and local talent entertained from 1:30 until 5:30. Those in attendance and the radio listeners donated two tons of food to equal last year's effort. Admission to the stage show was two cans of food or its equivalent in nonperishable goods. Many donations such as turkeys, geese, chickens, and small Christmas cakes were received from the radio audience.

The money donations this year are expected to be less than last year's $1700 by $200. A fleet of 20 cars with Boy Scouts acting as collectors answered the telephone calls.

Disappointed

John Pierce, chairman of the club's show committee, said that the response this year was "a little disappointing" because the club increased its efforts to better last year's receipts by obtaining top radio stars for the stage show.

The chief disappointment, he said, was the large drop in the bidding for the large Christmas cake, especially made for the club. Last year the three high bids totalled $426 and the cake sold for $175. This year the cake went for only $30. Hockey tickets to a Toronto-Detroit N.H.L. game and a turkey were also auctioned off very cheap.

Good Stage Show

Headlining the stage show were John Sturgess, CBC baritone, and James Shields, well-known Canadian tenor, both of Toronto. They were accompanied by Donald Gordon, organist. Walter Crouter, radio announcer from CFRB Toronto and formerly of CHEX, arranged for the Toronto guest artists, who donated their time and services.

Others heard on the program were the Salvation Army band, the Citizens' band, Peterborough Choral Society, Hal MacFarlane's orchestra, Bobby Kinsmen's orchestra, Graydon Sheldon's orchestra, Michael Tunnicliffe, Walter Dawson, the Searles String Quartet, Joanne Chamberlain, Henry Jackson, Major C. G. Everitt and Mignon Mayneord.

The needy families will receive the food hampers through A. G. Metheral, city welfare officer, and Major C. G. Everitt of the Salvation Army who are acting as distributors.

Mr. Pierce said today that the club appreciates the support of the citizens of Peterborough, the merchants and other agencies. He added that the club will still receive donations of food and money. People wishing to do so are asked to contact any member of the Optimist Club.

135 Suggestions Employee Cashes In On 68

Edward Hatcher of the switchgear division of Canadian General Electric Company has submitted 135 suggestions for operating and other improvement in the plant, and has had 68 of them approved.

His latest idea yielded him $154, as related in the CGE News which rates him as one of the most outstanding employees in fertility of practical proposals dealing usually with switchgear production economies and facilities.

The following is the account of his last award which rated him as in baseball an assist:

"There used to be a small soldered connector stud on switchgear assemblies, and it was necessary to grind them individually to remove excess solder. Mr. Hatcher designed a plate which would hold 50 of the studs to be ground in the same time it took to do one by the old method. However, the idea was not put into use.

Instead, the Suggestion Committee thoroughly investigated production of the part and found that the soldering operation which was causing the trouble could be eliminated if the stud was fabricated by a "staking" process. This was found to be satisfactory, and the new metthod was put into effect.

It was Mr. Hatcher's idea that started the ball rolling, a substantial saving was made by the new method, and he was paid for his idea on the basis of this saving."

Council Meets On January 2

The municipal statute mill is idle for the rest of the year which civically ends Tuesday evening on a little social note for the administration and staff.

Interim accounts have to be approved by committee chairman and bear the certificate of the chairman of finance, Ald. H. F. Waddell. In the meantime the brief and merry Yule season will have come and gone, the centennial year will have passed into record and memory, and on Jan. 2 the council of 1951 will be organized.

It happens this year that the inaugural is early. Until about three years ago it used to be scheduled for the middle of the month, and that left too long a gap between the end of the old and the beginning of the new municipal year.

Two new members come into the council, Harold R. Rehill and Norman Graham, taking the places of Ald. H. Dodds and Ald. Adam B. Sands.

9 Parties Mark Christmas Season In City

Saturday, in addition to being the busiest shopping day of the year, was also Christmas party day for nine organizations, seven of them industrial. The largest one at PCVS auditorium was staged by the CGE where almost 5,000 children were entertained with movies, a visit from Santa Claus and gift-giving. It was so large that it took five closely-timed "shows" to complete the heavy program. Many employees were engaged in helping to funnel the children through proper channels. The party started at 9:30 a.m. and the last group of children were still being entertained late in the afternoon.

In the morning the Peterborough Canoe Company played to a packed audience of youngsters in the YMCA—movies, Santa and gifts.

The afternoon party series started at St. John's Separate School at 1:30 p.m. when children of the Brinton-Peterborough Carpet Company were feted and half and hour later two more parties, the Quaker Oats Company at Queen Mary School Auditorium and the Peterborough Lock Company at the Legion Hall went into full swing. The same programs in the same order, already mentioned above at the other parties, was held. In the Armouries, both upstairs and down, the 50th HAA Regiment, RCA, held two parties, one for children in the Sergeants' Mess and followed later by another in the Officers' Mess.

Given Watches

There were two night partys. One was held for the staff of the Peterborough Examiner at the Kawartha Club. It consisted of dinner under the chairmanship of assistant-editor T. J. Allen. General Manager H. L. Garner presented wrist watches to two 25-year employees, managing-editor G. Wilson Crew and Harold Dormer of the composing room staff. A troup of entertainers from Toronto presented a lively 45-minute show and the rest of the evening was spent in dancing. The second Saturday night party was held by the Wire and Cable Club of the CGE, a dinner and dance.

The only industrial party listed for tonight in the city is being held at the PCVS auditorium by Outboard Marine Manufacturing Company.

Carol Services Held In Many City's Churches

Special Christmas and candlelight and carol services were held in many of the city churches Sunday night. All were well attended and in some cases extra seating arrangements had to be arranged for overflow congregations.

The Annual Candlelight Service took place at George St. United Church. Three choirs, senior, intermediate and junior, with a total of 135 voices took part in the service, under the direction of Charles Allen, organist. Before the service a piano and organ recital was presented by Mr. Allen and Mrs. G. Wilson Craw.

Included in the service were vocal solos, duets and Christmas anthems sung by members of the three choirs.

South End Service

The south end carol singing service was held at St. James United Church. Taking part in this service were the combined choirs, congregations and ministers of St. James United, Knox United, Grace United and Park St. Baptist churches. C. A. Corbett led congregational singing and the combined choirs were directed by A. Potter. Mrs. C. Renaud and Mrs. H. Turner were the pianists for the service.

Murray Street Baptist Church held their annual candlelighting service conducted by members of the CGIT. The singing by the choir and congregation was led by Stanley Northrop, organist.

"Christmas Around the World" was the title of the special service at Mark St. United Church. This service was a combination carol and white gift service. Christmas music was presented by the Junior section of the Sunday school under the direction of Ken Kidd, superintendent of the Junior Sunday school.

Carlyle Kidd, general superintendent of the Sunday school conducted the service.

Mrs. Olive Searles was at the organ and Mrs. F. E. Phell, pianist of the Sunday school played the piano.

At Trinity United

The choir under the direction of Donald Kennedy, organist, presented the Christmas Candlelight carol service at Trinity United Church. Two children, Bobby Ritchie and Mabel McLarnon also took part in the carol singing.

A candlelight carol service was held at St. Andrew's United Church. The senior choir under the direction of Harry Northrop sang Christmas anthems. The Rev. M. J. Aiken told the Christmas story, "Surprise for David."

Several of the other churches are holding their Christmas services next Sunday.

Almost Lost Eye In Street Fight

Michael Fitzgerald, R.R. 5 Peterborough, almost had his left eye knocked out in a fight on Charlotte St. about 11.30 Saturday night. However a cut near the eye was stitched up in St. Joseph's Hospital Sunday and he was due to leave hospital this afternoon.

The man with whom he was fighting, Urban Crough, 747 Brown St., was charged in police court today with causing a disturbance. He pleaded not guilty and his case was adjourned.

Constables A dre Dalton and Grant Gillespie came upon the two men fighting when they were patrolling Charlotte St. in a cruiser. Fitzgerald's face was covered with blood and Crough was also bleeding from cuts to the face.

Fitzgerald was taken to Dr. J. M. O'Brien who ordered him to St. Joseph's Hospital. Dr. O'Brien told police he thought Fitzgerald had received the gash beside his left eye from a kick rather than the blow of a fist.

Fitzgerald will also probably be charged with causing a disturbance.

Man's Tongue Cut In Crash

William Bowers, 61-year-old Wilberforce resident, is still in Bancroft Red Cross hospital with a lacerated tongue received Friday afternoon in a truck-car crash two miles east of Wilberforce.

Mumford and Elliott escaped uninjured but Bowers received a badly-cut tongue. Damage to the two vehicles totals $1,000.

3 Torontonians Had Liquor In Illegal Place

Three young Toronto men were found guilty in police court today of charges of having liquor in an illegal place Saturday night.

The three were James Tomlinson, 22, Robert White, 24, and Gordon Clarkson, 21.

Tomlinson and Clarkson pleaded not guilty. White pleaded guilty. White and Clarkson were fined $10 and costs and Tomlinson $15 and costs.

Constable Clair McGillen testified he and Constable Victor McConnell were called to a Charlotte St. hotel about 10 p.m. Saturday. They brought White and Clarkson to the police station and then went in search of Tomlinson whom they found sitting in his car in a parking lot.

Partners Anyway

In the glove compartment of the car, they found a partly-filled bottle of whisky. Tomlinson was brought to the police station.

Constable McGillen said he asked Tomlinson who owned the bottle of whisky and Tomlinson replied that all three of them owned it. The others agreed.

Constable Louis Rodreque verified this evidence.

"I didn't think it was an official statement. I thought we had to share the blame for anything we did because we are our partners anyway," Tomlinson said.

Crown Attorney John A. Bradshaw said they were partners in a business of selling pen and pencil sets in beverage rooms.

75 Years A Nun Sister Dies In Her 99th Year

The funeral of Sister Aurelia (Catherine Cokeley) who died Friday at Mount St. Joseph in her ninety-ninth year, took place this morning to St. Peter's Cemetery.

Requiem mass was celebrated in the chapel at the Mount by Very Rev. V. J. Corkery, assisted by Rev. K. Malane as deacon and Rev. Gerard Sullivan as subdeacon.

Other members of the clergy present in the sanctuary were: Rt. Rev. V. J. McAuley, Lindsay; Rev. V. J. Gillogly, Ennismore; Rev. Father O'Donnell, C.Ss.R., Rev. Joseph O'Sullivan, Rev. R. McEachern, Rev. R. Garvey, Master of Ceremonies and Rev. G. Weiss, Peterborough.

The pallbearers were: Dr. E. M. Crough, John Madden, Joseph Boland, Gerard Wilson, James Dunn and J. J. Crowley. Prayers at the graveside were read by Rev. Father Corkery.

Born in Danville, Quebec, in 1852, Sister Aurelia entered the Community of St. Joseph in Toronto on Oct. 3rd, 1876. She was one of the twenty Sisters who came from Toronto in 1890 to form the nucleus of a new Community in the diocese of Peterborough, and was its sole charter member who lives to see it expand far to the east, and west to the foothills of the Rockies.

With unflagging interest, Sister Aurelia saw the Community of St. Joseph send out two daughter Communities, both of which are also laboring to strengthen Christianity in Canada. In her hidden way she had done valuable work for Peterborough during much of its municipal century that has been celebrated this year.

Sister Aurelia maintained a clear mentality to the close of her life. On the day before her death on Friday, she asked that she might receive Holy Communion, and responded to the prayers thereafter. She was in the seventy-fifth year of her life as a member of the Sisterhood of St. Joseph, and had contributed valuable data for its annals. During her long life as a Religious, she maintained a serenity and a marked loyalty to her chosen life work. Even in death, there was evidence of the dignity which had graced her years of devotedness to suffering humanity.

Sister Aurelia had labored in the mission of Kaministiquia and St. Joseph's Hospital, Port Arthur, and in the trying days, sixty years ago at St. Joseph's Hospital, Peterborough. A member of the first staff of the hospital, she was the only one of that dedicated company who lived to see the splendid tree that has developed from that tiny seed of good works.

Rinks Ready If Cold Stays

"Two or three chilly days like today and we'll have the rinks ready," Armar Butcher, superintendent of parks, told the Examiner today. Today's temperature dip is allowing flooding of the five rinks operated by the parks department.

Mr. Butcher said that by the time the children leave school Thursday for the Christmas holidays he hopes to have some of the rinks fit for good skating.

A few children have been trying the ice at the Riverside rink. There it is poor and grass is showing through in places. A shortage of boards held up the rink at Stewart and McDonnel streets, but flooding began there today.

EUROPE PROMISES LITTLE FOR OWN DEFENCE— As map above shows, if the Kremlin decides on aggressive moves in Europe in the near future, the United States will have to depend largely upon itself for what resistance the Western Allies put up. Although President Truman and Prime Minister Attlee agreed that the defences of Western Europe must be strengthened as quickly as possible, the military confederation of the free nations —talked of for many months — is still largely a paper plan.

Shirley Temple Weds Again, Says 'Twill Last

DEL MONTE, Calif., Dec. 18—(AP).—Shirley Temple, for years America's child movie sweetheart was honeymooning today with her second husband, dark, handsome, Charles Black.

The 31-year-old bridegroom, member of a prominent San Francisco family, married Shirley in a quiet civil ceremony Saturday at the exclusive Monterey Peninsula home of his parents.

The couple then left for an undisclosed honeymoon destination. There were reports they intended to go to Hawaii.

The ceremony was conducted by Judge Henry G. Jorgenson who said afterward: "If this is not true love, then I do not know what true love is. It should last a lifetime."

Shirley, now 22 years old, received her final divorce decree Dec. 8.

Black, associated with television station KTTV in Los Angeles, had not been married before. His father, James B. Black, is president of the Pacific Gas and Electric Company.

Young Black rose from apprentice seaman to lieutenant-commander in five years of wartime navy service. He had dated Shirley frequently since they met in Honolulu last winter.

Bus Rolls Down Mountain Only Three Badly Hurt

GRAND FORKS, B.C., Dec. 18 (CP)—A Calgary-bound bus jammed with between 40 and 50 persons left the road Sunday and rolled 400 feet down a mountainside.

Only three persons were injured seriously, but the majority of the passengers were treated at the scene for shock, bruises and abrasions.

Police said most of those aboard the Greyhound bus were University of British Columbia students on holidays and bound for their out-of-town homes.

The bus, which came to rest in a creek bed, was demolished.

All available ambulances and police were rushe dto the scene, nine miles west of here.

A human chain was formed to pass stretchers from the creek bed to the road.

Grand Forks, in the Kootenays, is near the United States border and about 200 miles east of Vancouver.

Stalin's Birthday, Not Christmas Celebration For East Germans

By DANIEL DE LUCE

BERLIN, Dec. 18 — (AP) — Is Christmas an "obsolete bourgeois affair?"

East German Communists say so. They're using all public organizations in the Russian zone, including the Free German Youth, to make Joseph Stalin's birthday the biggest event in December.

The entire month is dedicated to German-Soviet friendship. Millions of school children are required to write essays on this topic.

The Communist government will lead East Germany in huge displays of public adulation for Stalin on his 71st birthday, Dec. 21.

The government describes the Soviet generalissimo as "the best friend of the German people."

Stalin's books are studied in special classes by 1,200,000 members and candidates of the Soviet zone Communist party. At present, they far outsell the Bible.

Making Changes

The government has not yet abolished Christmas, but Communist leaders do not disguise their efforts to eliminate religious significance from the traditional holiday.

School books no longer link Christmas with the birth of Jesus in stories and pictures. They have ceased to give the dates of historic events as before or after Christ. Their substitutes: "In our time reckoning" and "before our time reckoning."

Informants at Dresden recently reported the city's famous doll industry had stopped making Weihnachstmann (Father Christmas) and angels. Instead, it was turning out "free German youth" dolls in blue shirts.

Germans recall that only six years ago Christmas was in disfavour with the Nazis. The most fanatical party members ignored it entirely and made a great fuss over Dec. 21.

For pagan Nazis, Dec. 21 was an occasion to revive the ancient Teutonic fires festival, celebrating the sun's winter solstice. They didn't mention that it was Stalin's birthday, too.

Ringworm Epidemic Halted But 500 Children Suffer

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont., Dec. 18 —(CP)— A ringworm epidemic has been checked here but 500 school children still suffer from the irritating fungus disease on their scalps.

Dr. J. E. Gimby, medical officer of health for the 35,000 citizens of this Northern Ontario steel city, says he believes the ringworm will disappear within a few months. Meantime, children are to continue wearing white cotton caps at school and in public.

The caps, sterilized each night, are considered a major factor in retarding the spread of ringworm among the city's 5,600 primary school pupils. The disease, discovered on six children by a school nurse last March, reached its peak in October when more than 900 children were affected.

Wearing of the caps was ordered in September after the schools opened and it became apparent that the ringworm was spreading rapidly. Pupils in all rooms where the disease was detected had to wear them. Some 325 children were kept home from school that month and worried parents kept more than 400 children out of class in October. Four special clinics were set up and a city councillor suggested wholesale quarantine.

Various Drugs Tried

Experiments with a variety of drugs were carried out at the clinics with indifferent results. Finally, at the end of November, the clinics were closed.

Many parents wondered whether the infection would have lasting effects on their children's health. Dr. Raymond Smith, Toronto skin specialist, put their fears at rest.

"Ringworm does not interfere with the general health of the patient," he said. "Even untreated, the skin disease disappears spontaneously over a period of time.

"No specific drug will cure the disease. The only certain method of treating the disease is by temporarily removing the infected hair roots. Quarantine is not feasible."

Some home remedies were tried. Mothers soaked the scalps of their unhappy children in gasoline or rubbed boiled tobacco juice into the ringworm. In some cases, the children suffered more from the after-effects of these treatments than from the ringworm itself—which still was there.

Other children sported bald spots, where their hair either had been pulled out or had fallen away.

Now, however, authorities feel that the worst of the epidemic is over. If precautions succeed in keeping it in check during the winter months before long what Dr. Gimby calls a "pesky nuisance" will just fade away.

Something to remember

This is one of a series of words and expressions whose origins and meanings are published in the interest of a better understanding, use and knouledge of the English language.

"A-1"

Today, when we say a thing is "A-1" we mean that it is the very best, first-rate.

In its strict sense this term is associated with shipping. Lloyd's Register of British and Foreign Shipping classifies the character of a ship's hull by letters, and the condition of the cables, anchors and stores by figures. Thus, "A-1" means hull and fittings first-rate. By the same reckoning "A-2" would signify hull first rate, with fittings second-rate.

Unions May Be Stronger Trend Toward Labor Unity

By JOHN LEBLANC

OTTAWA, Dec. 18—(CP)—A trend toward the consolidation of labor's strength was perhaps the most significant development of the Canadian labor scene in 1950. Diverse labor groups were turning more and more toward massing their power to gain objectives. While this was confined for the present to joint action on specific problems rather than a general policy of co-ordination, it could develop into the forerunner of eventual organic unity for Canadian labor generally.

Unemployment, social security, the August rail strike and rising living costs were matters that drew various central labor bodies together on joint action during the year.

Biggest step of this kind came in December when the four major central bodies—with aggregate membership of 1,000,000—joined hands to launch a country-wide campaign for the re-imposition of price controls and retention of rent controls to hold down living costs.

The organizations are the Trades and Labor Congress of Canada, the Canadian Congress of Labor, the Canadian Catholic Confederation of Labor and the Dominion Joint Legislative Committee of the Railway Transportation Brotherhood.

It was the first time the four groups ever had worked together that way. Previous measures had gone no further than the issuing of joint statements.

The move came shortly after the 360,000-member Canadian Congress of Labor at its annual convention had called for the setting-up of a national joint consultative council of the four big central bodies, an action frankly aimed at eventual unity.

The 500,000-member Trades and Labor Congress of Canada, the largest body, has not at this point indicated it will go beyond joint action on specific matters. However, TLC president Percy Bengough said in an interview during the year he considers unity inevitable in time.

Membership Increases

On other fronts, labor continued to make strides during the year. Union membership kept soaring, reaching well above the 1,000,000 mark. Employment, which took a sharp dip last winter recovered later and by mid-summer reached an all-time peak of an estimated 5,221,000. That included the new province of Newfoundland, but the nine-province figure went to 5,115,000, just under the record 5,115,000 of August, 1949, on the old basis.

Labor continued also to wrest higher returns from employers. Industrial wages hit a series of new peaks in 1950, though unions contended higher living costs ate up much of the gains.

For this reason, there was a slowdown in the post-war disposition of unions to get industrial pension plans instead of wage increases. For the time being, emphasis switched to higher wages to meet living costs.

Longer Contracts

Another apparent trend was towards longer-term contracts, giving stability to both labor and industry over periods up to five years. Escalator clauses based on the cost-of-living index were in use.

While labor-management strife was not widespread, one labor dispute brought about one of the greatest single strikes in Canadian labor history—the nine-day walkout in August that crippled the railways.

The 124,000 rail employees who struck were the greatest number ever to go on strike in this country. In the amount of work lost, the 1,000,000 man-days made up the second-greatest loss, giving way only to a 195-day strike of Alberta and British Columbia coal miners in 1911. The time loss in that strike was 1,350,000 man-days.

Excluding the rail strike, the time loss this year was low. Largest single loss was in a strike of 915 Hamilton civil workers in August and September, which cost 26,500 days.

B.C. Fishermen, Loggers Hit For Big Blowout

VANCOUVER, Dec. 18 (CP).—A fleet sailed and an army marched today toward Vancouver. Their intentions weren't entirely peaceful, either.

The $1,000,000 herring fleet was inward bound from the West Coast of Vancouver Island and from up-coast after a record haul.

And some 36,000 loggers began to tramp out of British Columbia's forests for the Christmas-New Year's break.

When the fishermen and lumberjacks hot town it will be more like a Mardi Gras.

It's the annual time-out for fishermen in some 150 seiners, packers and other fishing vessels—a period between December 15 and January 4.

When they reach port, they will bring with them the waterfront's first touch of Yuletide—color — Christmas trees perched atop their masts.

The big wooden seiners netted fish so fast last Friday that the 30,000-ton northern quota was cleaned up several hours before the season had been scheduled to end officially.

Ask Quota Extended

The bonanza in the snow-flecked waters south of Prince Rupert was so heavy that an application has been made by the herring men to have the quota extended after New Year's.

BC Packers' seiner Maple Leaf C. hauled in a record single catch of 1,260 tons. The old mark was 1,165 tons.

Top "highliner" on the coast now is Capt. Mel Stauffer of Alert May, BC, the Indian skipper of the Maple Leaf C.

Their jeans chock full of jack, the loggers are rolling into town by the scores.

Many have no homes or families, and are moving into hotels for the holiday from the tall timber. They wear plaid shirts and coats and carry their hob-nailed boots slung over their shoulders.

They have been saving their cash for months for the holiday. Most of them will be broke when they head back again into their private world of crashing giants, buckers, riggers, winches and the lineliness of lumber camps deep in the silent forest.

LETTER TO SANTA—Barbara Lentz, 11-year-old polio victim at Coply Memorial Hosptial, Aurora, Ill., has found the only way she can write Santa Claus is to clutch a pen in her teeth. Instead of asking for gifts, Barbara, who has been crippled over a year, asked Santa to thank the people who helped her by contributing to the March of Dimes. Assisting the little girl is Nancy Kelly, occupational therapist.

Car Co's. Cancel Increases

DETROIT, Dec. 18 (AP)—Two of the "big three" motor firms said Sunday they would comply with the government order rolling back car prices to the Dec. 1 level even though they thought it unfair.

Ford and General Motors fell in line under protest. Chrysler declined to comment on the order issued Saturday by the Economic Stabilization Agency. Nash, the only independent affected by the order, announced compliance.

Don E. Aherns, vice-president and general manager of G.M.'s Cadillac division, announced withdrawal of a previously scheduled announcement of price increases. The 1951 Cadillac cars are scheduled for showroom display early next month.

Car manufacturers called it unfair to single out the auto industry for a price freeze. Walter Reuther, president of the United Auto Workers (CIO), in a statement Saturday objected to "pinpoint price control that is discriminatory and does not get to the basic causes of spiralling cost of living."

Union To Resist

In another statement Sunday, Reuther said the union would resist any government attempt to avoid cost - of - living escalator clauses now in union contracts. Reuther said the contracts "have established the most stable relations in the history of this key defence industry."

Reuther said the union would present is case to the wage stabilization board at its conference with automobile industry labor and management in Washington Wednesday.

A spokesman for the industry, who asked that his name not be used, said Saturday night "the industry is going to take every fact at its command to Washington and fight this thing out."

A spokesman for General Motors Corporation said Sunday it was obvious G.M. would comply with the government order.

Coincidence Brings Holdup Man's Arrest

TORONTO, Dec. 18 (CP) — Police said a coincidence led to the arrest Saturday night of 16-year-old George Quancy on two charges of armed robbery.

Philip Brady told police he was walking on east-end Gerrard Street when an armed youth accosted him and demanded his money. The gunman fled when pedestrians approached.

About 15 minutes later, Brady said, he entered the nearby Checker Grill. He saw the same youth in the act of holding up the owners of the restaurant, Mr. and Mrs. Mequin.

With Mequin's help he grabbed and disarmed the youth and turned him over to police.

Interrupts Robbers Watchman Slugged

TORONTO, Dec. 18 (CP) — Stanley Koper, 36-year-old watchman, Sunday was slugged and left dazed and bleeding from a head wound requiring eight stitches after interrupting safe-crackers smashing a stolen safe containing $2,000.

Koper told police he went to investigate a pounding noise early Sunday near his watchman's office. He saw three men near an automobile, trying to jimmy a safe with a wrecking bar.

He started back to his hut, to call police, but was seen by one of the men who struck him with the wrecking bar.

Fenella Children Heard At Concert

ROSENEATH, Dec. 18 (ENS)—A Hawaiian number with tropical scenery, vocal and instrumental music and costumes was one of the outstanding numbers on the program at the Fenella School (S.S. No. 22) concert held on Wednesday evening in the school. Mrs. W. I. Montgomery is the teacher of the school. Rev. R. C. White was chairman.

A senior pupil, Ken Waldie, delighted his audience with the rendition of two vocal solos, "Toorie On His Bonnet" and "Christmas In Killarney," each time responding to an encore. Other numbers on the program were: A recitation by Audrey Davis; a playlet, "Pumpkinville Christmas Concert," with Maurice Rogers as chairman; piano solos by Catherine Roberts, Lorraine Murphy, Ann Fanning, John Jewell, Marion Roberts and Maurice Rogers; a dialogue, "What the Doctor Says," by the senior pupils; a school chorus, "Frosty the Snow Man"; a vocal solo by Lorraine Murphy; a chorus by five pupils with Audrey Hope, piano accompanist; a closing chorus, "Here Comes Canta Claus."

W. I. Montgomery was pianist for the evening's entertainment.

Santa Claus came and distributed gifts to the children.

The concert was largely attended. Guests were present from Cobourg, Baltimore, Centreton, Hastings and Roseneath.

Secession Advocates Said Making Mistake

TORONTO, Dec. 18 CP)—J. R. Pattison, chairman of the Fort William Hydro Commission, said Sunday that advocates of "lakehead secession" are "barking up the wrong tree."

So is Walter Thomson, Ontario Liberal leader, when he criticizes hydro-electric power policies in the lakehead area, he added.

Talk of Northwestern Ontario seceding from the province is "sparked by certain lumber interests" but in the long run nothing will come of it, he said. In 17 years of lakehead hydro experience, he had seen no occasion on which the hydro arrangements had not been "eminently satisfactory" to all concerned.

MARY MOORE SAYS:

Christmas Pudding Sauces Must Set New Standards

Christmas is one time when the pudding is not just something to put a sauce over.

On the contrary sauces have a hard time living up to the standards set by the pudding.

In the humdrum months of the year at our dinner table Butterscotch Pudding is a mid-week favorite—but it is strictly a white "pudding or something" under a steady stream of buttery Butterscotch Sauce. (The main idea is that as you consume a couple of bites you have your left hand ready to reach for the sauce pitcher to quickly cover up the bare patch.)

But this month things are different.

You have selected a pudding that you feel will end your hunt for the supreme plum pudding—for all time. You have made it with meticulous attention to your recipe-expert's instructions.

What sauce is good enough for it?

Well, do you belong to the hard sauce school or the hot sauce school?

I'm a hard sauce fan myself—and maybe that is because it intrigues me to see it melt into the pudding before my eyes, and it looks so decoratives.

I gave you the recipe for Rosettes of Hard Sauce last week, so today will give you a variation or so guaranteed to appeal to those in the Upper Grades of Cooking School. The last half of the lecture is for the Hot Pudding Sauce fans.

Hard Sauce Variations

Basic Ingredients: One-quarter cup butter or margarine, three-quarters cup (not sifted) icing sugar, plus 1 teaspoon flavoring which is usually vanilla and nutmeg. Simply beat until your arm falls off—unless you have an electric beater.

Variation 1. Add 1 tablespoon strained or canned lemon juice very slowly after butter and sugar have been beaten together for 10 minutes.

Variation 2. Add ½ teaspoon grated lemon rind and 1 tablespoon orange juice.

Variation 3. Use brown sugar instead of icing, and 1 teaspoon powdered coffee for flavoring; this one is especially good if the pudding is not overrich.

Variation 4. A very different variation is:

✧ ✧ ✧

Foamy Sauce

But as you see it is still basically Hard Sauce: Cream 3 tablespoons butter with 1 cup powdered sugar until very light. Beat in 2 unbeaten egg yolks thoroughly. Just before serving time fold in the stiffly beaten whites and flavoring—this is usually almond or sherry or rum flavoring.

✧ ✧ ✧

So much for the Hard Sauce fans. Now for the Hot Pudding Saucers.

Smooth Lemon Sauce (popular with almost everyone)

Cook together for 15 minutes 2 cups sugar into which is rubbed dry 1 tablespoon cornstarch, and 1½ cups boiling water, stirring until thick. Add 3 tablespoons lemon juice, 2 teaspoons grated lemon rind, 1 tablespoon butter, and if desired, 1 teaspoon nutmeg.

✧ ✧ ✧

Hot Chocolate Sauce (Delicious on ice cream or cottage pudding)

In top of double boiler put 2 squares bitter chocolate, ½ cup hot water, 1 tablespoon butter and 1½ cups sugar. Stir over boiling water until it forms a rich syrup—about 15 minutes. This must be served hot and at once.

THERE'S NOTHING QUITE SO FEMININE as a fan with flowers and this print from Lady Esquire features both. The blouse has a shawl-collared plunging neckline and short, straight sleeves.

Artist Believes Prairie Valleys Centre for Arts

FORT QU'APPELLE, Sask. — (CP)— Artist Marion Hamilton has come back for the third time to the Qu'Appelle Valley—and this time, she says, she's "home for good".

Miss Hamilton, born in Ontario, has spent most of her life in the valley. Most of her paintings have been of valley scenes.

She sees in the whole valley a potential art centre; and expresses belief that gradually artists and other creative workers will gravitate to a spot that offers so much "natural inspiration."

Miss Hamilton is a former student of James Henderson, another Saskatchewan artist. Like him, she scorns a brush and applies oil paints with a palette knife.

To be an artist takes years of work and study, she said in an interview. "Anyone can learn to draw—but it takes years of looking and years of making little sketches of these observations."

Uses Memory

Miss Hamilton first makes a sketch of a scene she wishes to paint, at the same time fixing in her memory how the light is and how the finished painting should look. Then she fills in from memory as much as she can with color.

"But you must always go back once before it can be finished; and you must time that visit so the light is exactly as it was when you first began the work.

"This often makes it necessary to go back many times, or at least wait many hours for the right lighting. Sometimes the seasons have changed and it is necessary to wait until the particular season rolls around again."

Firefighters' Dance At Bridgenorth

Forth, 14 Edegwater Crescent, John Magee, 522 Sherbrooke St., Gary Hardill, Bridgenorth, E. Sweeting, RR 3, Lakefield, Mel Heslip South Monaghan, B. Graham, 46 Sophia St., Ken Strain, RR 5, Omenee. The evening was spent in round and square dancing with Bill McDougall and Andy Anderson the "callers."

COLDSPRINGS, Dec. 18 (ENS) The Christmas meeting of the Coldsprings WI was held on Wednesday at the home of Mrs. H. McKinley.

The president Mrs. N. McIntosh was in the chair. The roll call "your favorite poem" was answered by 33 members.

Money is being raised to buy a piano for the new Hamilton township community hall and Mrs. M. Dines and Mrs. K. Harper were nominated as a committee to see about the purchase.

The program was in charge of Mrs. A. Jamieson. Christmas carols were sung and Mrs. F. Ford gave the current events.

The motto "The wrong shall fail, the right prevail, with peace on earth goodwill to men," was given by Mrs. C. Bowman. A story on folk songs by Mrs. N. Timlin after which Mrs. Bray finished her report on "Home economics and health." The topic "the story of Christmas" was taken by Mrs. A. Bowman. Mrs. H. Jibb sang a solo "Star of the East." A social half hour was enjoyed, lunch being served by Mrs. A. Jamieson's group and the hostess.

SHARE YOUR JOY
THIS CHRISTMAS

Christmas is a festive, friendly season. Beneath all its gaiety and warmth, its greetings and sparkling decorations, Christmas means the joy of sharing. To most of us it is a wonderful season, but for those who are less fortunate Christmas can be a real heartache. An invitation to dinner to someone who is lonesome, a toy for some needy youngster, food and clothing for a family that has met misfortune—such little things as these give life to the Christmas spirit . . . and to the spirit of "Good Citizenship".

Nearly 400 at Sunday Tea Of St. Joseph's Auxiliary

The Ladies' Auxiliary to St. Joseph's Hospital staged a wonderfully successful event when they served afternoon tea on Sunday at the nurses' residence. Close to four hundred guests enjoyed their hospitality and a delightful period of sociability.

The sum realized was bolstered further by the sale of tickets on a beautifully iced cake, made and donated by Mrs. C. F. Szammers. Also on the Christmas table decoration of gold and multi-colored metallic baubles which was highlighted on the tea table by red tapers in tall candalabra and small size Christmas trees.

The club's annual party was also highlighted by having as guest of honor Miss Joan Fitzgerald, a young victim of polio who has been sponsored by the club in water therapy treatments and swimming lesons at the Y. During the evening she was presented with the Red Cross Swimming Award for which she qualified highly in recent tests. Friday Night Club Hosts to 850 At Carol Service

The Salvation Army Temple Band, one of Peterborough's great assets, is more than ever appreciated when the time of singing favorite Christmas carols comes along.

On Sunday evening the bandsmen again gave their services to the YMCA Friday Night Club for the annual carol service in the collegiate auditorium and a crowd of more than 800 had lined up outside before the doors were opened.

The program was set for eight thirty o'clock as the band had also to play for the evening service at the Temple. The band had also been on the program of the Optimists' Radio Hamper Show from the Summer Gardens in the early afternoon. During the past week small groups of the band have been playing carols at street corners throughout the ctiy as is the usual custom.

Mr. Quirt McKinney, known throughout the city as a most capable song leader and genial master of ceremonies, was again contributing his ability for this sixth annual song fest. Words of the carols and illustrative coloured pictures were projected on the screen through the handling of Mr. and Mrs. Charlton McBride, who are also yearly assistants on this occasion.

The people had come because they like to sing carols and because at this service they can raise their voices loud, urged by the leader and the band music.

But possibly they enjoyed most the two very fine selections played by the band and two numbers by a male chorus of bandsmen among whom was band leader Gerald Routley. With some pride Mr. Routley explained the first band selection was originally written for piano and he felt the men did exceptionally well with it.

Mr. McKinney several ttimes voiced the feelings about the band and also remarked about the beautifully shining instruments denoting that even with a busy holiday schedule these men find time to give them the proper care.

Bill King, president of the Friday night Club, extended the members' welcome and season's greetings to the crowd. Before asking the ushers to pass collection plates he explained that proceeds of the carol service are used in the YMCA World Service work which covers sending trained Y secretaries to other countries, emergency aid to war-devastated Y's and international services such as rehabilitation of displaced persons.

Ontario Student Expert on Wells

CARON, Sask. — (CP)—Ada Snider, 21-year-old student at Briarcrest Bible Institute here, goes home to Woodbridge, Ont., between terms—to drill wells.

Miss Snider, who hopes soon to qualify as a missionary, believes she is the only woman well-driller in Ontario. And there are not many in all Canada.

For years, when not studying at the undenominational institute here, she has helped her 64-year-old father to drill wells. She loves the outdoor work and the thrill of striking a good water supply.

Miss Snider and her father, J. N. Snider, recently bought in one of the best wells seen in years in the vegetable-growing Holland Marsh district 35 miles north of Toronto. Until capped, it ran 500,000 gallons a day. The pure, pressure-fed supply now is distributed through pipes to half a dozen big market gardens.

On the job Ada wears a plaid shirt, blue jeans and rubber boots. She keeps her hair bound tightly to avoid accidents while working with drilling machinery.

"It's a healthy job," she says, "except for the occasional drenching you get trying to cap a wall."

Aluminum wrappers
keep food fresh!

An "Inside Story" about Butter

Butter goes stale quickly when air and light get in. That's why better-wrapped butter tastes better. Buy one of the many brands that are flavour-sealed in aluminum foil.

The next time you buy
Butter, Cheese, Candy, Chocolate, Tea,
look for the brands in clean, hygienic aluminum foil. Whenever you see aluminum on the outside of any packaged food, there's an "inside story" of purity well-protected.

No other material is more "food-friendly" than aluminum. So save the protective foil. Use it to rewrap the butter when you put it away, and protect that "farm-fresh" flavour.

Hints to the Housewife
Wrap food leftovers in aluminum foil. Keep them fresh for another meal.
Perishable fruits and vegetables stay fresh and crisp in aluminum foil.

DOROTHY DIX

Unfaithful Woman Worse Than Man of Same Type

DEAR MISS DIX: My first marriage ended disastrously for the reason that although I was good and kind to my wife and gave her every luxury, she was unfaithful to me. Recently I have met a young widow whom I am thinking of marrying, but she has confessed to me that during her previous marriage and since her husband's death, she has had numerous affairs with other men.

My problem is this: Is it likely that a woman who had been untrue to her first husband, and more or less promiscuous since, will be likely to be faithful to any man? B. B.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: Not a chance. The philandering woman is even more incurable than the philandering man for, after all, the feminine sex is restless and dissatisfied by nature, and once a woman starts out on a life of adventure nothing stops her but age or the grave.

Dorothy Dix

Can't Trust Her

Of course, the double-crossers in love are no more to be trusted than the cheaters in business. Honor and honesty are a matter of principle ingrained in the character and a man or woman either possesses them or lacks them, and if they lack them it is just too bad for those they marry, but there is nothing they can do about it.

It is only superhuman vanity that makes a man and woman think that they have some superlative charm that will make those who have been false to everyone else true to them. No one possesses this fatal fascination for a philanderer, for what he or she seeks is novelty, change and new sensation and no one person can supply these demands.

The woman who marries a philanderer takes a big chance at happiness, Heaven knows, but a man who marries a woman philanderer just asks for trouble. And gets it. A man may have little affairs with women that just tickle his vanity and are merely skin deep, so to speak, but a woman's disloyalty to her husband goes to the bone and when she chucks her bonnet over the windmill she throws with it all of her principles.

Anyway, there can be no happiness in a marriage in which the husband and wife cannot trust each other. And it is folly for a man to marry a woman whose past record will make him suspicious of her every act.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR DOROTHY DIX: I am engaged to be married to a man who is kind, generous, easy to get along with and has many good qualities, but his idea of having a good time is to get drunk. We have known each other for six years. At first we went to movies, concerts, played cards, etc., but now he doesn't enjoy any of these anymore. Says he would rather spend his extra money on liquor. He stays sober during the week, but at the weekend he makes up for lost time. Am I foolish to marry him? E. M.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: I think you would be crazy to marry him. Because, if you do, you will let yourself in for one of the most miserable of all fates, that of a drunkard's wife.

Don't deceive yourself into thinking that you can reform him, and lift him up to the higher level by marrying him. Marriage isn't Alcoholics' Anonymous. He will spend his money for booze instead of bringing it home. This man has warned you what to expect if you marry him. Take the tip and break off the engagment.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR DOROTHY DIX: What should a girl do who needs the job she now has and who finds that men who come into the office, friends of her employer, make advances to her? ESTELLE

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: If you have the come-hither look in your eye, make your eyes behave. Dress plainly. Don't look like the kind of a girl that makes a man think that he might make a stab at dating her.

Don't get tragical or hysterical and burst into tears when strange men try you out to see how far you will go. Laugh it off, but make your "no" sound convincing. I have never known a man whom a girl couldn't freeze out if she was really bent on doing it.

Pocahontas Bones Perilled by Plan to Efface Church

GRAVESEND, England (AP)—The last resting place of a North American legend is in peril.

Orders are awaited to demolish St. George's Church, where the body of the Indian princess Pocahontas was buried 333 years ago. The church is in a poor state of repair, and the Church of England commissioners put St. George's on their "condemned" list in 1948.

Every Sunday the few remaining parishioners walk right over the bones of the beautiful Indian girl who, so the story goes, saved Captain John Smith's life from the tomahawks of her father's braves at the risk of her own. The bones of Chief Powhatan's daughter lie in a vault beneath the aisle.

The Rev. Richard Daunton-Fear, vicar of St. George's, says there is not the slightest doubt that the bones are still there, despite the passing of more than three centuries.

Opposes Moving

The vicar does not want to see his church torn down. Apart from the church itself, he thinks it would not be fitting for the bones of Pocahontas to wind up under the foundations of a factory or apartment dwelling.

He estimates it would take about $300,000 to reconstruct the church and make it a shrine for Americans, especially those from Virginia. Many indignant Virginians have called on the trans-Atlantic telephone to harrass the vicar for not doing something about Pocahontas. Hundreds more have written letters.

Pocahontas married colonist John Rolfe and came to England with him and their son early in the 17th century. Beautiful daughter of a native chief, she made a great splash in court circles and was received by Queen Anne.

In March, 1617, the Rolfes started the long ocean voyage from London back to America. Aboard ship, Pocahontas fell ill. Taken ashore at Gravesend, she died.

6—In Memoriams

BLOIS—In loving memory of Mrs. M. A. Blois, who passed away ten years ago today, Dec. 18.
—Ever remembered by Mrs. B Bolam and Mrs. J. Pickering.

DAVIS—In loving memory of our dear son and brother, Cecil Lloyd Davis, who passed away December 18th, 1948.
"Thy will be done" seems hard to say,
When one we loved has passed away.
Some day, perhaps, we'll understand,
When we meet again in that better land.
—Ever remembered by mother, sisters and brothers.

GATFIELD—In loving memory of our mother, Dec. 16th, 1942.
She is not dead,
She is just away,
In the garden of memory
We meet every day.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

6—In Memoriams

DODD—In memory of Mrs. Harry Dodd, who passed away December 18, 1945.
Two dear bright eyes, a tender smile,
A loving heart that knew no guile,
Deep trust in God that all was right,
Her joy to make some other bright,
If sick or suffering one she knew,
Some gentle act of love she'd do,
No thought of self, but of the other,
I know He said "Well done," dear mother.
— Lovingly remembered by her family.

LONG—In loving memory of Rowland G. Long, who passed away 10 years ago today, December 18, 1940.
—Ever remembered by his wife and family.

TROLLOPE—In loving memory of Henry Trollope, who died Dec. 21, 1941.
You're not forgotten father dear,
Nor ever shall you be,
As long as life and memory last
I shall remember thee.
—Ever remembered by daughters, Mildred, Hilda and Lillie.

No Stay Of Execution Granted McAuliffe

SIMCOE, Dec. 18 (CP)—Herbert J. McAuliffe, 32, goes to the gallows early Tuesday for the machine-gun murder of two citizens who tried to stop him last June 21 after he robbed a bank at nearby Langton of $23,000.

His appeal to the Ontario Supreme Court was denied. McAuliffe's lawyer, Arthur Maloney of Toronto, presented to the federal cabinet last week a plea for clemency.

By mid-morning today, Norfolk County Sheriff R. M. Hamilton had received no instructions from Ottawa to stay the execution. The hanging is scheduled for shortly after midnight.

McAuliffe shot and killed Arthur Lierman, 31, and William Goddyn, 24, as they chased him at high speeds along rural county roads. He abandoned his getaway car and was captured almost three days later after one of the most intensive manhunts in Ontario history.

Dollar Stays Steady

MONTREAL, Dec. 18 (CP) — The American dollar today opened at 5¼ per cent permium to the Canadian dollar, unchanged from Saturday's close. That is, it took $1.05¼ Canadian to buy $1 American.

The pound sterling was $2.94¾, also unchanged.

Detroit Red Wings Get Leo Gravelle

DETROIT, Dec. 18.—(AP). — Detroit Red Wings today swapped Bert Olmstead, a newly-acquired left winger, to Montreal for right winger Leo Gravelle.

To lure Gravelle, 25-year-old blonde forward, from Montreal, Detroit tossed in a bundle of cash, amount undisclosed.

Red Wings acquired Olmstead only last night from Chicago as the fourth man in a Dec. 2 hockey deal that sent Steve Black and Lee Fogolin to the Black Hawks for Vic Stasiuk and one more man who was to be named later.

Olmstead, a native of Sceptre, Sask., was advised to move directly from Chicago to Montreal.

Gravelle, from Aylmer, Ont., has scored 43 National Hockey League goals since his pro debut in the 1946-47 season. He will join Red Wings in time for Tuesday's game with New York Rangers in Detroit.

OBITUARIES

ROLAND J. B. GORDON

A heart attack during his sleep caused the death early this morning of Roland J. B. Gordon at his home, 120 Lock St.

Mr. Gordon was born in Peterborough, son of the late Clement Gordon and Leonice LaPlante and had lived all his life in the Crescent-Lock section of the city.

He leaves two sisters, Miss Eva Gordon and Mrs. John Martyn, who thought that he was sleeping beyond his usual time of getting up. Later when called he was found to have died in his sleep. Mr. Gordon appeared to be in normal health during the weekend.

MRS. MARY McEACHERN

Mrs. Mary McEachern, 81, died Sunday at the home of her son-in-law, H. W. Tranter, of 300 London St. She was ill only a short time. Mrs. McEachern was born in Eldon Township, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Duncan McCallum, and before coming to Peterborough eight years ago, lived in Argyle, Ont. Her husband, Alexander D. McEachern, predeceased her in 1927.

She leaves three daughters, Mrs. H. W. Tranter (Mary) of this city, Mrs. N. Foley (Anna) of Toronto, and Mrs. L. Truman (Isabel) of Kirkfield. There are four sons, Dugald McEachern and Duncan, both of Lorneville, Alexander of Cambray, and Hector of Duncan, BC. A sister, Mrs. J. N. McMillan, lives in Toronto, and a brother, John McCallum of Duncan, BC. There are also five grandchildren.

Australia Rejects Full War Footing

CANBERRA, Australia, Dec. 18 (Reuters) — Prime Minister Robert Menzies said today it would not be a sound move to put Australian economy on a full war footing, though the international situation was grave.

He said such action would play into the hands of unfriendly powers.

The soundest defence policy for the present was to continue to build the economic and industrial foundations of the nation and at the same time to make all preparations for prospective mobilization in the future, he told the first meeting of the National Resources Security Board.

India, Pakistan Widen Rift On Jute Supply

By G. E. POWELL

CALCUTTA — (CP) — Jute, Bengal's "golden fibre," is part of a grim game of poker between India and Pakistan.

As the two countries glare angrily across their common frontier, economic relations are getting worse. Pakistan seems increasingly to aim at diverting her economic activities from natural and traditional associations with India, and India does likewise.

In defiance of natural economics, Pakistan buys coal from South Africa instead of from Bihar collieries, while Indian cotton mills, for want of Pakistan cotton, seek raw material in Egypt.

The biggest headache is jute, Eastern Pakistan's chief crop and basic need of the industry which earns for India the lion's share of dollars. In the next few months, Pakistan's crop is expected to be extremely good. Normally most of it would go to India, but the countries are in dispute over exchange rates, and mills are chary about buying.

India's own crop does not meet her needs but she is allowing it to be known that she is not in a hurry to buy Pakistan jute. Yet it is a known fact that suspension of one shift in the 100-odd mills around Calcutta would throw thousands out of work.

Market May Fall

The Calcutta forecast is that, despite Pakistan's price-support policy, the bottom may drop out of the jute market unless arrangements are made for supply to Indian mills.

While the fundamental dispute between the two countries is still over Kashmir — Pakistan wants a United Nations plebiscite under certain conditions, and India would like to see Pakistan denounced as the aggressor—a secondary argument over exchange rates has virtually paralyzed interchange of trade and payments.

A limited agreement on specific commodities, signed last April, helped a little but at its best would be an unsatisfactory way of conducting business in a subcontinent economically homegenous. Business men here deeply regret the international monetary fund's postponement of a decision on the Pakistan rupee's value; but mere suggestion of devaluation provoked a hostile press campaign.

Now that India's busiest trading season is at hand, traders are hoping for a quick break in the economic log-jam, although no easy solution seems in sight.

Hamilton Teachers Deny Any Stalemate

HAMILTON, Ont., Dec. 18 — (CF)—The Hamilton local of the Ontario Secondary School Teachers' Federation today denied a report that its negotiations with the Hamilton Board of Education for salary increases had reached a stalemate.

Norman Ralston, president of the local, said that negotiations had been delayed by mutual agreement until the New Year, because of the Christmas rush and lack of time to give full consideration to the question.

(The Canadian Press, in a story from Toronto Dec. 15, said that school boards and teachers at Hamilton and Fort William had reached a stalemate in salary talks).

Cobourg GE Workers Get 2-9 Cent Raise

A hundred production workers at the Cobourg CGE plant have received new job rates varying between two and nine cents an hour. These increases, effective immediately, were negotiated between the company and Local 534 International Union of Electrical Radio and Machine Workers.

In September the IUE negotiated a wage increase for the workers that averaged about 12 cents an hour. IUE officials say this brings the total boost in rates to between 12 and 21 cents.

Fined $50, Costs

Elmer Tripp, 244 Wolfe St., pleaded guilty in police court today to a second offence drunk charge and was fined $50 and costs.
